Placebo, for Chicago
Bombing Filipinos
Another Chevrolet Sold
Japan's Common Sense

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1930, King Features Synd., Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 29—On the hot sidewalk in front of the Biltmore Hotel this morning these surprising words were heard: "Yes, sir, Chicago is a fine place; there is no city on earth like Chicago."

It was a Los Angeles taxicab driver talking, making himself agreeable to a newly arrived Chicagoan.

In a month that Chicagoan will say that Chicago is wonderful, but Los Angeles is extraordinary.

A year later, probably, he will be moving his family out here.

This state will have twenty millions population before the end of the century.

Renewed attacks on Filipino workers in this state. A bomb exploded under a Filipino lodging house in Stockton, blew dozens of Asiatic workers out of bed. Nobody killed.

Fifteen thousand Filipinos in Stockton, largest colony in California, are distributed as farmhands in the delta region by labor contractors. They get work readily while many white men are unemployed. That explains the rioting.

It is said by farmers that Filipinos, with small deft hands and fingers, work the fields under intensive cultivation better than the whites. That does not comfort whites out of work.

The state has taken precaution to prevent the Filipinos obtaining firearms.

Mr. Fred Fisher, who knows how to make automobile bodies, is here inspecting automobile conditions, absorbing sunshine.

Examining the collection of Mr. J. V. Baldwin, biggest Chevrolet dealer in the country, Mr. Fisher talked optimistically of conditions ahead, his views based on careful observation. He said: "October's clouds have rolled away."

At that moment in came William M. Packer, Chevrolet salesmanager for Southern California, high powered.

Contemplating this writer as a dominick hen contemplates a worm, he said: "I sold you a Chevrolet touring car three years ago and I would like to sell you a new one. Your 1927 car still has a trade-in value."

He was told: "No new car needed. The 1927 Chevrolet, accustomed to bumps and ruts of the desert road, is going better than ever. Your president, Mr. Knudsen, would rather hear that than to have you sell a new car."

In five minutes, being able to talk faster than anybody can answer, Mr. Packer had arranged to give the old Chevrolet a coat of Duco, a set of Lovejoy shock absorbers, new seat covers, and had also sold a six-cylinder Chevrolet sedan, to be delivered in New York.

"That," said Fred Fisher, "is quite a salesman."

Mr. Packer is the gentleman who sold a car three years ago by advising his prospect: "Do not go from Los Angeles to San Francisco on the Southern Pacific night express train. Let me take you in a Chevrolet. I will beat the express by an hour."

The offer was declined; the car was bought.

Production's problems are solved. There remains the problem of distribution through good salesmanship. Hence this lengthy narrative.

Mr. Stimson, Secretary of State, speaking for this Government in Europe, broadcasts the opinion that submarines are "ruthless, inhuman instruments of warfare," and should be abolished.

Secretary Stimson represents sweet kindness.

Japan's representatives talk common sense.

Mr. Ginn and Mr. Dunning, "undercover men" for prohibition in Seattle, arranged with bootleggers "to complete a big whiskey deal," to get evidence.

The deal completed, Ginn, standing on the running board of the bootleg automobile snapped a handcuff on one bootlegger. He was knocked from

Snow and Gale Sweep Up From South; Shipping Crippled, Boats Hunt Refuge

High winds and heavy snow tonight and Friday are threatening Boston and all New England, the Weather Bureau announced today as storm warnings were posted along the entire New England coast.

From four to eight inches of snow was promised here, in which case it may be the heaviest snowfall of the winter.

Northward from Hatteras a storm accompanied by winds of gale force is sweeping rapidly, after having raised havoc in the South.

Snow, which started falling in the Hub shortly before 8 a. m. today, was first viewed as an insignificant storm by weather bureau experts, although it was covering all New England.

SHIPPING CRIPPLED

When the southern disturbance pointed this way and Washington flashed coastal warnings, a prediction was made of continued snow, possibly heavy, with slightly higher temperatures. The minimum temperature tonight is placed at 25.

Shipping schedules were jumbled on account of the snow and poor visibility. After the northeast storm warnings were posted from Sandy Hook to Eastport and heavy snow and gales were predicted, many coastwise vessels hung to their berths.

DOCK WORK HALTED

The tug Catawissa with barges for Plymouth and Boston in tow, reached Monomy Point on her trip from Philadelphia and turned back to Vineyard Haven for shelter.

The tug Samson, outward bound with an oil barge from Braintree, pulled into the lower harbor instead of to sea.

The "weather permitting" signs were invoked on all ships scheduled for late sailings, with officials stating they probably would not sail into the increasing storm.

Stevedore work on many of the docks was suspended, particularly where tea and other perishable cargoes were being unloaded.

Love Is Winner on Links

Former Helen Thomas Payson, Maine amateur golf champion, who today became bride of Philip Langdon Corson, Philadelphia banker, at a surprise wedding. It was announced last Sunday that they would wed in March.

Maine Golf Champion Is 'Surprise Bride'

Portland, Jan. 30—The golf links romance of Helen Thomas Payson, Maine amateur woman's champion and Philip Langdon Corson, Philadelphia banker, culminated today in a surprise wedding at the bride's home here.

It was announced only last Sunday that they would be married in March. No explanation of the advance in date was given.

They were wed quietly in the presence of a few relatives by Rev. Vincent Silliman of the First Parish Unitarian Church. Bolton Corson, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and Mrs. George Bradley, sister of the bride and also, a well-known golfer, was matron of honor.

The bride has been prominent in golf for five years, holding at different times the Canadian women's and Bermuda women's titles, as well as the State. Her mother, Helen T. Payson, has been a competitor in many tournaments.

She and Corson met on the links and their romance blossomed with caddies in attendance.

They will sail from New York on the Bremen and will honeymoon in France—with golf clubs.

House Leaders Plan Drastic Move to Force Action in Police Situation

House leaders made plans today to pour oil on waters whipped into a fury by the Garrett case, by recommending an investigation by Attorney-General Joseph E. Warner instead of by a legislative committee.

These plans were shaped by the Republican members of the House rules committee with the knowledge that they were confronted with a serious situation, having lost control of the first skirmish.

The House has [illegible] the leaders [illegible] police department [illegible] re-examination [illegible] rules committee [illegible] ever with Speaker Leverett Saltonstall before today's session began and the Speaker afterward informed Rep. Henry G. Shattuck, leader of the Republicans who want a probe of Garrett's pension, and Rep. Leo M. Birmingham, Democratic floor leader, of the plan agreed upon.

This plan was to recommend that the House adopt a substitute resolve giving the attorney-general the proper legal authority to investigate the ex-policeman's pension and clothing him with the power, which he now has not, to summon Garrett and others.

It was explained that Rep.

U. S. WINS BIG 5 TO CRUISER DISCUSSION

Submarines Second on Schedule; American "Yardstick" Plan Adopted by Parley

London, Jan. 30—The American delegation to the five-power naval conference scored a victory today when private negotiations resulted in adoption of the American contention that cruisers should be first considered when the parley actually gets to work.

From the start, the Americans have held out for premier consideration for the cruiser problem, but some of the other powers, particularly France and Italy, strenuously opposed this procedure.

Private negotiations which resulted in this outstanding concession to the American demands followed a plenary session of the conference at St. James' Palace, during which United States delegates had pretty much the right of way from start to finish.

The delegates agreed that when actual consideration is given to the various categories of warships, cruisers will be discussed first, then submarines, destroyers and battleships in the order named.

It is understood the Anglo-American discussion regarding battleships is now centering on the pro-

Hoover Named Again in Lobby Inquiry

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—President Hoover and his reported views on the tariff and other matters, a frequent subject in letters introduced into the Senate lobby committee record, were brought into a committee hearing again today in a communication which described the Chief Executive as being dissatisfied with the manner in which Atty.-Gen. Mitchell had handled oil conservation.

The letter, written by Horace B. Cheney, secretary of the Silk Association of America, a witness, to Ramsey Peugnet, secretary of Silk Association of America, said:

"I have been told from other sources that the President was disappointed at the outspoken manner in which Mitchell approached the oil conservation question and the fact that it left no loophole."

Most of Cheney's letter, however, was devoted to a description of an interview the witness said he had with the President and in which he asserted, Mr. Hoover expressed himself as being in favor of enlarging the powers of the Federal Trade Commission and favoring the

BODY SNAGGED 20 FT. UNDER WATER FOR 69 HOURS

Deep-Sea Men Risk Own Lives to Get Peter Trans Out of River Trap

Montreal, Jan. 30—The body of Peter Trans, deep sea diver trapped under the icy waters of the Outardes river for 69 hours, was brought to the surface today by two divers who risked their lives in the hope that he was still alive.

A message to the offices here of the Ontario Paper Company said Trans was dead when taken from the water. Previous messages had indicated there was hope for life.

For three days Trans had been caught on the spikes of a cofferdam which fouled his lines and held him fast.

RESCUE EFFORTS VAIN

Air had been pumped to him from the surface, but with no experienced divers at hand efforts to rescue him from the river bottom had been futile.

The two divers who brought his body to the surface today had flown to Pointe aux Outardes from Montreal and risked their lives under unfavorable weather conditions to cut away a part of the cofferdam and release his body.

News from the little manufacturing camp 200 miles north of Quebec was meager as it came over a lone telegraph circuit that is open only in the day time, so it was not known what the doctor's opinion was as to the date of Trans' death.

Hope had practically been abandoned last night after a laborer inexperienced at diving, had made a descent alongside Trans and said he got no response when he grasped Trans' hand.

DIVERS RISK LIVES

Quesnel Morency and Lewis Begin, the divers who risked their lives to recover the body, worked throughout the night under adverse conditions to free the body, held against the cofferdam by the spikes and the strong current.

The body was torn and bruised and one leg was smashed from being battered by the raging river against the cribbing.

Trans' heavy diver's uniform had been almost torn from his back by the terrific force of the river currents. He had been lodged in the cribbing, erected as a part of a dam for the Ontario Paper Co., since 10:30 a. m. Monday.

WORK IN SHIFTS

Rescuers had worked in eight-hour shifts during the three days of Trans' imprisonment, pumping air steadily. Hope that he might be rescued dwindled hourly.

Arvo Silyala, after making four trips, reported that Trans, after slipping from his diving ladder, had landed upright, his diving suit caught on a nail so that he would not dare to move for fear of ripping it.

As the hours passed, the water had drawn Trans into the dam framework. At first it was hoped the log from which the nail protruded could be sawed away; but before work could be started Trans had

PARLEY ADOPTS U. S. PLAN TO DECIDE ON NAVAL YARDSTICK

COMPROMISE ON TONNAGE OFFERED

posal that they reduce their battleship fleets to 15 each instead of 18 as provided in the Washington treaty, as well as reducing the tonnage and calibre of guns of eventual replacements.

U. S. WINS ISSUE

The entire question of how to measure naval power—whether by total tons, or by tons in separate categories—a problem which has vexed naval limitation negotiations for years—was put by the naval conference into the hands of a special committee.

Secretary of the Navy Adams and Ambassador Hugh Gibson were designated after the session at the American members of this special committee.

This plan of treatment was adopted on motion of Secretary Stimson, American delegation head, at a full session of the conference permeated by a general willingness to compromise, but marked nevertheless by plain reiterations of diverse viewpoints.

Mr. Stimson's proposal was accepted unanimously, although Italy gave notice she felt her claim for parity with France should have had precedence and that she would accept the decisions regarding limitation methods only on condition that she have a day in court later.

FRENCH COMPROMISE.

The Italian dissent was presented in pungent phrases by Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, known by everyone to speak the will and determination of Premier Mussolini. He declared that while the whole parity question might be left aside, Italy was willing that the physical terms of limiting navies be considered.

The French compromise plan was presented by Andre Tardieu, the arrangement he proposed permitting shifting of a limited extent of tonnage from one class to another to satisfy national needs within the total tonnage allowed. Neither he nor any other of this morning's speakers got down to cases or mentioned figures.

Hugh S. Gibson, American ambassador to Brussels and veteran of the abortive Geneva conference, detailed to the conferees how the United States had always stood for definite limits in each category, but now, not to stand in the way of negotiations nor to impose its will on other nations, he was willing to consider the French compromise.

WON'T GIVE BRITAIN EDGE

Under Stimson's proposal, the original plan of a steering committee of two delegates from each country was scrapped. In private discussions the preponderance of British representation on such a committee had been raised sharply, in view of the presence here of representatives of all the dominions.

Private conferences were resumed as soon as the session ended. One of the most conspicuous was between Premier Tardieu and Col. Stimson, at which M. Tardieu further expanded the French compromise plan. Col. Stimson and Reiji Wakatsuki, of the Japanese delegation, also had a short talk.

Col. Stimson's resolution said:

"Resolved, that the questions of method and procedure included under the heading and title of general questions in the agenda now under discussion by the chiefs of the delegations, and more particularly the suggestion of the French and British governments as to limitation by global tonnage or by categories, and including the method and procedure suggested by the French government, be referred to a committee appointed by the delegations represented in the conference, with directions to examine carefully possibilities and probable effects of such methods with respect to the fleets of said respective nations and to report their views to the conference through the chiefs of their respective delegations."

After the adjournment Mr. MacDonald said an agreement on methods of measuring navies now appeared measurably nearer. He added that despite what some might think, he was gratified with the results thus far obtained.

He hinted actual imposition of limitation might be reached by dividing the nations into two groups, first, those with small navies desire only defense, and second the five large powers all represented here.

He was asked how the conferees work best could be linked with the League of Nations and he answered that Great Britain had no objection to the league's endorsing any agreement reached at London. Great Britain, he said, was willing to discuss the special situation of nations not members of the league.

Parley Resume Will Be Broadcast in U. S. Tonight

Vernon Bartlett, an official on British governmental affairs, will speak for 15 minutes over the National chain, starting at 5:05 o'clock.

The Columbia system's correspondent, Frederick William Wile, will give a resume of the conference starting at 6:15 o'clock.

Dawes, Robinson and Reed "Called Down" for Loud Talk

London, Jan. 30 (INS)—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes and Senators Joseph T. Robinson and David A. Reed were "called down" today by a British foreign office official at St. James' Palace for talking too loud.

During the translation of Premier Andre Tardieu's speech before the plenary session in Queen Anne's drawing room, the three American delegates remained in an adjoining chamber with newspapermen. They spoke so loudly the official was forced to ask them politely to lower their voices in order that correspondents who had work to do could hear the translation on a loud speaker.

It was stated that the girl had been traced to New York where she was believed to have eloped.

lantic and Gulf coasts brought winter to the South again today.

Small buildings were uprooted in Mississippi, and as the cold wave swept eastward snow reached a depth of nearly nine inches at Bristol, Va. A tornado hit two Florida counties, killed a woman and damaged property.

Off Wilmington, N. C., rough seas for 12 hours buffeted a tug boat carrying seven men before the craft reached a village south of that city. Three fishermen were believed to have drowned when their schooner capsized off the Mississippi coast.

A fall of three and one-half inches of snow in Atlanta broke a 13-year record. Snow fell in Vicksburg, Miss., covered the ground at Birmingham, Ala., and blanketed Johnson City, Tenn., with eight inches. A six-inch snow held a bus party of 100 at Franklyn, N. C. Snow accompanied high winds throughout Virginia.

Heavy Snowstorm Halts Traffic in the Capital

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—A driving snow storm that almost brought traffic to a standstill today failed to keep the President of the United States from reaching his office on time—9 o'clock.

A total of a foot of snow fell.

More fortunate than most of the city's workers, Herbert Hoover had little more than a block to go from the White House to his temporary office in the State-War Departments building and by using an automobile he arrived without getting his feet wet.

Members of Congress and other officers of the government, however, had more difficulty. Taxicabs, usually thick on the city's streets, seemed to have vanished. To those looking for them, all that were seen carried passengers and to obtain a "vacant" was an achievement.

The snow, which by mid-morning had reached a depth of about nine inches, still was falling without sign of abatement and recalled to many memories of the Knickerbocker Theater disaster just eight years ago this week. Heavy snow broke the roof of the theater and caused the death of 98 people.

The snow was the heaviest since the blizzard of 1926, and gave promise of equaling if not surpassing that mark.

40-Degree Drop in N. H.; Mercury at 20 Below Zero

Temperatures dropped precipitately over northern New Hampshire today. Extreme declines of 35 to 40 degrees from yesterday morning's readings were registered in several places.

It was 16 degrees below zero at Woodsville against 20 above 24 hours previously. Groveton reported 20 below in contrast to 15 above, while Berlin, which had 16 above yesterday, saw 18 below today.

At St. Johnsbury, Vt., the coldest weather of the year was experienced as the temperature dropped to 20 degrees below zero in the early morning.

'STOLEN' TIRES FIGURE IN CHIEF'S CASE

Plymouth Selectman Involved in Testimony in Plymouth Ouster Case

Brockton, Jan. 30—Testimony that present Selectman George L. Anderson of Plymouth paid two boys to take two tires from the front piazza of Dr. Walter D. Shurtleff to the store of Anderson in 1918 was given today in the hearing on the petition for reinstatement of former Police Chief John Armstrong of Plymouth.

William Lowry, 23, of Plymouth, testified that he and a boy named McCarthy were paid by Anderson to get the tires, but he could not recall what disposition was made of them.

Later Chief Armstrong applied for a warrant charging Anderson with larceny of the tires, and the former police head contends that this incident with others, caused the antagonism which resulted in his dismissal after Anderson became a selectman.

Under examination by Atty. John H. Devins, counsel for Armstrong, young Lowry testified that one week ago Selectman Anderson went to him and warned him he would better be careful and tell the truth when he testified or he would get into trouble.

Most of the day's session was devoted to the examination of Plymouth town records as far as they related to the police department.

Elmer R. Hanlon, clerk of the board of selectmen, was on the stand reading from the records. The famous "Empty Bottle" hearing of last July, cropped up again in the records, in this case Armstrong was taken to task by Anderson because an empty bottle from the police station got into the possession of a barber.

The courtroom was crowded as usual, with a number of witnesses waiting to testify in behalf of the deposed police chief.

using of invoice valuation as a basis of arriving at tariff duties.

"He expressed himself quite freely as being in favor of using invoice value in the United States as a basis both for the tariff commission's formula and the assessment of ad valorem duties," Cheney wrote.

"The President also expressed approval of enlarging the powers of the Federal Trade Commission with relation to unfair competition believing that this would correct many of the abuses of business," the letter said.

Cheney asserted in the letter, however, that he did not approve of invoice value, asserting it was better than foreign valuation, but not as good as the proposal for United States valuation.

Cheney also criticised the tariff commission, asserting that some of its personnel had not always been entirely unprejudiced.

Abolition of Battleships, For Subs and Planes, Should Be U. S. Policy

THE things which the United States should advocate at the London disarmament conference are:

FIRST—Abandonment of battleships entirely. They are expensive to construct and easily subject to destruction by aeroplanes and submarines. They are ineffective for defense and the United States is interested primarily in defense.

SECOND—Retention of submarines without limitation, as submarines are inexpensive to construct and operate and are effective for defensive warfare.

THIRD—Development of aeroplane carriers without limitation as to numbers or size, so that any attack upon this country may be repelled far away from our shores, thus protecting our great coast cities from destruction.

FOURTH—An adequate and appropriate cruiser fleet to protect our great and growing trade, and to prevent our commerce from being driven from the seas as it has been in the past, even though our position in European wars was neutral; and a commercial fleet capable of being transformed into cruisers or airplane carriers in time of war.

FINALLY—A distinct definition of the rights of neutrals and complete exemption of foodstuffs from the list of contraband, in accordance with President Hoover's inspiring and civilizing policy of relieving women and children and non-combatants from the savagery of modern warfare and the "frightfulness" of starvation.

Garrett Probe by Warner Is Planned

Roland D. Sawyer's order calling for an investigation by the attorney-general "did not have the properties to bring about the result designed."

If the House rejects this recommendation, the leaders intend to fight it out in an effort to administer an out-and-out defeat to the proponents of an investigation.

A rumor that Garrett would fail to submit himself to a re-examination as ordered, and thereby relinquish his pension, was discussed by legislators as they convened for today's session.

Should he do so, there would be little chance of a police department trial, which legislative opponents of a probe have declared was the proper means of handling the matter.

Garrett retired on a city pension as physically unfit after he was removed as leader of the liquor raiding squad and ordered to put on a uniform and walk a beat in the West End.

Rep. Sawyer Attacks Drys in Garrett Case

Failure of the dry organization to comment on the controversy over former Lieutenant Oliver B. Garrett was denounced by Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Wars, clergyman, before the legislative committee on legal affairs today.

In appearing in behalf of two of his bills, one of which would give the attorney-general $2,000,000 for the enforcement of the Baby Volstead Act, Rep. Sawyer said if the drys had any faith in the act they would "appear in droves" to support this bill.

His other bill calls for an amendment of the Baby Volstead law so as to permit the transportation of one quart of liquor.

"Why are the dry organizations so quiet on the Garrett matter?" he asked. "Do they wink one eye to bootlegging and bootlegging? There is something wrong in Denmark when we get no support in the enforcement of the Baby Volstead Act. Rep. Sawyer said if the drys had any faith in the act they would "appear in droves" to support this bill.

His other bill calls for an amendment of the Baby Volstead law so as to permit the transportation of one quart of liquor.

"Why are the dry organizations so quiet on the Garrett matter?" he asked. "Do they wink one eye to bootlegging and bootlegging? There is something wrong in Denmark when we get no support in the enforcement of the Baby Volstead Act. Rep. Sawyer said if the drys had any faith in the act they would "appear in droves" to support this bill.

IN ATTACK ON DRYS

"This $2,000,000 appropriation bill was filed by me as a test of the good faith of the dry organizations of the State. I wonder if the drys have confidence in the Baby Volstead Act? Do they really want it enforced? Or are they playing about with it simply as a rallying cry to get backing, financial and otherwise?

"I am confident that if the drys thought the act worth anything they would be here in droves to support this demand for an adequate appropriation to enforce the law.

"No town or city or the State even has ever appropriated a cent to enforce this law yet dry organizations are ready to spend thousands to fight the repeal of a law that has no teeth."

Representative Sawyer pointed out that 16 distinguished Boston citizens had demanded an investigation of the Garrett case, which he contended was directly related to the enforcement of prohibition "If this committee is in earnest," he said, "it will approve my appropriation. I believe that strict enforcement of prohibition will lead to a repeal of the 18th amendment.

"If the drys insist on enforcing the law, let this committee and the Legislature of Massachusetts be honest and get behind this bill to appropriate money to enforce the Baby Volstead Act."

When Rep. Sawyer referred to the letter from the 16 prominent citizens, Rep. Clemons of Wakefield, member of the committee asked:

"Can you see any connection between the Garrett matter and this bill?"

"Yes," replied Sawyer, "this committee knows the dry organizations are supposed to be champions of the police and strong for the enforcement of the liquor law. Garrett rests under suspicion of not having performed the law."

The legislative discussion of the Garrett case has centered public attention upon his appearance at the two Keith theaters Friday at midnight for the Troy benefit fund.

He will discuss Boston police matters, and may make a statement about the present controversy.

With two members reserving their rights, the committee reported adversely on the two Sawyer petitions.

Killer, in Terror, Faints During Plea

Jersey City, Jan. 30—The harrowing picture of an electrocution painted by Edward M. Salley in his plea to a jury in the Jersey City court to spare the life of his client, Edward Maher, caused the accused man to leap to his feet, screaming with terror, and to fall in a faint.

Three other persons in the court room were overcome with emotion, and Judge Kinkead adjourned the trial until Maher had recovered.

ILEANA BARES 'HAPPIEST OF LOVE MATCHES'

Predeal, Rumania, Jan. 30 (AP)—Princess Ileana, 21-year-old daughter of Queen Marie, today personally announced her engagement to Count Alexander of Hochberg, second son of the Prince of Pless.

In an enthusiastic speech to music and female students at a celebration here the princess said her's was "the happiest love match."

The princess added, humorously, that "the attachment was the result of a mishap of fate."

She promised to continue to watch over charities and the girls' home which she had created. A committee of the students later handed a gold plaque to Count Hochberg, her fiance, in recognition of his sportsmanlike qualities.

Count Hochberg is second son of the Prince of Pless, head of a small German principality, and is 25 years old. His engagement to Princess Ileana has been rumored occasionally for several months, but official announcement of it was delayed while some way was sought which would allow the princess upon her marriage to keep her title of princess.

been drawn in so that it would have been impossible for anyone except an expert diver to get him from above.

The airplane arrived after a heart-breaking journey. The Ontario Paper Company had rushed an airplane from Montreal, picked up two divers at Quebec.

It took off for Pointe Aux Outardes, the French Canadian village at the river bank, but was forced down by a snowstorm at Rimouski, only 25 miles from the city.

While signal fires blazed all night in the village, workers at Rimouski shovelled out a runway through the snow. The plane took off at 9:30 a. m. today and flying conditions that its pilot lost the way, and the two divers, who had never done any diving gear since they left Quebec, were landed at Penticost, lower down the St. Lawrence, from where they came here.

Trans was 38 years old, a native of Jutland. He came to Canada in 1926, leaving behind a wife and two sons, Eigel and Peter.

For the last 24 hours Mrs. Trans was being advised by cable of the progress of the rescue work.

Just before Trans submerged for the last time at 10:30 a. m. Monday he had come to the surface and asked that his ladder be moved. A few minutes later he reported his work going well, and then—suddenly—his signals ceased.

CHICAGO BISHOP ANDERSON DEAD

few days after he had returned from an eastern trip.

Mrs. Anderson and their four daughters were called to the bedside early today when the end appeared imminent.

The passing of Bishop Anderson leaves his Chicago church without a head and his diocese without a bishop. An election for coadjutor bishop was called yesterday, scheduled for the diocesan convention here next Tuesday.

A special meeting of the House of Bishops will be necessary to choose a new presiding bishop, since no provision is made for an automatic succession.

Bishop Anderson had been elected at such a meeting last Nov. 13 in Washington, after the death of Bishop John Gardner Murray, Oct. 3.

Hartford, Ct., Jan. 30 (INS)—A Bridgeport man was arrested for refusal to pay his taxes. He was brought to the county jail, and as customary, ordered to take a bath.

He refused. Jail officials ordered that if he did not comply with the regulations, guards would compel him to do so.

N. E. DIFFERENCES WITH SOUTH AND WEST VANISH, SAYS LAMONT

CAPITAL AND LABOR IN ACCORD

Commerce Chief Tells N. E. Council Delegation of Happier Times for All

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—Secretary Lament today told a delegation from the New England Council that past "irreconcilable differences" between the industrial East and the agricultural South and West have been eradicated.

The delegation's leader, Redfield Proctor, of Proctor, Vermont, had said that business in 1930 should compare favorably in turnover and profit with the average for the last three years and that New England was "interested in having and holding the good will of our neighbors in other sections from whose progress we are continually learning much."

Lamont replied that "we no longer recognize as unsolvable the problems which arise between" the East and West and capital and labor.

"Their interests," he said, "are not antagonistic. Labor and capital are interdependent and very largely dependent upon management. Agriculture must sell its products to the workers in industry, and the products of industry must be sold to the farmer."

RELATIONS WITH U. S.

Secretary Lamont in welcoming the delegation, asserted there is now a vast difference in the attitude of government and business toward each other as compared with the attitude years ago.

"We are living in a happier time," he said, "when the relations between the government and business are on a sounder, happier, more constructive basis. This may be said of relations between different industries and between the large forces within industry itself."

"It is not long," he continued, "since we heard a good deal about the conflicting interests of industrial New England and the agricultural south, later the industrial east and the agricultural west, and for a good many years the irreconcilable differences between capital and labor."

The secretary urged a continuation of the co-operation between government and business, labor and capital and all other of the various sections of national like as a key to prosperity and progress.

GOOD TIMES AHEAD

Lamont was told by Proctor that the New England States had been affected by a business recession following the stock market deflation.

The textile, metal working and construction industries, delegates said, suffered most from the depression.

Proctor asserted the "council should not be thought of as an advocate of sectionalism."

"We are trying to lead our own people to better performance in their respective economic fields," he said, "believing that our future depends chiefly upon ourselves."

Those attending the conference from New England in addition to Proctor were:

John S. Lawrence of Boston, Henry F. Merrill of Portland, John G. Winant of Concord, Levi F. Smith of Burlington, Frederick H. Payne of Greenfield, Henry D. Sharpe of Providence, Henry Trumbull of Plainville, Ct.; Harry B. Lewis of Dayleville, R. I.; John F. Tinsley of Worcester, William A. Harren of Crawford, Conn., N. H.; Philip C. Wentworth of Providence, A. Lincoln Filene of Boston, Dudley Harmon and Robert E. Huse of Boston.

CALLS UPON HOOVER

The delegation after leaving the office of the secretary called at the President Hoover and presented to him an outline of the survey made by the council on Jan. 24.

Dudley Harmon, executive vice-president of the council, said the President had been informed of efforts being made to effect throughout New England the objectives of the Washington business stabilization conferences called by the President.

Mr. Hoover was informed that there were definite expectations, Harmon said, of material improvement in New England business conditions in the near future.

'Dean' of Swindlers Held in $50,000 Fraud

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 29 (AP)—Charles (Count) Severs, described by police as the "dean" of American confidence men, again has run afoul of the law.

The dapper white-haired racketeer is to be given a hearing here Friday on a charge of defrauding Chauncey Barber of Lansing, Mich., of $50,000.

Moran, police say, has a criminal record dating back more than 25 years.

What Fire Did to East Boston Shipyard

Blazing frame structure in which the spectacular fire at the Atlantic Works, East Boston, began. The flames spread to an adjoining brick building, threatened ships tied up in drydock and piers, and for a time it was feared might wipe out a tenement district in the vicinity. As the flames broke through the roof, the entire harbor was bathed in the red glow until framework crumbled. Firemen bent all their efforts to preventing a spread of the blaze to a nearby building in which gasoline was stored. Two gasoline explosions rocked the district.

200 FAMILIES ROUTED BY FIRE IN DRYDOCK

Six Steamers Are Saved in Spectacular Blaze; Loss Is Estimated at $100,000

A complete estimate of the damage resulting from the four-alarm fire in the old drydock at the Atlantic Works on Border st., East Boston had not been completed early today, but unofficial estimates were that it would probably reach $100,000.

The fire, one of the most spectacular in years on the Boston water front, was fanned by the strong east wind which swept the harbor, and the leaping flames threatened six ships tied up at the works, including one recently purchased by the Russian government from the United States Shipping Board.

Two hundred families in nearby tenements were ordered to leave as a precautionary measure, and sailors at the Charlestown Navy Yard were held in readiness to aid the fire-fighters if the need arose.

The two-story wooden building in which the blacksmith shop was located was completely razed.

During the height of the fire, six barrels of gasoline exploded, and the detonations rocked the district and caused much apprehension.

City fire boats, and apparatus were aided in fighting the flames by apparatus rushed from the Charlestown Navy Yard.

Two steamers, one of them the Soviet-owned vessel, were in the new drydocks short distance away. Gangs of workmen moved other ships out of the immediate zone of danger.

Dying Racketeer Names His Assailants; 21 Hurt in Two Bombings

Chicago, Jan. 30—Two dead, one dying and 1 injured stood today as the toll of the worst "night in Chicago" the city has ever known.

From one of the bomb explosions a single-story building stood in ruins.

In what police believed would be a deathbed revelation, Johnnie Genaro, gangster and racketeer into whose body eight bullets were pumped by would-be assassins, named James Belcastro, indicted bomber, as the man who put him "on the spot."

NAMES MEN WHO SHOT

By "squealing," Genaro violated the gangsters' code of silence that has held through years of warfare, and police said his revelation of the identity of his alleged assailants practically sealed his death warrant anyhow.

Although Genaro said Jim Belcastro was the man who put him "on the spot," he declared Louis de Lucca and Angelo Lucci were the men who actually fired the shots.

Belcastro, arrested at his home, denied all knowledge of the shooting and then refused to talk further.

Genaro, racketeer and leader in the "Bloody 20th" ward, was ambushed at Wentworth and 23d sts. Genaro probably will die.

Two hours later the bodies of Barney J. Mitchell treasurer of the Checker Cab Company, and a Checker Cab Company, and George Jackson, driver, were found in a cab near Farwell and Ridge aves.

Doctors found eight bullets in Mitchell's body. Jackson was shot through the head.

BOMB INJURES 13.

Police theory today in the taxicab murders was that internal strife had prompted the killing of Mitchell, the Checker treasurer, but that Jackson, the driver, was murdered on the theory that "dead men tell no tales." Mitchell was found in the cab of the taxi, kneeling, as if he had been pleading with his killers to spare him. The motor and meter of the cab were still running.

The sixth bomb explosion in 24 hours wrecked the home of John Culotta, but no one was in the building at the time.

Thirteen persons, on the street and in adjoining buildings, were injured in various ways, however, in the blast.

Police blamed extortionists for the blowup, stating that Culotta reported having received five letters from Black Hand workers, demanding $5000. He ignored the demands.

EIGHT INJURED

Eight persons, including three women, were injured when a bomb exploding in the building at 2154 Southport ave. lifted the structure off its foundations and dropped it back again.

It was the fifth bomb explosion in the city in 24 hours and started a night of terror that appalled even Chicago.

A woman, living in an apartment oppiste the building, was rendered unconscious when a radio loud speaker was hurtled across the room, striking her on the head.

Two other women entering a building two doors away were cut by flying glass, and tenants in neighboring buildings were compelled to seek other shelter for the night because of broken windows which let in the cold.

At first, Johnnie Genaro laughed at efforts of police to learn the name of his assailants.

"They were two guys that wore pants and hats and coats," he said. "Write that down and don't bother me."

AGENTS SMASH R. I. RUM RING

Providence, Jan. 30—What federal agents declare to be the biggest rum-ring here since prohibition, was blocked in its operations today when agents seized a truckload of liquor and arrested two men.

According to charges, Samuel Davidson, proprietor of a Bucklin st. garage, one of the men taken, has conducted a liquor clearing house for weeks.

Liquor was landed from ships at various points on Narragansett Bay and taken to the garage for distribution, according to the agents.

Backers of the ring are Providence and Boston men, the agents declared. Guido Carbone and Hartford ave., Providence, driver of a truck, was also arrested.

On the truck were six packing cases filled with liquor.

Joseph L. Treglia, one of the agents, said that he expects to obtain indictments against eight men as a result of the capture.

Du Pont Sponsors Poll on Delaware Dry Law

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 30 (AP)—To obtain the sentiment of Delaware onthe present State law for prohibition enforcement, Pierre S. du Pont, millionaire of this city, is sponsoring a movement to poll the adult population of this state.

At a meeting du Pont said 112,000 questionnaires would be placed in the mails addressed to all the known adults in the state asking each to vote yes or no on the following question:

"Do you favor the repeal of the Klair law?"

'NOT GUILTY' IN BUTLER CASE

Newport, R. I., Jan. 30 (AP)—Alderman James P. Cozzens and Eugene Spinney of this city, and Harold Sheffers of Providence, were found not guilty today of conspiracy to assault Maurice J. Butler, Newport physician.

Cozzens and Sheffers were also found not guilty of assault. Spinney had previously pleaded guilty of assaulting the physician during a party at the physician's home participated in by young women, and paid a fine of $125.

Immediately upon close of the criminal case, counsel for Dr. Butler started suit for $5000 against each of the three men.

Ex-Star of the Follies Chorus Dies a Suicide

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Bobby Storey, one-time London barmaid who became one of the highest paid chorus girls on Broadway, was found dead here with a nickel in her purse. Police listed her death as a suicide. She was 24 years old.

Her body clad in black lace pajamas, was found lying across a bed in the studio apartment of Raymond F. Holland, a landscape artist, in East 38th st. A jet of the gas log was open and the apartment was filled with gas.

Holland found the body when he returned to the apartment after an absence of two weeks, spent in a sanitarium for treatment for a nervous disorder. He said he had loaned the use of his apartment to Miss Storey before leaving.

Miss Storey, who in private life was Mrs. Robert E. Foster, wife of an English actor, was discovered by Andre Charlot, producer of Charlot's Revue, working as a bar maid in a "pub" near London. Struck by her beauty, he engaged her for his chorus and brought her to this country in 1924.

In 1925 she was a member of Ziegfeld's Follies company, then appeared in "Yours Truly," "Rio Rita," Earl Carroll's "Vanities" and in "Pleasure Bound."

Her last engagement was in Shubert's "Duchess of Chicago,"

Fights for Child

JOAN BENNETT SUES EX-MATE

His bride of a little more than a month, the former Miss Polly Perkins, daughter of W. D. Perkins, Seattle banker, is made co-defendant.

The actress said she was seeking only support for the daughter. Miss Bennett and Fox were married in London September 15, 1928, and divorced two years later in Los Angeles.

The actress declared Fox had ignored a Los Angeles court order to support the child.

The name of the second Mrs. Fox was joined to the complaint because part of the $1275 the actress says is owing became due subsequent to the second marriage and must be paid out of community property.

BIG GARMENT STRIKE VOTED

New York, Jan. 30 (INS)—Strike next week by 45,000 dressmakers, members of the International Ladies Gargent Workers' Union, appeared definite today with final tabulation of the vote showing only 47 opposed to a walkout.

Demands include $5 wage increase, 10 per cent increase in piece work and re-establishing the 40-hour week.

Enters Room Just in Time to Be Killed by 'John Law'

JAMES S. WHITE, a California game warden, was shot to death in the lobby of the Mattos Hotel at Castella, Cal., October 13, 1923, during a liquor raid by John Vail, federal prohibition officer from San Francisco.

Albert F. Ross, county attorney of Shasta County, Cal., made these comments in a report to the Washington Herald on August 15, 1926.

"White was a highly respected and popular game warden, but not an enthusiast on prohibition, as he used liquor himself. He was a friend of Jack Mattos, who was reputed to be selling liquor.

"Vail, with some local liquor officers, was searching Mattos' place and was treating Mattos rough when White entered and protested the rough treatment."

Ross, commenting on Vail's acquittal three years later, said:

"Public of Shasta County is still not satisfied about this case."

Pastor Shoots 2 and Self Over Gossip

Mendota, Ill., Jan. 30 (INS)—Gossiping among his flock was blamed today for an argument last night which ended when the Rev. J. A. Wilson shot his church janitor and the janitor's wife, according to police, and then turned his pistol on himself.

All three were taken to the hospital with serious wounds.

Rev. Mr. Wilson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, went to the home of his janitor, Amos Elliott, and demanded a letter which he said caused the gossip, according to police.

The letter was understood to have been written by the minister to a widow who is a member of the church. Although the letter itself was innocent, Wilson thought Elliott was using it to defame him.

Elliott surrendered the letter then attempted to take it back, according to police. Drawing a revolver, Wilson shot his janitor below the heart and turned the weapon on Mrs. Elliott, wounding her in the chest.

Oil Blast Hero Dies for Others

Fresno, Cal., Jan. 30 (AP)—Four explosions showered 25,000 gallons of gasoline from boilers over the absorption plant of the Petroleum Securities Company near Coalinga today, killing Charles L. Phillips, Los Angeles oil worker; injuring three others and causing damage estimated at $500,000.

Phillips died trying to save others. Warned by the first blast, he shouted to the engineer to shut off his fires and prevent flames sweeping the recently completed plant. Phillips fell as he tried to shut off the flow of gasoline from the huge stills.

SAYS CHANGE OF POLICY NEEDED IN PALESTINE

If peace is to be maintained in Palestine between Arab and Jew, Great Britain will have to interpret the Balfour declaration to mean not a national state for the Jews, but a national homeland within the state.

This Great Britain will do in the near future, for her situation in Palestine is precarious and she is menaced by millions of Moslems on all sides, Philip Ireland, lecturer and historian, stated to Bay State clubwomen attending the first international relations conference of the State Federation of Women's Clubs.

While the policy of Great Britain was pro-Jewish, the attitude of the British officials in Palestine, save that of the high chancellor, was pro-Arab, he declared.

Reviewing the recent Arab-Jew clashes in Palestine, Ireland declared emphatically that religion was not the source of the trouble and that the Wailing Wall incident was but a blind for the whole uprising. It was an excuse for the political and economic struggle and unrest of the Arabs, he said.

"Great Britain is in trouble. She is surrounded by Moslems who are claiming justice for their brethren. She must tread a pretty even path," Ireland declared. "Don't blame the bloodshed and slaughter and riots in Palestine on Great Britain as so much on her officials in Palestine."

ARABS GAINED

Ireland told of receiving a letter from a friend in Palestine who lamented the way the British handled the situation.

"When you have an Englishman admitting that his own country is wrong, you have something," Ireland mused.

While he offered the theory about a new interpretation of the Balfour declaration only as his own opinion, he forecast that Great Britain would so act if she would come out of the entanglement unscathed.

Ireland's sympathies were almost completely with the Jews in Palestine. He granted their right to be there. He said that personally he didn't blame the Jews for looking down upon the Arabs in Palestine as culturally inferior to them.

"The Arabs have profited by the coming of the Jew into Palestine," Ireland pointed out. "The Jew raised the standard of living and created opportunities the likes of which the Arabs had never enjoyed. The Jews forced the landlord Arabs into bettering the wage and living conditions of their charges, and because of this ill feeling arose.

"The people of the East want nationalism and Britain is afraid of it. Throughout the entire situation the government in Palestine has acted strangely. And now we find the end has not justified the means.

BUILT UP COUNTRY

"The Jews went into the country backed by American money and British power, bought machinery, tilled the fields, cultivated the land, drained the sewerage. They did marvels. The Arabs should have been glad.

"The Jew brought initiative energy, money possibilities, but the Arab couldn't see it that way. Today Britain has a mighty hard road to travel. She promised two peoples practically the same thing and she must make good to both."

Mrs. Charles E. French, department chairman of international relations, opened the meeting, welcoming the clubwomen to the conference. She derided the belief of some clubwomen that the subject of international relations belonged to the government, was too dry and not fit for women's club programs.

"We want our clubwomen to be well informed so that they might stand behind any great movement of the government," she said. "The subject of dress is not alone interesting to the dressmaker, but to those who wear them. And so with international relations. If the government gives us old-fashioned patterns we want to be able to suggest better ones.

"Of the great foundation of public opinion, 141,000 clubwomen in the state ought to be able to form an intelligent basis."

MRS. PACKARD SPEAKS

Mrs. Axel A. Packard, state president of the Federation and advisor to the department, spoke briefly, urging the women to understand the principles underlying the whole subject of international relations that on such a canvass they might sweep a firm and wide brush of intelligent understanding.

If President Hoover could go about and see the clubwomen in their conferences and at their meetings wisely weighing the pronouncements of speakers and studying and considering carefully all that concerns the government of this country and the world, he would be encouraged, Mrs. Packard predicted.

Miss Alice Stone Blackwell read from her book of translations of Spanish-American poetry.

Miss Harriet Whittier, speaking on "America's Place in World Organization," said she measured a great man by his ability to change his mind.

An appreciable response turned out for Mrs. French's conference. The first conference of the department, it mirrored the growing interest and concern of Massachusetts women in the foreign policies of our country.

WOLLASTON WOMAN'S CLUB

Next Tuesday is to be Child Welfare Day, and speakers have been secured who will discuss various phases of the question. The guest of honor and principal speaker will be Mrs. Albert Bradley Carter, chairman of the Child Welfare Department of the State Federation. Miss Helen Fowler, superintendent of the Florence Crittendon Home, is in charge of the Public Health and Child Welfare Committee. Mrs. Frank H. Williamson is chairman.

On Thursday, February 6 at 10 a. m., at the home of the dramatic chairman, Mrs. Wilfred C. Funnell, 40 Wollaston ave., the fifth lecture in the course on dramatic art will be held. Miss Colette Rossel Humphrey is the instructor.

KING ALFONSO TOOK REVENGE ON DE RIVERA

London, Jan. 30 (AP)—The London Daily Express today, under the heading "King Alfonso's Revenge," printed an article by its special correspondent at Madrid, H. J. Greenwald, purporting to give the "secret history of the present Spanish upheaval."

The writer says: "King Alfonso accepted Gen. Primo de Rivera until one day about three years ago when there was a dramatic scene in the war office.

"The king had motored from San Sebastian to Madrid, but when he was going through mountains a posse of artillery officers held up the royal cars. The king heard their grievances concerning delayed promotions and promised them redress.

"When he arrived in Madrid he confronted his dictator. There was a stormy meeting and the dictator said that unless the monarch accepted his advice, he, Primo De Rivera, would declare himself the first president of the first Spanish republic.

"The king accepted the ultimatum, and since had bided his time. Now he has once again obtained the upper hand."

Heavily Armed Guards on Patrol in Madrid

Madrid, Jan. 30 (AP)—Heavily armed squads of police patrolled Madrid today to curb republican demonstrations by students or others opposed to the new premier-designate, Lieut-Gen. Donaso Berenguer.

Possibly in view of the elaborate precautions the city was quieter than at any time since the resignation of Gen. Primo De Rivera, for six years dictator.

Scout Honored

BOSTON SCOUTS WIN HARMON AWARDS

Three Greater Boston boys and one from Lawrence were among the 52 Boy Scouts who have been awarded the Harmon Scout Scholarship by the National Court of Honor, meeting in New York.

The winners were selected because of unusual services to their home communities, for outstanding attainments and for high achievements as Eagle Scouts.

The Greater Boston boys are Russell L. Snow, 18, of 15 Lincoln st., Arlington; Everett A. Golway of 174 Summer st., Waltham, and John L. Mahan, jr., of 28 Arlington st., Hyde Park. The Lawrence scout honored is Roland Becker of 109 Perry st.

Besides the honor attached to the award, the Harmon Scholarship established three years ago by the late William E. Harmon, carries a cash gift of $100 and eligibility to obtain loans for college expenses from the Harmon Foundation.

Snow is the son of Ernest A. Snow, architect. He joined the Boy Scouts as a tenderfoot December 8, 1923, and became an Eagle Scout March 14, 1927. He has received the bronze palm and gold palm.

After careful consideration of the Eagle Scouts, the Court of Honor committee of the Boston council, with Elliot N. Jones as chairman, selected Mahan.

John L. Mahan began his scout career in 1925 as a tenderfoot in Troop No. 8, Milton, transferring during the year to Troop No. 6, Dorchester. While with the latter troop Mahan progressed, step by step, through the various ranks until he won the Eagle Scout award and now possesses merit badges in 44 subjects, having been awarded the Eagle badge in 1928.

SEEKS TO TEST CONVICT BILL

Concord, N. H., Jan. 30 (AP)—The Hawes-Cooper bill, passed by Congress, under which the labor of prisoners cannot be employed after 1934 in the production of commodities for other than state use was denounced today by Levin J. Chase, secretary of the trustees of the New Hampshire state prison.

Chase desires to test the constitutionality of the act in the United States Supreme court.

Chase said the act would destroy a system which "has proven itself to be of advantage to the convicts and to the state."

Paris' Shortest Skirt 13 Inches Off Floor

Paris, Jan. 30 (AP)—A representative of a New York dress manufacturer today gave the Associated Press the "yardstick" he was cabling to his firm with which to standardize the length of women's dresses during the coming season.

He said it was too early to generalize yet, inasmuch as the fashion shows of the French couturiers would not be completed until early next week. However, it seemed to him that sport skirts should be about 13 inches from the floor.

Street skirts will be about the same length. Afternoon dresses will same length. Afternoon dresses will floor while evening skirts will be parallel with the ankle bone or just clearing the toes.

The same stylist expected a compromise on the waistline, with the silhouette straighish, if not even pulled in, to tight normal.

WOMAN BRINGS $350,000 SUIT

Worcester, Jan. 30—Mrs. Helen Corcoran Rogers Duke of Springfield, formerly of this city, today filed suit for $350,000, in Superior court here against Atty. John F. McGrath and Arthur J. McGrail, executors of the will of Richard Healy, clothing store millionaire, in whose home she lived for many years. The suit is brought "for services and assurances given for good consideration." Her attorney is James M. Hoy of Boston.

Recently in the probate court here the executors of Mr. Healy's will filed a petition stating that a claim for $50,000, made against the estate by Mrs. Duke would be settled for $20,000 and asked for instructions of the court relative to it. No action has been taken on the petition.

DRUG PERIL IN U.S. GROWING, SAYS WRITER

By WINIFRED BLACK

San Francisco, Jan. 30—What would you think if President Hoover issued a statement that one person in every 28 in the United States of America was a "dope slave."

That's just what Gen. T. W. Russell, chief of the narcotic police of Egypt, announced at the Geneva opium conference.

Of course, Egypt is a long way off and we don't know much about it over here.

A few of us have heard lectures on the Sphynx and the ancient tombs of the ancient dynasties—but for the most part Egypt means to most of us just something in a romantic song with the Nile in the chorus somewhere.

But just think of it, one person in every 28—a helpless, hopeless, broken slave—and before the World War, there was no "dope" problem in Egypt.

DOPE BRINGS GOLD

The European powers didn't pay the least attention to dope over there—why should they?

Money for France, money for Great Britain, money for Switzerland, money for Germany, money for Holland, money for India, money for Persia, money for China and money, too, in a smaller degree, for America.

What is human slavery and human degradation and human despair compared to money?

Dope rushed over Egypt like some terrible miasma rising from a horrible hidden swamp—and all the nations of Europe looked on and listened to the clinking of gold and silver—and thought about something else.

Egypt suddenly woke with a start.

And now Egypt has gone to the dope conference at Geneva and Egypt is "telling the world."

France has employed General Russell at a salary of $50,000 a year and France is looking to General Russell to suppress the hideous evil with which France—like the other nations of Europe, has smilingly allowed to flourish.

Dope went into Egypt as heroin and as dionyl—there is no law against the manufacture or importation of either of these drugs in Europe, and there is no law against the manufacture or importation of either of them in the United States today.

How do we know that the same thing that has happened in Egypt will not happen in the United States?

Dionyl is just one of a hundred different drugs that are nothing in the world but opium with the addition of a little acid of some sort, and disguised under another name.

These drugs are flowing into the United States year in and year out, month in and month out, yes, day in and day out, too.

Why should the world permit their manufacture at all, they are not needed in legitimate medicine —what need is there for them?

Why should they be allowed to grow and flourish and make fortunes for unscrupulous dealers just because we are too stupid and too pleased with ourselves to wake up and look real conditions actually in the face?

WRITE CONGRESSMEN

Watch the news from the Geneva narcotic conference—it's worth understanding.

Here in our own country Representative Porter of Pennsylvania has just introduced two excellent bills into Congress.

One of them is a bill taking the narcotic administration out from under the wing of the prohibition bureau and giving it full and efficient power to do full and efficient work.

The other bill is one which will limit the power of questionable druggists and physicians to prescribe and sell these deadly drugs.

Watch the progress of both of those bills in Congress.

Make up your mind what you want your representative to do about them and write and tell him how you feel.

This dope situation is no thrilling dream, it is no foolish fanaticism, it is here, now, this very day.

How long are we going to sleep here in America?

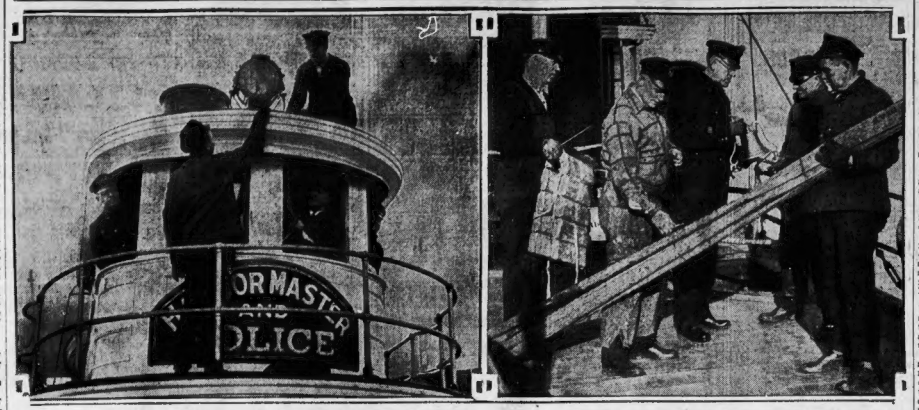
Harbor Police Sigh as Guardian Starts Trip to Junk Pile



After years of service in the harbor, the Guardian, long pride of Boston's police, has reached the end of the road. Condemned, the old craft is being stripped at Constitution wharf. Patrolman John Van Leer is shown removing the ship's searchlight as Lieut. Lawrence H. Dunn and other officers strip the wheelhouse. Everything of value is being removed before the Guardian is handed over to the junkman. Patrolman Thomas E. Currivan and other officers are shown clearing the deck, while Lieut. Lawrence H. Dunn looks over the craft's bell. (Staff photos.)

OLD POLICE BOAT ENDS SERVICE

A sad police duty is being performed today at Constitution Wharf.

The death knell of an old veteran of the law is being sung to the tune of hammers and chisels.

It's the beginning of the end for the police boat Guardian, protector of property, salvager of human derelicts and ship of mercy combined, for she is being stripped, never to prowl the harbor again as a servant of the harbor police.

The 34-year-old vessel, recently condemned by the U. S. inspectors of steam vessels, has made its last trip and it doesn't go without a twinge of pain to the crew of police that hold so many memories of service aboard her.

In her place another vessel will be built, along similar design, but never to hold the experiences that are tucked away in the 20-foot cabin during three decades.

AIDED CHELSEA

Her first errand of mercy was the memorable Chelsea fire, Easter Sunday, April, 1908. Far from the scene of glorious deeds, she performed in her own way a nonspectacular but very necessary work of operating the Meridien st. bridge, East Boston, allowing fireboats and land apparatus to reach the blaze after the bridge power went dead.

Slinging a line aboard the bridge, she furnished the power to open and close it as the Boston apparatus arrived. Little notice was paid her but the work was valorous.

"Just like losing my right arm," Capt. Ross B. Perry, harbor master and skipper of the harbor police, mused as he recalled the events the Guardian "covered."

He told of the Summer st. bridge disaster, that memorable night in November, 1916, when a crowded street car plunged with its human freight into the waters of Ft. Point channel.

Of how the Guardian and the Watchman (Sneaky Dick), stood by from 5 o'clock that night until the grey dawn of another day, and accounted for 47 out of 48 bodies. The 48th was found six months later.

MOLASSES TANK DISASTER

He told of the molasses tank disaster two years later, when a veritable sea of sticky fluid flooded Atlantic ave., where the new harbor police station now stands. The Guardian again was called into valiant service.

Being the larger of the fleet that comprise the Watchman and two motor boats, Argus and Edwin U. Curtis, the Guardian was "senior traffic officer" to the 8000 ships that ply in the harbor annually.

She had her allotment of "floaters," bodies of those who deemed life more painful than the green waters of the harbor.

And then came a day for the most novel job of all.

At Boston Light, the second assistant keeper was the proud father of a baby, but the problem of bringing his offspring to the isolated spot he called home, was one he feared he could not solve.

The baby was born at the home of its mother's parents at Springfield. The trip to Boston for the six-weeks-old infant was completed, but the expanse of water to Boston Light stumped the parents.

The Guardian was pressed into service and Sergt. Ibra W. H. Curtis piloted the little mite to a point off the light, and the baby completed the trip in a dory.

These are a few of the memories that veteran harbor police hold for the Guardian.

But two members of the original crew are living today. They are Peter C. Eldridge, of Saratoga st. and John Lyall of Orient ave., both East Boston.

She is the vessel that outlasted her crew—but the hammers are flying today.

GOVERNOR ONLY HOPE TO AVERT CHICAGO RUIN

Chicago, Jan. 30 (INS)—Driven to desperation by ever-mounting financial troubles and the rapid approach of threatened bankruptcy Chicago and Cook County today turned to Governor Louis Emmerson's move to save the situation.

At the invitation of the governor members of the State tax commission, the Cook County board of assessors and the board of review will meet today with the chief executive here to speed up reassessment, which has delayed collection of taxes for more than 20 months.

Governor Emerson will also demand from William H. Malone, chairman of the tax commission, an explanation of why the commission has delayed certification of railroad and stock assessment of 101 counties.

Added to the troubles evidenced by $280,000,000 of floating debts and $11,275,500 in unpaid salaries to employes, four other incidents appeared on the clouded horizon today.

First, the county forest preserves sold $500,000 worth of bonds at a record low price of 90 cents on the dollar; landlords started a move to eject families of city and county employes for nonpayment of rent; for the second time the Firemen's Pension Board failed to raise $97,000 to meet obligations to dependents on Feb. 6, and it was revealed that the board of education has been unable to pay for free textbooks distributed to school children.

Lakeville Man Is Burned to Death

Lakeville, Jan. 30 (AP)—The charred body of Edward Carlin, 55, was discovered in the smouldering ruins of his one-room shack in the sparsely settled section of this town today.

Herman Phillips had talked with Carlin last night. About 11:45 p. m., he looked out of his window and saw a light at the Carlin shack. He thought it was the light from a lamp and went to sleep again. Carlin was an inveterate smoker, and it is thought he went to sleep while smoking and the bed clothing caught fire.

GARRETT MAY CUT LOOSE AT TROY SHOW

Troy Benefit Calendar:

Friday—Basketball and dance, Charlestown high gym.

Friday—Midnight shows, Keith theaters.

Saturday—Hockey, Boston Garden.

Will Oliver B. Garrett cut loose?

As the time draws close for the stage "debut" of the former Boston liquor squad head at the double midnight show Friday for the Troy fund at the two Keith theaters, much speculation is heard as to his probable remarks.

The stormy petrel of police circles has as his topic, "What It Means to Be a Policeman in Boston."

Garrett has refused to disclose his plans, but admits that he will welcome this public opportunity of stating his position. Today the last obstacle to his speaking was removed, when Police Commissioner Wilson said he would not oppose his appearance.

IS FREE LANCE

"He's a free lance," commented the commissioner to the Boston Evening American.

Commissioner Wilson would not discuss the Garrett case, nor say what he would do if the pensioned policeman does "cut loose."

"But I will say," he added, "that I deeply appreciate what the Boston Evening American and Mr. Winston of the Keith theaters are doing for the Troy fund. I also thank the public for their help."

Garrett's position is that he is no longer under police orders and may say anything he chooses. He was a former buddy of the late Patrolman Troy, who was in Garrett's liquor squad at one time.

Garrett will appear only at B. F. Keith and Keith-Albee theaters.

This benefit program is unique in many respects. This is the first time that a double premier of any new photoplay has been attempted, for "Hit the Deck" will be shown simultaneously at both theaters.

Boston will be the first city in New England to view this great musical talkie version of sailor life. The magnitude of the screen play is shown from the fact that two large stages were joined together to handle the cast.

The ticket sale locally is speeding up, especially as the public begins to realize that the "man of mystery" of the police department will make his first public appearance at these shows.

Several large department stores, including Jordan Marsh Co. and Sears, Roebuck & Co., have ordered blocks of seats held. Various clubs and individuals are forming parties for the night.

There will be no advance over regular evening prices at either theater, and all seats are reserved.

Parties are being organized in Charlestown and in East Boston of people who plan to attend the Keith midnight shows, after taking in the basketball and dance attraction in Charlestown high school gym. This 8 o'clock program, which will include a few new vaudeville numbers besides the game and dance, will help swell the Troy fund.

The Pontiac A. C., leading sport club of Charlestown, is defending its record against the invasion of the East Boston Center Five. The Pontiacs, with 16 out of 20 wins, has a worthy opponent in the professionals of the Center Five.

City Councilor Thomas J. Green and Ex-Senator J. J. Brennan are among the sponsors of the event which is expected to net a large sum for the fund.

When the Tigers, Canadian-American champions, meet the New Haven stars at Boston Garden Saturday night, a collection will be taken for the benefit of the Troy fund. Permission has been granted by the management, and a generous response is expected as this is one of the important games of the season.

POST $1000 FOR MISSING MAN

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 30 (INS)—Reward of $1000 was offered today by relatives for information concerning the disappearance of Max Price, 62, wealthy real estate operator, who has been missing since Tuesday night, and who, police believe, was the victim of a kidnaping plot.

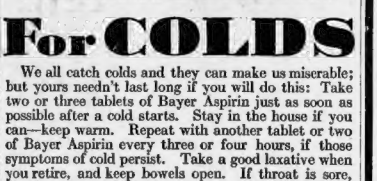
It became known that police were searching for a man with whom Price was seen in conversation outside his office shortly before his disappearance.

Police today denied a number of reports that his body was found. The rumors placed the body as having been found in Orange, Cheshire and Westville.

London Portias to Wear Robes in Court

London, Jan. 30—Portias must be careful to wear sombre hues in court, Judge Tobin, 74 and bachelor, gave warning when a woman barrister came before him in a dress of light color and without the professional robe.

But Portia was clever. She explained her appearance was without notice and she was allowed to plead.



For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

BAYER ASPIRIN

ASPHYXIATED IN HIS GARAGE

Springfield, Jan. 30 (AP)—Michael H. Smith, 49, president of the Union Casket Hardware Co., was asphyxiated by carbon monoxide gas in his garage today.

Though he had left the garage door partly open, the flow of deadly gas from the engine of an eight-cylinder car overcame him as he apparently sat in the car permitting the engine to warm. He had been there about 15 minutes when discovered by his sons.

From the open door of the car and a severe bruise on the head, it was deduced that Mr. Smith, feeling the effects of the gas, sought to gain the open air, but too late, and fell as he left the car.

New England Cattle Herds on Increase

New England cattle herds, including milk cows, increased materially in 1929 while the numbers of horses and swine continued their downward trend, the New England Crop Reporting Service announced today.

At the close of the year there were 1,137,000 cattle on New England farms and the value of all livestock was $136,159,000, an annual increase of 2.7 per cent in the face of a decline of nearly $200,000,000 in the value of all livestock in the United States.

Tractors and trucks continue to replace horses on the farms, there being 202,000 horses in New England, only about two-thirds of the number 10 years ago.

Found! Greatest of Radio Fans

Paris, Jan. 30 (INS)—Who is France's greatest radio fan? None other than President Gaston Doumergue, who is as fond of his loudspeaker as President Hoover is of his fishing pole.

President Doumergue gets up from a warm bed whenever an American broadcast is relayed to France, and there are very few Frenchmen, if any, who can beat this record.

"Gastounnet" loves opera and jazz. When he intends to "listen in" on New York, he goes to bed earlier than usual and then gets up in the middle of the night.

Today, in the real estate columns of the classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

Out of respect to the memory of our President, the late Charles H. W. E. Buck, our office and plant will be closed between 12 Noon and 2 P. M. on Thursday, Jan. 30th.

PARTIES FOR OPERA FOLK NEXT WEEK

ALL OF FASHIONABLE Boston is keenly anticipating the two weeks of Chicago Civic Opera which is in store for us beginning next Monday. Smart dinner parties are being planned by those who have taken boxes either for the entire season or who have engaged them for certain performances. On the opening night when "Die Walkure" is to be sung, and on the ensuing nights also, elderly matrons and debutantes alike will be dressed in their most exquisite and formal evening creations and the men will be in full dress and opera hats. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft of Beacon st. are to be hosts at dinner every night, taking their guests on afterwards to their box. On the opening night, they will have in their party Mr. and Mrs. Allyn B. McIntire and Mr. and Mrs. William C. Cox (Jessie Bancroft) of Cohasset. Monday's party will also see former Governor and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller in a box. For Friday evening, when "Lucius" is to be sung, they are arranging an opera party in honor of Congressman Andrew of Washington. Mrs. Fuller is going to take her children to the matinee performances. Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner Coolidge of Commonwealth ave. are giving a dinner and opera party Friday of the first week.

THIS NOON, AT HER HOME on Commonwealth ave., Mrs. Arthur S. Johnson gave a debutante luncheon in honor of her niece, Miss Alice B. Newell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Newell of Commonwealth ave., and Miss Laetitia Orlandini, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vittorio Orlandini, reside on Marlborough st. About 45 covers were layed for the party. Miss Newell was attractively gowned in a flowered lace. Miss Orlandini was also frocked in lace, hers a beige one.

AMONG THE VARIOUS SERIES of dances so popular with the younger set is a group called the "Brae-Burn Dances" called because they are held at the Brae-Burn Country Club. The next one of these parties comes on February 15, and the last one on April 4. Mrs. Herbert L. Faulkner, Philip B. Brown, Mrs. Norman Bingham, Mrs. John Eaton, Mrs. John Paine, Mrs. Herbert Lee and Mrs. Grace Rice are the patronesses. It is an unfortunate coincidence that Mrs. Follen Cabot Whitney Hall dance comes on the same evening. Nevertheless, I understand that both sets are well attended by the sub-debutantes and their escorts.

MRS. RALPH H. DOANE, chairman of the committee for selling tickets for "Babes in Toyland"—the performance of which takes place on Friday, February 7, to benefit the Christopher Shop—assisted by the managing secretary of the shop, Miss Dorothy Sprigings, are selling tickets thick and fast at 355 Boylston st. Some of the patronesses and ticket holders: Mrs. Elias Ashworth, Mrs. George L. Foote, Mrs. Edward D. Bigelow, Mrs. James A. Nelson, Mrs. Theodore Pitman, Mrs. Horace Morison, Mrs. Francis Bird, Mrs. Henry E. Russell, Mrs. Grant Walker, Mrs. Francis I. Amory, Mrs. Frederick C. Hood, Mrs. Henry P. McKean, Mrs. Alfred V. Kidder, Mrs. Charles Bird, Jr., Mrs. Nesi Rantoul, Mrs. Thomas Allen, Mrs. George Warren, Mrs. Thomas Motley, Jr., Mrs. Charles Proctor, Mrs. A. Lynde Cochrane, Mrs. Howard Lang, Mrs. Joseph S. Bryant, Mrs. George Clement, Mrs. Richard E. Danielson, Mrs. M. R. Jouett, Mrs. J. B. Hardon.

FOR THE LECTURE SATURDAY morning of Capt. Vladimir Perfilieff, on life in monasteries he filmed on Mt. Athos peninsula and at Meteora, Greece, Mrs. Gardner Davis has enlisted the services of the following Junior League girls as ushers: Miss Margaret Emerson, head usher, Miss Judith Chase, Miss Barbara Proctor Miss Virginia Cowles, Miss Dorothea Newman, Miss Justine Prince, Miss Rosamond Musgrave. The Education of Russian Youth in Exile will benefit.

MRS. ROY R. MERCHANT of Newton is chairman of the committee in charge of the benefit lecture for the Norfolk House Center that is to be given by Arthur C Pillsbury in Symphony Hall on February 25. In conjunction with the lecture, Mr. Pillsbury will show moving pictures of growing plants and animal life. Most of the films are beautifully colored and include movies of flowers, trees, insects the germination pollen, leaf formation and biological subjects. Assisting Mrs Merchant on the committee are Mrs. Karl Adam, Miss Emily D. Furness, Mrs. J. Amory Jeffries, Miss Elizabeth W. Munroe and Mrs. W. Rodman Peabody.

AFTER THE 15TH OF FEBRUARY, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Livingston Rowe will be "at home" to their many friends at 2306 Overlook rd., Cleveland. Mrs. Rowe is the former Mrs. Janet Withington Cashman. Her wedding to Mr. Rowe of Brookline and the North Shore took place in Cleveland, January 18.

MISS MADELINE POST, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Reed Post of Marlborough st. and Miss Harriet Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Mason of Exeter st., have left for St. Sauveur, about eight miles from Montreal. There they are planning to enjoy winter sports.

MR. AND MRS. EDGAR N WRIGHTINGTON of Monmouth ct., Brookline, are leaving for New York a week from today and from thence on February 8 they will wend their way to Palm Beach to visit and take a cruise on the Malina, a privately owned yacht. Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Corey of Newton are in Palm Beach at the present time.

MR. AND MRS. DANA BARNUM have returned to their Bay State rd. house after a sojourn of several weeks in Nassau, where they were staying due to a recent illness of Mr. Barnum's. He has arrived home greatly improved.

THE THIRD DONOR'S luncheon for those interested in serving Palestine is to take place at the Hotel Statler on Monday, March 31. The guests will include those contributing a certain amount and those who have successfully solicited even more. There is to be a group of patronesses who have given quite large sums, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Sidney Dreyfus. On Monday afternoon, a tea is to be held in the French Room at the Ritz-Carlton for the hostesses and patronesses where they will have an opportunity to discuss their progress to date.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM W. GOODNOW, from Boston, and Mrs. Arthur E. Davis, from Dover, are at the Madison in New York. Arrivals at the Savoy-Plaza from Boston include Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Ballard, Mr. and Mrs. John Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Watters and Mrs. M. G. Kent. Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Harris, of Boston, are expected at the Sherry-Netherland, Fifth ave., New York, for a few days.

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

There is a simple method that makes blackheads go as if by magic. Get two ounces of Calnolin powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub briskly over the affected parts, and in two minutes, you will find every blackhead dissolved away entirely.

Miss Rose Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Bryant of Randolph ave., Milton, was among the group of Junior League girls ushering at the Wednesday morning musicale at the Hotel Statler when Mischa Elman played.

ELMAN PLAYS AT STATLER MUSICALE

By MOSES SMITH

MISCHA ELMAN held the stage at the third of the Morning Musicales at the Statler, given under the auspices of the Boston School of Occupational Therapy. Ably assisted by his accompanist, Marcel Van Gool, the violinist played Handel's Sonata in E major, Paganini's Concerto in D major, and two groups of shorter pieces.

Even those whose memory does not go back to the time when Elman came to America—the first of the great series of Auer pupils to astonish the world as a child prodigy—must have noted in the last few years a considerable change in his style of playing and interpretation. In place of the exaggerated warmths, the tone broadened out of all proportion — even though this tone was a wonderful thing to hear—there is now a mellower art.

There is still an occasional outcropping of these warmths, especially in a cantilena passage; Elman would not be himself otherwise. But for the most part there is now the artistic restraint, the poise, the measured manner both in the appearance of the man and in his reproduction of the music.

The Paganini Concerto offers opportunity for a display of technical fireworks, but it has little musical interest for the audience. It was unnecessary for Elman to convince us again of his great mechanical agility, and a violin-piano sonata or one of the great symphonic concertos would have been good to hear from him.

That his is still a name to conjure with was indicated by the large and cordial audience. It was good to see an occasional face of a listeners drawn not by an occasion but by music-making. There is room, let us hope, for more morning concerts in Boston.

Russian Pianist Will Repeat Concert

Nikolai Orloff, Russian pianist, who will play at Jordan Hall on Saturday afternoon, joined the elect, so far as Boston listeners were concerned, by a remarkable performance of the solo part of a Mozart Concerto with the Boston Symphony Orchestra a few years ago.

Orloff belongs to the modern group of pianists, who believe in setting forth their music without the frills deemed necessary by a more romantic generation of the past. His program for Saturday includes Mozart's Variations in A major, Schumann's "Carnaval," a group by Chopin, and pieces by Balakireff, Debussy and Liszt.

Medbury Says--

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

THERE are so many farmers in New York city buying real estate from confidence men that Grant's Tomb alone changes hands three or four times a day.

One rube bought it last week and tried to serve the occupants with a dispossess notice.

He had other real estate holdings in New York. He had purchased the public library and secured an option on the aquarium.

He won't invest in Florida because he's afraid of being gyped. He likes to see what he's buying.

He only had 500 bucks left, but he spent it very wisely. He bought the Pennsylvania station.

The agent threw in a couple of ferryboats free of charge.

He even took the farmer's I. O. U. for the Federal building.

A guy from Oklahoma paid $2000 for the privilege of putting up a toll gate on Fifth avenue.

He telegraphed home for more dough while Central Park was still for sale.

It was a bargain for $7000, and he was afraid they might take it off the market.

Belts and Capes Are Definite Accents In the Mode

BELTS and capes are two very definite accents in the mode this season. No one who is chic at all considers the spring clothes smart unless they are indented at the classic point "between the hip-bone and the waistline."

While the versatility of capes is nothing short of amazing, and they flaunt themselves on coats, suits and dresses impartially, they give new and naive lines to frocks, and the delightful little dress pictured shows many new and attractive features.

It is of dotted wool crepe, with the new wide shoulder accented by a small circular cape over each sleeve top, the circular fullness repeated in side skirt sections. The dress is one-piece, and, in this instance, the color is green with black dots, complemented by a black patent leather belt and flower cluster worn below left shoulder. It is shown in other color combinations also, and is a most youthful and wearable little frock.

AN important new straw has made a fashionable impression at the resorts, and for spring. It is called Panamalac. In texture it resembles bakou, but has a shiny silky sheen. It fashions the hat the model is wearing, and exploits decisive but flattering lines,—its brim turning back sharply in front, extending in sharp points at sides, and continuing a long, graceful line in back.

Frocks of fine wool, lightweight tweed, and jersey fabrics are not only extremely useful for day time activities, but decidedly smart as well.

Jersey has so successfully insinuated itself into the mode of recent seasons that it leaves one wondering why it was a poor relative for so long. It not only simulates the weaves of other fabrics, but does original weaves of its own with the satisfactory result that it is used in many day time guises.

THE popularity of the jersey frock has created a new vogue for the separate jersey blouse which may be worn with a skirt of self-material or even more smartly with one of different texture. The suit and ensemble find jersey perfect as an alternate for the silk blouse. In fact, the jersey blouse has stolen much of the glory formerly reserved for the untiquitous sweater.

Schiaparelli has designed a clever blouse in which she contrasts black jersey threaded with white with pure white in inserted collars and vestee. How much more versatile a suit becomes when it may have a tailored version in jersey and a formal note with silk!

SWEATERS, not to be outdone by blouses, have embarked on new 1930 ideas of their own. They have cut their length almost in half to begin with—no self-respecting sweater would be seen below the waistline! Their sleeves are as varied as feminine ideas—they are long, short or completely absent. Some are striped, some are mottled, some are fancy in weave—and, in fact, you would never know the sweater of the new fashion era!

The fact that the smart world is more and more taking to the sky for its sport activities is apparent in the greater number of unique flying outfits being shown. Those moderns who plan on doing a little high flying around southern scenes could find no more stunning costume than one noted recently. This outfit consisted of a slip-over blouse and trousers similar to those used for skiing, both fashioned of jersey and white chamois. Slide fasteners provided openings at the neckline of the blouse and on the trousers.

IT isn't the first time this season that fashion has put both her hand and foot into the mode to make an alliance—but it is the first time that she has done it with jewelry. An engraved crystal bracelet in white, black, sapphire, ruby and emerald, is matched by a quaint little shoe buckle. This is quite a different type of jewelry ensemble and one which gives promise of an extensive vogue.

Some of the most recent jewelry importations reveal a trend toward massive formation of stones. This does not mean that the femininity of the pieces is lessened merely that these new jewels are in direct contrast with the quite dainty things we have been wearing. A companionate bracelet and necklace of stunning design is one. The bracelet combines onyx, chrysoprase, clear and matt crystal, some of the latter cut in baguettes. The choker uses variants of the baguette idea with onyx joined to matt crystal.

200 ENJOY ALKALINE DINNER

A 100 per cent alkaline dinner, which included not only no meat, but no salt and pepper, no ice-water and no coffee was enjoyed by 200 men and women in Chipman Hall, Tremont Temple.

It was a dinner of the Natural Living League of New England, and the menu consisted mainly of vegetable dishes. There was a touch of animal in the butter and cream mixed up in it, however.

Dr. Robert G. Jackson of Toronto, who, within a month of 72 years old, claims to be a living example of physical perfection which he brought about mainly through attention to diet, declared the value of the dinner was in its alkalines. No meal should contain more than 20 per cent acids, with 80 per cent alkalines, he said, as it is imperative to keep the blood of the human body in an alkaline condition, for health.

The menu was as follows: Celery, ripe olives, savory bouillon, Rye wafers, baby lima beans scallop with spinach, green pepper and relish, shredded lettuce and carrot salad with sour cream dressing, raised rolls made from a mixed alkaline meal compound, butter, raisin jelly with whipped cream, a substitute for coffee. Cream and natural sugar (unrefined) was served with the coffee substitute.

There were no cigarettes or cigars.

Puritan's Spring to Furnish Fountain

A drink of water from the very spring on the Common that drew the Puritans to settle Boston 300 years ago was the attraction held out by Mayor Curley to distant visitors to the tercentenary celebration here this year.

Chairman William P. Long of the park commission informed the mayor that the old spring overcame all efforts to bury it under a garden of colorful plants.

The mayor requested the park department specialists to pipe the spring water to the proposed $25,000 memorial fountain, which will be erected on the Common opposite 50 Beacon st., to portray the settlement of Boston by Governor Winthrop and his courageous band of Puritans.

CLEAR HERBERT OR REMOVE HIM, SAYS BORAH

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—After another conference with his informant, Senator Borah today wrote a letter to Prohibition Commissioner Doran demanding that John F. J. Herbert, dry administrator for Montana and Idaho, either be publicly exonerated of the reported charges against him or removed from that district.

It was disclosed by Senator Borah that the man who made the report to him on Herbert's record was Frank S. Flynn, who is in the legal department of the prohibition bureau here.

MISTAKEN ABOUT FLYNN.

Borah had said he was under the impression Flynn was an agent of the Department of Justice, but Atty.-Gen. Mitchell challenged that statement.

Last night Flynn returned to the Idahoan's office and reaffirmed his previous declarations against Herbert. After severe cross-examination, Borah said he was convinced Flynn knew what he was talking about and for that reason he (Borah) had written Doran.

Assistant Secretary Lowman of the Treasury, in charge of prohibition enforcement, has defended Herbert against the charges reported by Borah and also by Senator Wheeler of Montana.

VOTES TRANSFER BILL

By unanimous consent, the House expenditures committee today ordered favorably reported the Williamson bill to transfer the prohibition enforcement bureau from the Treasury to the Justice Department with amendments.

One amendment would permit the Treasury Department to issue permits for withdrawal of industrial alcohol under regulations to be prescribed by the Attorney-General. Under the original provision the Secretary of the Treasury and the Attorney-General would have drawn up the regulations jointly.

Another amendment would change the name of the bureau of industrial alcohol and narcotics under the Treasury to merely the bureau of industrial alcohol. This, Chairman Williamson said, was to prepare a way for other measures to set up a separate bureau to handle permits dealing with narcotics under the Treasury Department.

the running board and savagely kicked as he lay on the ground.

Mr. Dunning was kidnapped in the bootlegger's automobile, and, while a woman in it attempted to strangle him, the bootleggers beat him. He is in the hospital now with an eye out, terribly maltreated.

He who thinks he understands the character and emotions of women deceives himself.

Mrs. Della "Dot" Lee, manicure lady who lived here, sent $50 to her sister, writing, "I think something is going to happen. If it does and Howard gets me, bury me in white with yellow roses in my hand. This money will pay for the dress."

Her womanly intuition did not deceive her. Something did happen. Howard, 28-year-old mechanical engineer, called. She shot him dead as he slept, killed herself, and is presumably wearing the white dress, holding the yellow roses.

But why did the lady specify a white dress and yellow roses? No man planning suicide would demand blue serge and purple orchids.

Give Judge Pinanski Key to Courthouse

In the presence of several judges, scores of prominent attorneys, relatives and friends, Judge Abraham E. Pinanski, recently named by Governor Frank G. Allen, was inducted in office as a Cuperior Court justice.

The ceremony, which was brief, began with the reading of the governor's commission by George E. Kimball, assistant clerk of the Superior Court. The greetings of the court were extended by Acting Chief Justice Marcus Morton and by Judge Joseph Walsh, presiding justice in the Fourth Session Superior courtroom where the ceremony took place.

Judge Morton presented the new justice with a key to the court house and a trial list book to enter assignments.

Bishop Babcock Has a Restful Night

Bishop Samuel G. Babcock, whose name is on the danger list at City Hospital, had a restful night, according to his physicians, and appeared to be considerably improved today.

The Episcopal clergyman was struck by an automobile Jan. 13.

Swedish Queen No Better

GIFFORD SEES U. S. CONTROL OF WIRES, RADIO

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—Expressing no objection to the pending Couzens communications bill, Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., said before the Senate interstate commerce committee today that passage of the measure by Congress probably would mark the end of state regulation of utilities.

Gifford added that what had happened with the railroads under regulation of the Interstate Commerce Commission, where federal control had become supreme, was bound to happen also in the field of communications.

The Couzens bill would group radio, telephones, telegraph and cables under control of a new communications commission, and the committee is making an extensive investigation of the whole subject.

Gifford explained to the committee, however, that inasmuch as most of the provisions of the pending measure already were in the law, enactment of the bill probably would not change the present situation.

Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, asked Gifford whether the federal Government might not be able to aid the states in their regulation of utilities by amending the present law but Gifford replied that probably would be impossible.

"Whenever a federal commission touches utilities," he said, "the result is that the federal Government controls and the State fades away."

Lady Reading, Wife of British Envoy, Dies

London, Jan. 30 (AP)—Lady Reading, wife of the former viceroy to India, and former high commissioner and special ambassador to the United States, died today.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it over 50 years. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips since 1875.

Again?

Men don't understand; and some women are so helpless. Each month they suffer untold pain, though those times could be entirely painless. Midol will make the periodic process peculiar to women an incident; yes, even for those who have always experienced prolonged suffering! Try Midol; anticipate your time and avoid all misery or even discomfort. Or take it when the pain is at its height, and feel at ease in five to seven minutes. Midol is not a narcotic; acts directly on organs affected. Fifty cents, metal case.*

*Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of life. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache, backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence

You men who would keep trim and fit ...you women who covet the tantalizing curves of the truly modern figure—when tempted to do yourself too well, light a Lucky instead. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately. When your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco —The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate! ... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

FILM TITLE WILL BE CHANGED

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 30—Is Selecting a leading lady for John Barrymore is never an easy task. Mr. Barrymore who is rarely discriminating when it comes to talent for his pictures, looked at any number of tests before he and Darryl Zanuck agreed upon Joan Bennett.

MISS BENNETT, who is blonde, slender and with a certain aristocratic bearing, is much the same type of beauty as Dolores Costello, the original heroine in "The Sea Beast." That was probably in her favor, also her past performances on the screen. "The Sea Beast" of course becomes "The White Whale" or "Moby Dick" when it is filmed. Wouldn't it do to have two John Barrymore pictures with the same name and "The Sea Beast" is too recent and too pleasant a memory. Lloyd Bacon directs.

Louella O. Parsons

ABE LYMAN and his band are back in Hollywood. They returned here for the gala opening of "The Rogue Song" and the picture has been doing such a standing-room-only business that they have remained. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, on the lookout for an orchestra to play in "Good News," signed Mr. Lyman and his boys to furnish glee club music in this college story. You will remember the George Olsen orchestra was one of the most important features in the stage play, and if you know your present-day talkies you will know that no stage play is going to have anything on our movies.

A RIGHT novel experiment is about to be tried at the Pathe studios, and Joseph Kennedy is on his way out here to inaugurate it. Fifty leading players, Ina Claire, Ann Harding, Constance Bennett, all of them stars in their own right, will be gathered together in one dramatic production. We have had the entire cast of stars favorites from one studio shining brightly in musical revues, but so far as I know this is the first time the stellar lights of one studio have been called for a straight dramatic talkie. It will take a Solomon himself to write this story so that none of these girls will feel she is getting the worst of it. I suggest they take a tape measure to measure the lines so that one does not get more dialogue than another. Solomon, in this case, is Len Riggs, imported from New York, to write the story.

PUBLIX THEATERS CORPORATION is dumb like a fox. They have named Nils Asther to make personal appearances in their theaters. He may act as master of ceremonies depending, I suppose, on whether the short talkie in which he will be starred is a better exploitation or the master of ceremonies stunt.

• • •

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Gus Arnheim and his band putting new life into the Montmartre and making everyone want to dance. Al K. Hall and his reported finances. Fatty Arbuckle, among the dancers. Barbara Bennett and her husband, Morgan Downey, celebrating their first wedding anniversary by lunching at the Brown Derby. Irving Berlin and George Fitzmaurice walking across the United Artists lot, earnestly arguing on the all important subject of the talkies. Norma Talmadge rehearsing scenes from "Du Barry" in her bungalow with Mrs. Leslie Carter. Elise Bartlett receiving the congratulations of her friends on her performance in "Good to Bed." Harry Wilson, well known press agent sending out copy on Inspiration pictures. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

QUINCY YOUTH MAKES GRADE

ALL because he kept his eyes open and wasn't too proud to do humble work to learn about the stage, Billy Jones, formerly of the Quincy high school student body, is today Billy De Wolfe featured vaudeville star. Just now he is on the stage at the Scollay Sq. Olympia. Several years ago he started in as a theater usher. He took up dancing and later, to get the inside on the profession, got a job sweeping floors behind the footlights. He was in and out of dressing rooms of a big city playhouse; he got to know the performers. He had a close-up of their methods and a chance to study dance technique.

By observation and practice of what he observed, he was able one day to meet opportunity on its way to greet him. There was a vacancy; a player asked Billy if he wanted to try out. The Quincy youth did. He made good, and has been on the stage ever since.

"FLYING HIGH" PREMIERE MONDAY

"FLYING HIGH," the new musical comedy which George White will present at the Shubert next Monday evening, prior to its Broadway premiere, will be in the nature of a scenic experiment for this type entertainment. In two acts and 14 scenes, it will have the continuity of a musical comedy book, but the color, scenic change, and speed of a revue.

"My first adventure along this line," declares Mr. White, "was in 'Manhattan Mary,' which worked out so well that I decided to go a step further with 'Flying High.' In my estimation, musical comedies have been several steps behind our present-day revues. That they have not kept pace with the times either from a scenic or costume standpoint is regrettable, but that they have failed to live up to the fast pace of the modern revue is almost deadly.

"'Flying High,' therefore, will present what I think is a new standard in musical comedies. The result, I feel certain, will be watched with more than usual interest by the more discerning playgoers who take their entertainment seriously. I am sure the result will be more glorious and peppier musical comedies for the future than have obtained in the past."

Screen Shorts

Greta Garbo will begin work in the next week or so on "Romance," M-G-M's talker version of the Doris Keane stage vehicle. Clarence Brown will direct. Miss Garbo will do a German version of "Anna Christie," also directed by Brown.

• • •

Anders Randolf, William Orlsmond, Ivan Simpson and Louis King have been added to the cast of "Sin Flood," which Frank Lloyd will direct for First National with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in the leading role.

• • •

Robert Armstrong and James Gleason have been cast for roles in "Dumbbells in Ermine," which John Adolfi now directing for Warners. Both played in the stage play, "Is That So?"

"Double Cross Roads" is the new title for "Tender Are the Daisies," Fox Movietone production

"Jango," Jungle Film, for Tremont Temple

Five years ago three scientists, Dr. Louis Neuman of Brussels, Dr. Jaques Maus of Antwerp and Dr. Daniel Davenport of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, Canada, went into the West African wilds to study the dread tsetse fly in an effort to combat sleeping sickness. The expedition covered 2,000 miles incidental to the scientific work motion pictures were taken, showing cannibals and wild animals in their native habitat. Dr. Davenport is now on tour exhibiting the motion pictures of the trip and he has with him three former cannibals, who are his personal servants. The picture is titled "Jango," and it will be seen for the first time in Boston at Tremont Temple, Monday night, February 17, and will be shown twice daily, thereafter, for a limited engagement.

OPERA SINGER PREPARES FOR FILM DEBUT

GRACE MOORE, famous lyric soprano, has signed a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to sing in Cosmopolitan Pictures. It was in the country church at Jellico, Tenn., that Miss Moore first sang in public.

Grace Moore

"You know, I get more thrill going back to my home town to sing for my family and the people I know than I get even from creating new roles at the Metropolitan Opera House, or singing anywhere in the world," she said. "I am delighted to have this opportunity to sing in motion pictures, which will not interfere with my opera. I have agreed to make a picture with Lawrence Tibbett, and I will star in another one. That is as much as has been planned. No vehicles have been selected as yet. I will work in pictures only in the summer, and I will sing only in English, French and Italian.

"I think that motion pictures are far and away the best medium for instilling deep love and understanding of music in the souls of the American people. They offer a wonderful instrument for inspiring the development of American talent, as yet undiscovered.

"Public demand for operas in their entirety first must come from the finer light operas, presented by first rate artists, and sung by first rate voices. I also believe that the possibilities for presenting fine musical productions in small towns where music of the first rank seldom is heard, will be a tremendous factor in creating happier homes.

"If the world can be brought to see the universality of the emotions, as evoked by great music, I do not think it is too much to hope that intellectual appreciation of the fact that all men are brothers under the skin will follow."

Dick Arlen-Mary Brian Team in Film at Met

Miss Brian, herself on the way to stardom, was seen with Arlen in "The Man I Love," and, in "Burning Up," she has an even more interesting role than she had in the former Arlen hit. Arlen's rival is played by the popular screen villain, Francis McDonald, and Virgil Marshall, Sans Hardy and Charles Sellon have important parts.

ABLE THESPIAN AT PLYMOUTH

TO the long list of stars he has supported in the last 20 years, Adrian Rosley has added the name of Thomas Mitchell, hero of the rollicking comedy success, "Little Accident," now playing at the Plymouth. Moreover, Rosley has made the addition with the utmost pleasure, for he calls his part in this hilarious Mitchell-Dell play the best he has ever had, "a perfect comedy cameo." Nearly all through his professional career Rosley has cast him lot with comedy in some form, at home and abroad. In comedy drama he played with Leo Ditrichstein, Wallace Eddinger, Frances Starr, Leo Carrillo and Roland Young. In musical comedy he has romped with Donald Brian, Peggy Wood, and the roguish Mitzi.

Adrian Rosley

Previous to contributing to the "Little Accident" excitement, Mr. Rosley carried some American hilarity over to London as a member of the "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" company.

GOSSIP ALONG NEW YORK'S RIALTO

New York, Jan. 30.

TOM VAN DYCKE has completed the cast for his first production, "Out of a Blue Sky," the comedy adapted by Leslie Howard from the German of Hans Chlumberg, which opens at the Booth Theater a week hence. The latest addition is Reginald Owen, who, earlier in the season, was seen in "Candle Light."

Others include Katherine Wilson, remembered for her work in the dramatization of Dreiser's "An American Tragedy," and seen recently in "Among the Married" and "Top o' the Hill"; Warren Williams, recognized from his success in "Twelve Miles Out" and "Let It Be Gay"; Gregory Ratoff, who has just returned from a Pacific Coast tour in the title role of "The Kibitzer"; William Gargan, seen in New York earlier in the season in "Headquarters" and "City Haul," and Tammany Young, the motion picture actor who is sometimes known as our nation's guest.

Other parts will be played by Stanley Woods, Otis Sheridan, Earl Redding, Willa Gray, Eleanor Terry, Tanya Amazar, William Hazlet, Lee Crowe Martin Noble, Ben Kamsler, Joan Graham, J. G. Penrose and Jim Murdock, the stage-doorman of the Booth.

Richard Gordon, seen last on Broadway as leading man to Ethel Barrymore in "Kingdom of God," is the latest addition to the cast of Lew Leslie's "International Revue."

• • •

There are to be three private viewings of "Many a Slip" before its premiere at the Little Theater next Monday night. Instead of the usual preliminary tour in houses that are larger than the Little, Lew Cantor, the producer, felt that the warming up process would be better attained on the home lot.

Gene Dennis to Give Show for "Women Only"

Miss Gene Dennis, the psychic, now in her second week at Loew's State, will give an extra matinee tomorrow morning for women only. Miss Dennis has been besieged with questions during her Boston engagement, and she has consented to give this extra matinee which will allow her an hour and a half on the stage to take care of the hundreds who have been unable to put their questions to her.

Irish Minstrels Will Play Here Again in May

Emmett Moore, noted Irish producer, whose Irish Minstrels have been performing at the Arlington, has been ill, and for that reason the final week of his Boston engagement was cancelled. Mr. Moore expects to resume his tour with his company in next Monday and announces he will return to Boston in May.

SKYWAYS, INC. MAKING LIGHT AMPHIBIAN

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Quietly, without any ballyhoo whatsoever, Skyways, Inc., has been building Boston's first home-constructed amphibian. It was disclosed when we poked our nose into any snop on Orleans st., East Boston, a short distance from the airport.

We heard a rumor to the effect that something was brewing, and [illegible] with doubt at all and sundry rumors, we decided that an investigation was in order. What we found will be chronicled for you herewith.

Believing that there is a big market for a light, two-place amphibian, which is an airplane capable of landing on either water or land, Skyways officials decided that the subject might bear an attempt at building such a job, and consequently designs were drawn up and the work started.

As we stepped into the shop, we found four mechanics working with might and main on the amphib, and none other than Crozier Snow, president of Skyways, supervising the construction. A further look revealed the fact that the wings, it is a biplane, were all finished and covered, with the upper set of staggered ones slanted, and the lower set with one coat of dope applied, and dry enough for the next application.

Then we saw the hull, and a more cleverly constructed hull we have not seen for a long time. The framework is of conventional steel tubing, with fairing, of wood, and a dural "skin" being applied.

On the sides of the hull, to one side of the cockpit, we found the landing gear arrangement, which was not complete, but near which we found a rather novel arrangement for pulling the wheels up and letting them down. Instead of the conventional method of raising the wheels, which is bringing them up away from the hull, in sort of an are going forward, the Skyways retraction gear will bring the wheels up inside the fairing, thus cutting down head resistance.

100 H. P. MOTOR

We found the center section, with its motor mount already installed, all finished, except for covering, and upon stating our wonderment at the smartness of the motor ring, we were told that the ship would be powered with a 100-horsepower Warner engine to start with, the designers believing that they have a wing curve efficient enough to take two passengers and a tank of gas into the air with 100 horsepower, thus cutting down the operating costs.

Despite the fact that the ship is, to our knowledge, the smallest amphibian in the country, it will have a self-starter, working by compressed air; the motor out back away from everything, and dual controls of the joystick type.

The motor being placed in the rear of the upper wing makes for safety when climbing in and out of the ship, and also permits taxiing up to a ramp without danger of taking someone's head off with the whirling blade. It also eliminates all the wind one gets from a "tractor" airplane, except for the wind caused by moving through the air.

The cockpit, permitting pilot and passenger to sit side-by-side, is open, with control sticks and rudder pedals for each occupant. Such an arrangement makes for ease of student instruction and permits the owner on a long flight to carry a relief pilot.

Lateral, or banking control, is accomplished by means of the ailerons running full length of each bottom wing. All four wings are the same length, and chord, or width, which permits quantity production at low cost.

Y. W. C. A. Drive

The $453,980 drive by the Y. W. C. A. was discussed when the 60 members of the committee met for speeches and tea at the Clarendon st. building. The fund will be used for running expenses during the next three years, to renovate the Berkeley st. residence for girls, and to cover an initial payment of $25,000 on the mortgage of the new Clarendon st. building.

Here is the acorn which may grow into the mighty oak of a new airplane industry for Boston. Cy Merrill and Forrest Rye of Skyways, Inc., mechanical force are shown at work on a new two-place, open-cockpit type of of amphibian biplane. The ship, which incorporates several new features, will be ready for stress testing in the spring, and once approved will be put into regular manufacture. (Staff photo.)

Mrs. Lindbergh Is Licensed Glider

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 30 (AP)—Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today became the first woman in the United States to hold a first-class glider pilots' license.

The former Anne Morrow qualified for the distinction by making a flight of a little more than six minutes while her husband, aeronautical expert and a crowd of spectators watched. Col. Lindbergh made a similar qualifying flight here a little more than a week ago, maneuvering a motorless plane for 32 minutes.

Mrs. Lindbergh soared aloft and remained there for six minutes and one-tenth second, to win National Aeronautical Association recognition, which has been conferred upon comparatively few men.

It was difficult to determine when she landed after a four-mile flight that included successful banks to right and left, who took the most pleasure in the feat Mrs. Lindbergh or her husband. Lindbergh's face was lighted by a broad smile as he watched his wife pilot the broad-winged craft to a landing.

Mrs. Lindbergh, when she scrambled from the diminutive cockpit, was beaming. She appeared to have looked upon the entire procedures as a lark. Her face was wreathed in smiles in contrast to her more familiar sober mein, when she climbed aboard the glider for her trial.

Wales Starts Long Trek Into Jungles

Capetown, Union of South Africa, Jan. 30 (AP)—The Prince of Wales left here today on the first stage of his inland African journey to Beira, Portuguese East Africa. He was to go by way of Johannesburg.

A brilliant gathering at the station said farewell to the royal traveler. Among those present were the Earl and Countess of Athlone, Lady Mary Cambridge, Premier Hertzog and other prominent persons.

Search for Eielson's Body in Icy Lagoon

Nome, Alaska, Jan. 30 (AP)—Search for the bodies of Carl Ben Eielson and Karl Borland in the lagoon 90 miles southeast of North Cape, Siberia, where wreckage of their plane was found by Pilots Joe Crosson and Harold Gillam, entered its fifth day today.

Although the searchers found many articles that had been in the plane, no trace was found of the bodies. Both plane and contents were scattered over a wide area.

BEST FOR INDIGESTION

Thousands With Poor, Weak Stomachs Now Taking Pepsin In New Liquid Form.

PHARMACISTS PRAISE IT

Stops Acute Kind in Few Minutes —What a Blessing.

Here's a delightful elixir with plenty of real pepsin, some Menthol and just enough of several other stomach correctives to make it capable of putting almost any weak, rundown, sissed stomach in first class shape—and it tastes like the most palatable nectar.

The man who created this supremely good formula know their business—they don't believe in nasty tasting medicine and the people are with them for Dare's Mentha Pepsin—that's the name—is having a tremendous sale all over the country. They have passed along the word to every druggist in the country that if Dare's Mentha Pepsin doesn't bring serene comfort to any workout, rundown, sickly sassy stomach that the owner of that most important internal organ can have his or her money back.

Stubborn indigestion of years standing is hard to get rid of, but Dare's Mentha Pepsin will do it; one enthusiastic druggist asserts.—It's real pepsin in liquid form—the right way to take pepsin. Any druggist always has a big supply on hand.

TOO FAT, GIRL TURNS ON GAS

New York, Jan. 30 (INS)—Ashamed of her obesity and despondent over her inability to reduce, Marcia Busacca, 19-year-old New York University freshman, took her life in the gas-filled kitchen of her Brooklyn home today.

Maria, according to her mother, had worried greatly over the fact that she weighed 235 pounds and was unable to lose weight by dieting or exercise.

The girl was an exceptional student.

LEAGUE MAKES "HUSH" MOVE ON DRUGS

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.
Universal Service Special Cable
Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

Geneva, Switzerland, Jan. 30—Although the 13th session of the advisory committee on opium and other dangerous drugs of the League of Nations began two weeks ago, the members are packing away at half measures instead of laying foundations for effective world-wide warfare against the terrible narcotic traffic.

Nor is there any prospect that they will come to grips with the main aspects of the problem during the remainder of the session.

Th. committee is solely occupying itself with the question of limitation of manufacture, and if the council of the league approves the agenda of the committee, the league will call an international conference to discuss the question of manufacture limitation.

From the American point of view, this is begging the whole question. The American government long ago took the position, and has maintained it ever since, that the purpose of the Hague convention is to be achieved, the signatory powers must recognize that the use of opium for other than scientific and medical purposes is an abuse and is illegitimate.

International warfare on drugs must strike at the root of the evil by setting up machinery for the control of production of opium, and such production must be made in such a manner as to prevent any surplus, experts declare.

Led by the British and other opium-producing nations, the League is using its machinery to persuade the conference to prevent narcotic over-production.

That is why the League is now ready to hand to the impatient world a new "hush darling" in the form of invitations to attend an international conference which will ignore the control of production, confining its discussion to the control of drug manufacturers.

Seek Matronly Ladies for Dress Models

London, Jan. 30 (INS)—London's fashion experts are in a dilemma. They are trying to find really "pleasant" ladies, with gray hair and fairly outsize figures, who are willing to earn salaries from $10 and more a week by wearing expensive dresses for a few hours a day.

WASHINGTON'S ACCEPTANCE LETTER FOUND

Santa Barbara, Cal., Jan. 30 (AP)—E. A. Connaughton, rare book and document expert, today announced he had discovered in a library here the letter George Washington wrote to Congress, acknowledging notification of his election as the first President of the United States.

The letter was dated Mt. Vernon, April 14, 1789, and was addressed to John Langdon, an officer of the Continental Congress.

Washington was President pro tem when the votes of the first electoral college were counted on April 6, 1789, by the United States Congress in New York. Charles Thompson, secretary of the Continental Congress, was dispatched from New York, where Congress was meeting, to inform Washington of his election. He arrived at Mt. Vernon shortly after noon April 14.

"Mount Vernon, April 14, 1789

"Sir:

"I had the honor to receive your official communication by the hand of Mr. Secretary Thompson, about 1 o'clock this day. Having concluded to obey the important and flattering call of my country, and having been impressed with an idea of the expediency of my being with Congress at as early a period as possible, I propose to commence my journey on Thursday morning, which will be the day after tomorrow.

"I have the honor to be with sentiments of esteem, sir

"Your most obedient servant

"G. WASHINGTON

"The Honorable John Langdon, Esq."

Bassoon Solos Are Concert Hit

An audience of moderate size gathered in Hancock Hall to hear the season's second concert in this city of the Women's Symphony Orchestra, directed by Ethel Leginska. Abdon Laus was the soloist.

This program began with the Overture to Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," paused respectively to a Concerto in F for bassoon and orchestra by Weber, Tschaikovsky's Fifth Symphony and a Cortege and Air de Danse of Debussy, and concluded with Sibelius' symphonic poem, "Finlandia."

Throughout its length, Miss Leginska and her forces renewed the favorable impression that they have previously made.

Much of the interest centered inevitably in the bassoon concerto in with Laus was the chief protagonist.

Hoover Will Accept Deming Resignation

Washington, Jan. 30 (INS)—President Hoover was expected today to accept at once the resignation of William C. Deming, of Wyoming, as president of the civil service commission.

Deming submitted his resignation yesterday, and in his letter to the President, while not committing himself to the coming senatorial race in Wyoming to succeed Senator Patrick Sullivan, he said he had the matter under consideration.

Senate May Act on Philippine Question

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—Senate Action on the question of independence for the Philippines seems likely before the end of the present session, but a decision in the House is regarded as improbable.

Recent labor riots in California, involving Filipinos, and the introduction of the question of Philippine imports into the sugar tariff discussion have brought the subject to the fore.

Oppose Beauty Tests as Girl Tries Suicide

Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 30 (AP)—The Polish Catholic press has started a strong campaign against beauty contests on the ground that they are immoral. A young Warsaw girl, Irene Wierzbicka, tried to shoot herself because a rival, Miss Batycka, had been elected "Miss Poland" in a newspaper beauty contest.

This was cited today by the Catholic press to indicate the danger of beauty contests in creating undesirable feeling.

Antique a Day No. 10

The collecting of toy furniture is one of the most fascinating occupations of the lover of the antique. The fact that children's playthings were subject to hard usage and almost inevitable breakage, makes for rarity of good specimens. Dolls are the great exception, due to the old-time custom of training little girls to guard them carefully and to bring them out to view on rare occasions when company arrived.

The chair shown yesterday is of a type well remembered by the older generation. It is typical of the Sighing Sixties and the Sober Seventies. In style it is somewhat hybrid, with cabriole legs and skirt in good Chippendale form. The frame is elaborately carved mahogany in rococo design. The piece is one of a set built to ordeq for an old Boston family.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary Year, the Boston Evening American will publish from day to day interesting specimens of authentic antiques. Readers possessing genuine antiques, particularly articles of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association, are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. In case no photograph is available, the American will send one of its staff cameramen to photograph your antique if you live in Greater Boston. Material should be addressed to "Antique Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston."

Fear Three Lost on Camouflaged Runner

Detroit, Jan. 30 (INS)—The Gray Ghost, fleetest of Lake Erie's rum boats, may have sent her crew of three men to death through means designed for the craft's salvation in her battle against the prohibition enforcement fleet.

This theory was advanced here today when efforts to locate by plane the Gray Ghost, reported by Cleveland rum runners to be fast in the ice off Pelee Island were to no avail. Inability of the planes to find the boat was ascribed to the fact that the craft was camouflaged to resemble ice and snow.

Moscow's '40 Times 40' Church Bells Silent

Moscow, Jan. 30 (AP)—Moscow's "forty times forty" churches, which for a thousand years have pealed their bells, no longer will be heard. The government today ordered them silenced forever.

An official statement explained the action as taken in response to "the mass demands" from workers that the bells be hushed because they disturbed their peace and sleep.

Dumps His Cash Into the Joshua Business

London, Jan. 30 (INS)—Sir Charles Marston, wealthy London business man and deep biblical student, has announced he is financing an expedition to Palestine to determine by excavation if it is true that Joshua blew down the walls of Jericho with trumpets.

"I intend to spend all the money I can afford to gain more knowledge; that's why I'm sending the archaeologists," said Sir Charles, who characterized King Herod as "great, maybe, but a thumping bad lot."

Ile De France Is Delayed by Strike

Many of the ship's passengers were proceeding to Cherbourg to catch the Aquitania. The French Line expected the Ile de France to clear today.

Diving Bell Takes 3 Men From Sub in Test

Aboard U. S. Falcon, off Key West, Fla., Jan. 30 (AP)—Naval officers today scanned weather reports to determine whether they would continue experiments with the O'Rourke diving bell, which provided means of escape for two members of the crew of the submerged submarine S-4 in its first test.

The O'Rourke bell was successfully operated yesterday to a depth of 68 feet. The bell was lowered from the Falcon, and on the second attempt was seated over the motor hatch of the S-4. The diving bell crew entered the S-4, and two of the submarine crew went into the bell and were raised to the surface. Today's plan called for further tests in deeper waters.

LOVEJOY by BEATRICE BURTON

A Wonderful Love Story by Author of 'Hollywood Girl,' 'Easy.'

What Has Happened Before

Tom Nicholson and his young and beautiful wife are happy with their baby and tiny bungalow until wealthy neighbors, the Aldersons, come into their lives. Mrs. Alderson, whose husband is elderly, has an affair with a man named "Jack." Lovejoy takes Tom to a card party at the Aldersons. Norris Shane comes to look after the baby. Lovejoy is amused to discover Norris's fondness for Tom. Steve Oglesby, Lovejoy's former sweetheart, is present. When Tom receives attention from another girl, Lovejoy is furious. Going out with Steve, she asks him to kiss her. She wants to get even with Tom. Next morning mutual recrimination takes place. Tom compliments Norris Shane on her appearance. Lovejoy is peeved. She hires a maid in spite of Tom's objections. Then daily letters arrive. They are for Mrs. Alderson, but Lovejoy has agreed to receive them for her.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER 18

THE most dangerous state that a young married woman can be in is to be out of love with her husband.

And for the last couple of weeks Lovejoy had felt that she and Tom were almost enemies.

They had made up their quarrels. But the memory of the quarrels lingered on like the taste of something bitter in her mouth.

She had hired Hilda when she knew that they couldn't afford a housemaid. Tom had said nothing much about it, after Hilda came to work. But he hadn't been half so friendly and pleasant around the house since that time.

Some of the bloom and some of the freshness had been rubbed from their love for each other.

Perhaps that was why Lovejoy was so glad to see Steve Oglesby that night.

Perhaps that was why he never had seemed so good-looking and so attractive to her as he did when he came walking into the little living-room and took off his coat before the fire.

"I brought you a box of candy, Lovejoy," he said smiling at her with his blue eyes, "Mint paste."

They both laughed as he pulled a big white box from one of the pockets of the overcoat. In the old days he had always brought her mint paste when he came to see her.

"That's my weakness still," she said gaily, taking it from him.

They sat down on the little couch that was drawn up before the fire.

"Speaking of weaknesses," she went on after a pause, "what do you see in that Mont girl you've been running around with, Steve Oglebay? Not that it's any of my business, but I can't imagine your falling for her. She's not your type."

Steve said nothing.

"She's not your type, is she?" Lovejoy said again, prodding him with her finger. "Steve used to love with her and suddenly she wanted to hear him say so.

"You don't like her as well as you used to like me, do you?" she persisted. "Do you, Steve?"

He was scowling down into the fire. "No," he answered sullenly, as if he did not want to answer.

Then, in that same unwilling sullen way, he raised his head and looked at her.

"What do you ask me things like that for?" he said. "Do you want to hear me tell you that I care for you now just as much as I did 14 or 15 months ago?"

Lovejoy shivered. . . . She had read somewhere that the only adventure there is for women is making a man fall in love with them. Well, it was true, wasn't it?

"Yes, I want to hear you say it, she answered steadily.

Then she drew back, knowing that he was going to kiss her. He put his hands around her wrists, and the close, hard pressure of his fingers thrilled her.

"I came here tonight, Lovejoy," he said, "so that I could see you here with your husband and your baby. I had an idea that maybe that would pound it into my head good, that you're married and a mother—and that the best thing I could do would be to get you off my mind."

Lovejoy pulled her hands away and stood up.

"Come and see the baby, Steve," she said, "I forgot to show him to you."

But before they were out of the room a sharp tapping came on the pane of one of the front windows.

"Let me in!" Aline Alderson's voice came faintly to them through the glass.

As she let the Aldersons into the house Lovejoy wondered how long they had been standing there on the front porch. She hoped they hadn't seen Steve holding her by the wrists and drawing her close to him.

"We really are good neighbors, Al and I," Aline cried as she came into the warm, cozy little room.

JUDGE REFUSES WATCH-WARD WARRANT IN ART CASE

Believe Missing Natick Clothier Drowned in Charles

WATCH - WARD IS REBUFFED BY COURT

Judge Rules "Art Is Art" and Refuses Warrant for Arrest of Book Dealer

Art is art, Judge Frank J. Good ruled in the warrant session of the municipal court today, where he administered a rebuff to the Watch and Ward Society.

That organization, through its secretary, Rev. Charles Bodwell, sought a warrant against the proprietors of a Bromfield st. store which he alleged was holding improper literature with intent to sell. The court refused to issue the warrant.

The basis of the Watch and Ward complaint was a book purchased at the store by one of its agents for $3.50. It contained 100 art prints, three of which the Rev. Bodwell characterized as improper. It was printed in England.

Judge Good inspected the publication and declared it to be a work of art. In the three pictures specifically complained of he found nothing of an impure nature from the standpoint of art and no reason to prohibit sale.

Fly Swatting Pastime Banned by These Wellesley Girls

JAILED, FINED IN ATTACK ON COP

As a result of a free-for-all during a raid in a Somerville home in which a man, his wife and son are alleged to have attacked the raiding policeman with fists, chair and bed-sheet, Nicholas Macerali, father of eight children, was sentenced to two years in House of Correction and fined $1000

He was found guilty of assault and battery on Policeman Alfred Carey, the raiding officer. Illegal sale of liquor and keeping and exposing liquor for sale, Carey testified that after purchasing a pint of liquor from Macerali for $1, he attempted to place him under arrest, whereupon he was attacked by Macerali, his wife and a son. The policeman said the wife tried to hit him with a chair and that the son tried to throw a bed-sheet over his head

After hearing the testimony Judge Sturtevant issued warrants for the wife and son charging assault and battery. Macerali appealed and was sent to East Cambridge jail because of inability to raise $500 bail.

Alleged Auto Thief Nabbed in Brighton

Students Breed Flies With Pedigrees

People swat flies and swear at them, but very seldom do people breed them. Nevertheless, Miss Jean Hall of Iloilo, Philippine Islands, and Miss Betty Quimby of Englewood, N. J., seniors at Wellesley College, not only breed flies, but record their respective characteristics and sexes with as much accuracy as any census taker.

These two seniors are members of a class of 18 which is studying the laws of heredity in the course offered by the department of zoology at Wellesley.

The flies are not ordinary house flies. They are pedigreed flies, imported from the U. S. biological laboratories at Woods Hole, where their propagation is carried on under scientific supervision.

To care for a single fly is no easy task, but several flies are very difficult to manage. After the embryo fly has passed through the egg-larva-worm-pupae stages, he or she is ready to be mated.

The students must transfer the flies from their bottles corked with cotton into traps where they are chloroformed and then put under the microscope for observation before choosing the right species for mating.

Woe to the girl who lets her prisoner escape or her family of flies multiply beyond possibility of computation! And woe to the unlucky one who forgets to place some banana preparation within the bottle; her flies will die of starvation.

One girl allowed her flies to freeze to death and was too depressed to carry out her plans for the week-end in Boston. The entire process had to be gone through again.

When the flies are once organized there are two particular experiments to be made.

One is the proof of the Mendelian theory, in which the major characteristic stands in three to one ratio to the minor characteristics in the second generation of offspring.

For example, when a fly with brick-red eyes and a fly with scarlet eyes are mated there are all brick-red eyed children; but there are three brick-red eyed grandchildren to one scarlet-eyed grandchild.

The other important experiment is that of criss-cross inheritance When a red-eyed male is mated with a long-winged female, their female offsprings will have long wings and red eyes

If the same male is mated with a short-winged female all their male children will have short wings and red eyes

The grandchildren flies of these two generations will be of four types: short-winged and red-eyed, long-winged and eosin-eyed, short-winged and eosin-eyed; long-winged and red-eyed, with the latter parental types predominating.

What happens to these interesting insects after inspection?

SEES FOOTE AS POLICE 'CZAR'

The claim of Chief of Police Finn of Chelsea that placing the proposed police school under the State Department of Public Safety would give an impression that Gen. Alfred F. Foote is seeking to become "czar" of the police protection in the State," was flayed by Capt. Thomas E. Bligh of the State police at a hearing at the State House.

Chief Finn said he wanted the school under the Department of Civil Service, which the bill provides.

Capt. Bligh denied that Gen. Foote has any such ambitions. He said the State police radio broadcasting was not mandatory.

The bill calls for the creation of a school for police officers, to be open to all officers in the State. Several speakers opposed control by the civil service.

Speakers in favor included Chief of Police H. Allen Rutherford of Brookline, Capt. Bligh, Chief Thomas Urquhart of Arlington and Capt. John L. Maloney of Springfield.

BUSINESS GOOD ALLEN SAYS

Governor Allen declared "business conditions in Massachusetts are as fine as they ever have been," at the 31st annual dinner of the Middlesex Bar Association, held at the Parker House. The governor gave a brief resume of the financial status of the Commonwealth, and brought the greetings of the State to the assembled members of the bar.

Governor Allen commented on the splendid work being done by the judicial council, and said that this year, more than ever before, the recommendations of that body have been given careful attention by the Legislature. Governor Allen also commented on the splendid work that Massachusetts has always done in connection with the State's "unfortunates" in prisons, hospitals and such institutions, and that the Commonwealth is far ahead of any other State in the country in its treatment of such cases. He advised that this good work be continued.

In closing, Governor Allen commented on the splendid work being done by Capt. Parker as regulator of motor vehicles.

POSSE MAKES VAIN SEARCH OF SWAMP

John F. Bradley Vanished Five Days Ago, Following an Auto Accident

Natick Jan 30—Strangely missing for five days following an automobile accident in which his car was wrecked, John F. Bradley, Framingham resident and local clothier, is now feared by police to have been drowned in the Charles river

Search of swamplands in this town and Sherborn failed to reveal any traces of the missing man and, from talks with residents about the scene of the accident, the authorities believe Bradley may very likely have stumbled into the river while in a dazed condition from his injuries.

The snow interfered somewhat with the search of the swamps, but police combed the river bank on both sides for a long distance and planned to continue this search until dark.

If Bradley was drowned in the river his body will probably be discovered soon, although perhaps at a point miles down the stream, the leaders of the search believe. National Guard troops were not called upon, as planned, but may be used in the search tomorrow.

AUTO WAS WRECKED.

Bradley's automobile skidded and was wrecked between Natick and Sherborn shortly after noon last Saturday

He was last seen by Arthur C. Dowse, treasurer of the Natick Five Cents Savings Bank and a resident of Sherborn, just after the accident. Dowse went to Bradley's aid as he was crawling out of the wreckage and offered to take him to a Framingham physician. He was not injured and asked where he could locate the nearest telephone as he wanted to call a garage and have his car towed away.

Dowse directed him to the Collins home, a short distance from the scene. Bradley started in the direction of the house, but appeared bewildered when he reached the driveway, according to the story Dowse has told the State police at Framingham barracks

The checkup showed that Bradley had not used the telephone in the Collins home and that he had visited no other house in the section. A report that he had been seen at mass in St. Stephen's Church, Framingham, Sunday also proved to be groundless.

MISSING FOR 5 DAYS

Bradley, who is married and lives with his wife at the Framingham address, left his place of business in Natick shortly before noon Saturday to have dinner at the Framingham home.

After dinner he told his wife he would return in an hour to take her shopping and then he started for Sherborn to deliver a suit of clothes. While he was returning toward Natick the accident occurred.

The following description of Bradley has been broadcast from the State police radio station at Framingham barracks: Bradley is 40 years of age, is 5 feet 10 inches tall, and weighs 150 pounds. He has grey eyes and brown hair. He was wearing a blue overcoat, a brown suit with a red pencil stripe and a soft hat. He was wearing an Elks' pin and had a bloodstone ring on his left hand. He had $50 when he left home

Curley Creates Two Bureaus From One

Mayor Curley resurrected the defunct Industrial Commercial and Publicity Bureau today and splitting it in halves created and filled two $5000 jobs.

As director of a Boston Industrial Bureau he named John T. Scully, secretary of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange.

As director of a Boston Publicity Bureau he appointed Thomas A. Mullen, attorney, and secretary to the late Mayor Josiah Quincy.

The bureaus, which now becomes two bureaus, was created by Mayor Curley during his second term and allowed to die by Mayor Nichols.

CURLEY APPOINTS FITZGERALD AS BOSTON TERCENTENARY CHIEF

JOHN F.' IN POSITION TO AID CAUSE

He Helped Mayor's Recent Campaign; Celebration Committee to Meet Tomorrow

Mayor Curley today appointed ex Mayor John F. Fitzgerald chairman of the Boston Tercentenary Committee, and politicians promptly professed to see in the appointment a significant move greatly benefiting "John F." in his campaign for Governor in the fall.

The former mayor, long an arch political enemy of Curley, was active in behalf of Curley in the recent mayoral fight.

His aid was warmly appreciated, it is said, and his appointment to a position where he has an excellent opportunity to keep himself conspicuously before the public make helpful contacts with business leaders and otherwise further his gubernational ambition, is reputed to be a reward for that aid.

At the first meeting of the executive committee and vice-chairmen of the Boston Tercentenary Committee, tomorrow at 2 30 at the Old South Meeting House, the Mayor will introduce the appointees to his assisting officers, with due formality.

The committee when completed will be composed of 250 prominent business, civic and social leaders of this city and it will have charge of the Boston celebration. It is now in process of formation.

The vice-chairmen already appointed are Mrs. James M Curley, Gen. F H Appleton and Frederic Winthrop. The executive committee consists of Frank C Brown, chairman; Miss Elizabeth M. Herlihy, William C. Crawford, Joseph A. F. O'Neil, Miss Mary A. Barr, Frank S Davis, Edmund L. Dolan, Gleason L. Archer, Charles H. Johansson, Arthur L. Race, Thomas F. Lenney, Mrs. Eva Whiting White, Col. Percy A. Guthrie, Carl Dreyfus and James W Reardon.

Mayor Curley in the final year of his first term as mayor began formation of a tercentenary committee and named his vice-chairmen, but Mayor Nichols abolished it and named his committee of his own, which, however, never functioned. Mayor Curley revived his own committee as soon as he took office this month.

88, Still Going Strong

Ralph M. Sturtevant, who has conducted a butcher shop at the same site in Union sq., Somerville, for 66 years, puts in 10 hours daily attending to his business. He is 88 and in the best of health. (Staff photo.)

In Business at Same Site 66 Years

Ralph M Sturtevant walked down to his store in Union sq Somerville, today just as he has walked down to his job for the past 66 years.

And tonight he will walk from his meat market to his home at 76 Columbus ave—just as he has walked it for the past 66 years.

On the very site where it now stands in Somerville ave., Sturtevant established his meat market 66 years ago after moving from Center Harbor, N. H.

He first delivered his own orders, with a basket on his arm. Later he bought a horse and wagon for deliveries. Now several trucks are used. His son, George, is manager of the market and there are five clerks, cashier and a bookkeeper.

Sturtevant is hale and hearty and has been ill only once in his life. He sticks by the old adage of early to bed and early to rise. The movies are his chief amusement.

He has three daughters as well as the one son, and Judge Malcom E. Sturtevant of the Somerville court is a nephew. He is a Mason and the oldest member of the Oasis Lodge of Odd Fellows.

BOSTON EXPERT RIDICULES TAX APPEAL BOARD

Inigis-Cook Commission Hearings Theme for Comic Opera, Says Philip Nichols

Hearings before the State board tax appeal were ridiculed today a travesties on justice and extremely discreditable to the Commonwealth" by Philip Nichols of ...ston, tax expert.

Speaking before the legislative committee on taxation on a bill to create a new board of appeal, Nichols said one could write a comic opera based on these hearings.

The present board consists of State Treasurer John W. Haigis, State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook and a member of the Governor's council.

The new board, recommended by a special commission that investigated taxation problems for two years, would consist of three men ...is to be appointed by the Governor.

Nichols amplified his remarks by saying that "with all due respect to the present members, they are not well enough acquainted with intricate tax problems presented in cases involving textile plants and the like."

Asst. Atty.-Gen. R. Ammi Cutter said that the fact that two members were likely to be biased in favor of the State were dissatisfied with the present board.

Proposed Gas Holder in Newton Protested

The proposed erection of a huge gas holder in Newton, 350 feet high and 250 feet in diameter, has moved Aldermen John Temperley to launch a campaign to marshal the forces of residents in opposition to the project.

Describing the contemplated building as a "structural monstrosity," Temperley contends that it will mar the beauty of skyline of the Garden City. He points out that it would rise 130 feet higher than Bunker Hill Monument. He advocates the erection of a number of smaller holders instead.

WARNS REVERE ON FIN. COM.

Senator Michael J. Ward of Boston today characterized the Boston Finance Commission, up to the advent of Frank A. Goodwin as chairman, as "a bubble-blowing outfit that never accomplished anything."

"The city of Boston," he said, "appropriated $50,000 every year for pipe and this commission with which to blow the bubbles."

"But when I speak of bubble-blowers I mean including Frank A. Goodwin. I consider him one of the most capable men in the State if there is to be any success accruing from the Finance Commission it will come through the efforts of Mr. Goodwin."

Ward, member of the legislative committee on cities, was warning John D. Macauley of Revere, who was asking for a finance commission for his city, on the perils of taking such a step.

Macaulay pointed out that the city has a tax rate of $34.60, the highest in the State. He complained that the taxpayers' money is being spent illegally.

"They took 30 minutes to decide how they were going to spend $900,000 for sewers and talked about it afterwards. An audit made a year ago has never been published in the local press for the benefit of the taxpayers."

Scores Hub Police on 'Rough Shod' Raids

That the police are running "rough-shod" over the people in the use of search warrants and that the situation is an invitation to repetitions of the Garrett case, was charged today by Senator Buckley at a legislative hearing before the legislative committee on judiciary.

He urged an amendment to the law under which police officers would be criminally liable for exceeding the limits of search documents.

He instanced where numerous wrong street numbers appear in these warrants and are ignored by the searching officers.

"Many citizens do not know that force can be used to eject police officers when they go beyond the limit of a search warrant," he said.

"If you are going to allow the police to ride rough-shod over the citizens you are inviting situations similar to the Garrett case."

Extradition of Moe Newman Approved

THORE STRIKES AT REFINED PAUPERISM

Urges That Pensions Be Paid Without the Touch of Pauper Dole

Several petitions for an old age pension system to be establish under the supervision of the public welfare department were denounced today at a legislative hearing by Wendell P. Thore of Squantum as "refined pauperism."

He advocated a bill sponsored by him for years for a non-contributory old age pension system "untouched by the degrading fingers of the pauper dole method."

"Good citizens out of government employ," he declared, "are as much entitled to clean, unsupervised methods as are government employes, whose pensions are paid by the general taxpayer."

Because his bill was the best one proposed, he added, organized labor has endorsed it.

Under one bill before the committee, presented by the Fraternal Order of Eagles, he said, persons would not be eligible for pensions until they reach the age of 70 years.

"This bill is a pension-in-the-coffin. Of what worth at 50 and starve until 70 is what one might call rare humanitarianism," he stated. "Under my bill women of 60 and over and men 65 and above would be eligible for persons as a reward for good citizenship. It would be given as a right."

"Now that the old age pension idea is winning the master minds would like to guide the movement. Don't be fooled by these holiday soldiers."

ANOTHER TYPICAL EXAMPLE OF BON-TONE'S SUCCESS

Dorchester Resident, Aged 80, Tells of His Relief From Rheumatism

Mr. C. D. Ryan
Bon-Tone Representative

In a recent statement to the Bon-Tone man at Epstein's Drug Store, Scollay Square, Boston, Mr. Jeremiah J. Cleary, aged 80, of 10 Victory Road, Dorchester, Mass., who used to be a sailor, said:

"I had trouble with my stomach for a good many years. I had no appetite, was gassy, and what I did eat didn't seem to do me much good—gas would form, and cause me great pain. I was also constipated, and in recent years I was troubled with rheumatism, and my kidneys were too active. I came to the conclusion that I was beyond relief.

"However, my daughter saw in the local newspaper that people right here in Boston were getting relief from Bon-Tone, and prevailed on me to try it. I did so, and have now taken four bottles of this remedy, and I must say that it has given me wonderful satisfaction. My stomach is now in good condition, my bowels and kidneys are working properly, and I certainly got great relief from rheumatism. Of course, I realize that a man 80 years old with ailments like mine can't be cured immediately; but when a few bottles give the results that I have received, I have no doubt that, with the aid of Bon-Tone, there are a few more years' wear in this old frame of mine. Bon-Tone certainly helped me, and I am glad to recommend it to anybody troubled as it was."

Go to Epstein Drug Co., Inc., Scollay Square, Boston, and meet our representative. He will explain more about Bon-Tone to you.

For your convenience Bon-Tone is for sale in South Boston at Cole's, S. Austin's Drug Store, Fields Square, and in Cambridge at the Cole Drug Co., 636 Mass. Ave., Central Square.

PARKER, WARNER URGE NEW LAW ON DRUNKEN DRIVING ARRESTS

PHYSICIAN'S WORD WOULD BE SECURED

Police Would Be Given Power to Arrest in Such Cases Without Warrants

Any citizen who is arrested and charged with operating an automobile under the influence of liquor should have the right to be examined by a physician before the charges could be substantiated.

This opinion was voiced today by Atty. Gen. Joseph E. Warner and Capt. George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles, before the joint legal affairs committee sitting at the State House.

The appearance of Atty. Gen. Warner before the committee was to obtain approval of the recommendation in his annual report that police officers be given the power to arrest without warrants persons operating while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

"All the district attorneys of the state would be here today to support this recommendation, were they able to do so," said the attorney general. "In their behalf I ask the adoption of the measure."

Representative Ginsberg: "Would you favor the passage of the bill requiring that all persons so arrested should be examined by a physician?"

PARKER'S OPINION.

"I believe in the principle that a person so accused should be given the opportunity to be examined by a physician," declared Atty.-Gen. Warner.

Capt. George A. Parker, registrar, who was present in connection with other bills, was asked as to his opinion of the proposed law. He remarked that one difficulty was that it might be impossible to reach a physician because of the location of the police station.

"I suppose if a man were arrested on the ten of Penn Mountain, it would be impossible to get a physician for some hours or even at all," said Capt. Parker. He agreed that the arrested man should have the right to have a physician, if one could be obtained.

Representative Thomas C. Crowther of Fall River favored the bill to arrest without warrant a person deemed to be operating under the influence of liquor. He told the committee the bill would give to local police the same power as now held by the State police.

Registrar Parker: "A great many police departments throughout the Commonwealth feel as I do, that the passage of such a law would strengthen their hands in connection with [illegible] [illegible] you know of any cases where the lack of power of the police officer to make an arrest enabled the guilty person to get away?"

COVER DRUG CASES, THIS

Registrar Parker said he could not cite a specific case, but was sure there were cases where police officer makes the arrest on the charge of being drunk because he cannot arrest him for driving under the influence. It makes it hard for the police.

Capt. Parker also spoke for his bill to allow police officers to arrest persons driving automobiles under the influence of exhilarating or stupefying drugs.

When asked his opinion of the law proposed in these two bills, Atty.-Gen. Warner replied: "I favor the principle, of course."

Better Lights on State Highways Demanded

Legislation to provide protection for state highways was urged at a legislative hearing today before the committee on highways and motor vehicles.

Senator Frank W. Osborne of Lynn declared it was necessary for co-operation between the state, counties and municipalities for a better system of highway illumination.

He said many stretches of state highways are not properly illuminated now because of the financial inability of some of the towns to provide lights.

Dudley M. Diggs, street lighting expert, agreed with Osborne and Russell A. Harmon of Worcester pleaded for the making of arrangements for lighting the proposed new Worcester-Boston turnpike, while construction plans are in progress.

GIRL ORGANIST FIRE HEROINE

Music, played by a cool, self-possessed young woman organist, won out over the natural inclination to stampede and a packed house at the Waltham Theater, Moody st., Waltham, filed out slowly as smoke poured down from a flaming projection booth in the balcony.

The organist, Miss Mary Beadle, heroically remained at her bench and played "Sweet Adeline" and her conduct had such a marked effect on the patrons that there was not the slightest semblance of disorder.

Remy Knopp, projection machine operator and Edward Baxter, his assistant, had narrow escapes as the film burst into flame. They just managed to escape the confines of the booth and shut the doors, holding the dense smoke back for a time. The booth and several rolls of film were destroyed.

Ronald Bamford, 16, of Franklin ave., Somerville, was found guilty of assault on Patrolman Hourihan and sentenced to the same institution. Guy Agostino, 17, of Maywood ave., Roxbury, was held in $10,000 bail for the grand jury on a charge of attempting to break and enter a Row at (Somerville) chain store. He was sentenced to one month in House of Correction for using an automobile without authority.

Two Fined on Auto Charges in Roxbury

John O'Hannessian, also known as John O'Harn, of 74 Montgomery st., was fined $25 for allowing an improper person to operate a machine he had hired.

COURT UPHOLDS KING OUSTING

The full bench of the Supreme Judicial Court affirmed a decree of a single justice in dismissing a petition for a writ of mandamus brought by Martin A. King of Quincy to compel Mayor Thomas J. McGrath of that city to recognize King as the auditor of accounts of Quincy.

On February 29, 1928, the person performing the duties of auditor died. Mayor McGrath appointed Elizabeth N. Dunn to the place. On March 5, 1928, the City Council elected King to the position.

The full court says that under the present charter of the city of Quincy the power to appoint an auditor is vested in the mayor.

ONE DEFENDANT IS ACQUITTED IN SLAYING

Court, However, Refuses to Order a Verdict for Casaro in Alabiso's Death

Carmello Garufo, 37, of Hanover st., North End, on trial in Suffolk Superior Court charged with being an accessory to murder in connection with the slaying of Salvatore Alabiso of East Boston last October, was freed today after Judge Daniel T. O'Connell ordered the jury to return a verdict of not guilty.

Pleas for a directed verdict in favor of Rocco Casaaro, on trial as the slayer of Alabiso, were denied by the court.

The release of Garufo from custody was greeted by wild screams of hysterical women relatives who, for more than a week, have sat in the courtroom listening attentively to each bit of evidence that might have meant death in the electric chair for the two defendants.

The screams of the women reechoing through the corridors of the courthouse drew a large crowd to the room where the trial of Casaaro was continuing before Judge O'Connell ordered officers to clear the court and the excited relatives of Garufo were led into anti-room, where Garufo, in tears, greeted them

MEDICAL FUND NOW $536,702

Gifts towards the establishment of the New England Medical Center made since the starting of the $1,500,000 fund on January 23, have brought the total of the fund to $536,702.50, it was announced, following a meeting of the executive committee at the Chamber of Commerce.

The fund will be used to erect new buildings to house the medical center, in the formation of which the Boston Dispensary, Eaton Floating Hospital and Tufts Medical School are combining, and to provide endowment to meeting operating costs.

One of the features of the proposed center will be the setting up of informal study for practicing doctors which, it is said, will enable family physicians in small communities to keep pace with medical progress without giving up their practices.

BIBLE READERS GO 15 HOURS

Swampscott's Bible Marathon came to a close two hours behind schedule, although the Rev. Edson G. Waterhouse, pastor of the First Methodist Church, where the feature was staged, announced himself as eminently satisfied with the results.

"We were not out to make records for reading," he explained. "We simply wanted to arouse interest in Bible reading and I believe we succeeded very well."

Approximately 65 persons kept up the continuous reading of all chapters of the New Testament, in 15 hours. Each read aloud for 15 minutes and was then relieved by another volunteer. There was no interruption once the reading was started.

An Ailing CHILD

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

BOSTON LETTER A BIG PUZZLE TO RUMANS

Mail Sorters Unable to Translate Address on the Envelope

Someone in Boston caused the postal authorities of Rumania a lot of trouble recently. And a letter written to the youthful King Michael was the cause of it all.

The letter was written and mailed from Boston on December 13. It bore the address "H. R. H. Michael, King of Rumania, Europe." The envelope bore no clue to the name or address of the writer.

It arrived in Temesvar but the sorters there were not linguists. They decided the words "King of" must mean "Konighof," a village in Banat inhabited by descendants of German settlers, so they forwarded the letter there with a note on the envelope, "Remeta Germany," meaning, in Rumanian, Konighof

In Konighof a German peasant solved the riddle by explaining to the postal officials that the letter was intended for the King. It was at once transmitted to Bucharest but whether it came into the young King's hands has not been learned.

SAWYER SEEKS HIGHER OFFICE

Unless abler Democratic leaders come forward within two weeks to lead the party to victory, Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, member of the House of Representatives from Ware, will become a candidate for a major office.

The clergyman made this announcement before 1200 active workers of the Women's Democratic League, whose conference at Teachers' College extended into the early hours today.

Attacking the Republican national and state administrations as responsible for the closing of New England factories and existing conditions in the Boston police department, the Congregational clergyman insisted that the time was ripe for Democratic success and that the voters were merely waiting for intelligent standard bearers to win the Commonwealth.

For the selection of the Democratic candidates, Joseph B. Ely of Westfield demanded an informal convention of the party leaders throughout the State during the summer.

Representing Marcus A. Coolidge of Fitchburg, who was detained in the South, former Mayor M. Fred O'Connell of that city declared that the party could not get a Letter candidate for the Senate than Coolidge.

"The Republican party is demoralized," said the Rev. Mr. Sawyer. "It has been flatly deserted in this State by the Hoover administration at Washington, which has tied up with the Western group, passing a tariff bill which means the closin- of Massachusetts factories, cutting wages; hard times and bread lines."

DOCTORS ISSUE DIET WARNINGS

Too Strenuous Reducing Diets Lead to Serious Results

Statistics from all over the country show an alarming number of girls and women who are paying the penalty of reducing diets which are sponsored by ill-advised people. These slaves to their diet are suffering from many evils. Some have the resistance to the common cold, many have constipation and there are those who are in the first stages of tuberculosis.

Overweight should be avoided but the diet in normal cases should be complete. The system needs regularly proteins, roughage, water and vitamins. The foods which have these elements are meat, fish, eggs, leafy vegetables, fruit and milk.

In planning meals, desserts should not be overlooked. They fill an important place in diet. Cakes, puddings, fruit pies, custards, ice cream and candy are a fitting climax to a balanced meal. Sugar sprinkled on cereals makes them more palatable and especially inviting to children.

Many cooks have discovered the value of an old rule to use sugar in seasoning vegetables. Carrots, parsnips, tomatoes, peas and cabbages, which are rich in nourishment, are much improved in color and flavor by adding a dash of sugar during the cooking process.

It does not pay to risk your health by denying yourself necessary food in an effort to reduce your weight to compare with that of another. Health depends upon good foods and good foods can be made more appetising with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

CO-OPERATIVE BANK RESERVE FUNDS HIT

Vigorous Opposition to Plan in a Hearing by the Legislature

Vigorous opposition to a recommendation made by Bank Commissioner Roy A. Hovey to authorize co-operative banks to maintain a reserve of 10 per cent in liquid assets was today voiced at a hearing before the legislative committee on banks and banking.

The recommendation of the commissioner had the endorsement of the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League.

Morton Collingwood of Plymouth, representing the Plymouth Co-operative Bank, contended that when the subject was broached at the league's annual meeting there was barely a quorum present, and the vote was a voice one.

H J. Johnson, chairman of the legislative committee of the league, defended the recommendation saying it was a good measure in that it enabled the banks in instances where there are unusual demands for funds to meet the wishes of clients.

Commissioner Hovey explained that shortly after the crash in the stock market in November, 56 co-operative banks in the state applied to him for permission to borrow funds from savings banks and similar institutions because their assets were tied up in real estate mortgages.

Frank L. Brier and W. T. A. Fitzgerald favored the principle of the bill but thought that five per cent would be sufficient as a reserve as the setting up of a reserve cuts down the earning capacity of the banks.

The petition will be presented to the selectmen at a special town meeting tonight.

Team Work Places Bruins at Top in League Race

LOCAL SIX CHANGES TACTICS

By BILL GRIMES

ANY team which can function with its star out of the lineup is a perfect machine.

Although Eddie Shore, the dynamo defense man, was hors de combat last week, the Bruins hit on all six cylinders and defeated Les Canadiens

Bill Grimes

For two or three years, the impression has prevailed that the success of the Bruins depended to a large extent on whether or not Eddie Shore was in the lineup. There is no denying that Eddie is one of the greatest of all time players, regarding him from any angle

He has been a sensation since he broke into the N. H. L. His speed, daring and all around ability has brought him fame and has been an inspiration to his teammates. He is the best box office attraction in professional hockey and is fully deserving of the honor of being referred to as "The Babe Ruth of Hockey."

Until this season, doubtless, the Bruins did depend to a major extent on Eddie Shore. He has been an important factor in the success of the Bruins this year. But, now, due to the development of a smooth functioning machine and the change in their style of play, the Bruins are in a position where the absence of any one player, with the single exception of Tiny Thompson, will have little noticeable effect on the playing or success of the team.

OWEN FITS PERFECTLY

George Owen, the former Harvard star, was assigned to fill Eddie Shore's boots against Les Canadiens. The ex-Crimson athlete fitted perfectly into the Bruin machine.

It was the sensational defensive play of George Owen, Lionel Hitchman and Tiny Thompson that was mainly responsible for the Bruins' win over the Flying Frenchmen.

No one has ever attempted to set up the claim that George Owen is an Eddie Shore. And least of all, George himself. But, the fact remains that with Owen on the defense, the Bruins held the great French team to one goal, against one of the wildest offensives Les Canadiens have uncorked this season.

Appreciating their own ability as a machine, the Bruins did not carry any inferiority complex into Les Canadiens game because Eddie Shore has been left at home. They felt that they could take the Frenchmen into camp and were every bit as confident of victory as they would have been if Eddie had been back there on the defense with Capt. Hitchman.

Such a mental condition on the part of the Bruins is invaluable, not on the great defense man, but simply further proof of the confidence the Bruins have developed since they changed their style of play.

BRUINS CHANGE TACTICS

Until this season, the Bruins divided their hockey about equally between trying to win games and maim opponents. They were fairly successful in both endeavors.

But to a certain extent the glory acquired from victories was nullified by the criticism for their unnecessary rough play. They were known as the battling, bruising Bruins.

They were ridden to a fare-thee-well by the fans during road games in spite of their admirable ability, they were unpopular with the fans around the N. H. L. Even when the players of the other teams in the league held them in the same light as the fans.

Because of their rough tactics, there were many deliberate attempts to get Bruins players and many of them were successful.

The Bruins have played particularly rough hockey this season. They have had only three major and 151 minor penalties called on them this season in 29 games.

An idea of just how much the Bruins have toned down can be obtained from the fact that, as far as majors are concerned turn out to be Mickie MacKay, Cooney Weiland and Dutch Gainor. Eddie Shore, with 38 and Lionel Hitchman with 29 have served about 40 per cent of the Bruins' total.

This is a natural condition as Shore and Hitchman in carrying out their defensive duties are in bodily contact with opponents and the far more often closely watched than their teammates. The entire Bruin squad has averaged only about five penalties per game, a remarkable achievement considering their past reputation.

MR. BOSTON

—by— JACK CONWAY

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 30—I found Mr. Boston sitting on the sand in front of the Roney Plaza gazing at a lively tropical sea as it dashed against the shore. He was in the company of Elwood Rigby, wrestling promoter.

"I would like to be back in Boston tonight," said Rigby

So would I," chimed Mr. Boston

"I hate to miss it" went on Rigby

"So do I," chirped Mr. Boston

"It should be a sensational match," went on Rigby. "And if Sonnenberg loses, my title bout here on February 19 won't be worth a hoot

"Dont be so gloomy," advised Mr. Boston. "If Stecher can lick Sonny in Boston tonight they would draw $100,000 in a return bout here."

"That's an idea," asserted Rigby, as his eyes brightened

Jack Conway

A FLOCK of kids dashed into the warm water, an airplane did a dip overhead, while a couple of speed boats raced along half a mile out.

The warm southern sun beat down on the beach and the sand glistened.

"Oh, I guess we'll manage to live even though we don't see the Sonnenberg-Stecher match tonight," piped Mr. Boston.

"Miami isn't such a tough place even though the evening's entertainment only consists of jog racing and the movies.

"As Paddy Waldron says, 'you don't need a snow shovel down in this country, and your back never gets tired from shoveling coal.'"

"I SAW Jack Sharkey breeze through his first workout at the Kennel Club"

"How did he look?" asked Rigby.

"Swell! Only weighed 198 pounds, which is but four pounds above his best fighting notch. He didn't step on the gas. Just worked four rounds on the light bag, two on the big bag and skipped rope for a couple of sessions

"Johnny Buckley told me Jack will probably box a round with Johnny Grosso today. Jack Cook will also be on the job, in case Sharkey wants to work out with two sparring partners."

"IN the mornings, Sharkey continues to play golf and do road work. The Squire will have to step to retain his golfing honors in his own camp as Johnny Buckley is getting off 200-yard drives. Even George Grimm will admit that a 200-yard drive isn't to be laughed at. I have seen George beat 'em for 250 yards, but he will always compromise on a 200-yard shot."

"PHIL SCOTT, British heavyweight champion, is in town and will get down to training at once. Jimmy Johnston has been on the job for several days and has been beating the Tom-Toms in his ballyhoo act.

"Johnston and Buckley have prepared a series of articles for the Chicago American which are said to be real hot copy. I got a peek at some of the advance proofs and it is certainly marvelous the way Jimmy and Jack tossed language at each other.

Phil Edwards Wins Last Race for N. Y. U.

New York, Jan. 30 (INS)—Phil Edwards' flying feet today had written a thrilling finish to his career at New York University. Running his last race in the colors of the Violet last night in the St. Joseph's Catholic Club games in the Newark Armory, the negro star distanced Ray Conger, Iowa State dope-upsetter, and won the 1000 yard event.

He covered the distance in 2m. 14 4-5s., a new armory track record. Jack Elder, the Notre Dame football ace, was defeated by Jimmy Pappas, former Princeton runner, now with the Newark A. C. in the 50-yard dash, but Elder won the 60-yard and 70-yard spurts decisively.

BASEBALL STARS CAST IN NEW ROLES

B. C. 2-Milers to Run in Millrose Games

JACK EYDER has forwarded the entries of Boston College's one and two-mile varsity relays to the officials of the Millrose A. C. games which takes place in New York a week from Saturday night.

The Eagle milers will race their traditional rivals, Georgetown and Holy Cross, while the opponents of the classy two-mile quartet have not been learned.

Four men selected from each group will constitute the relay teams.

Boston College's mile team gets its first big test of the year. Jack expects all four runners to be in perfect condition and feels that they'll get revenge on Holy Cross for the beating the Crusaders handed the Eagles in Gotham at the Brooklyn College meet.

In that race the Eagles were but 10 yards behind at the tape. Pasquantonio, leadoff man, was running with an injured ankle. He led for three-quarters of his distance and then the ankle gave way and he handed the baton over to Jack O'Brien from last place

MULCAHY INJURED

Bill Mulcahy, captain and anchorman, is now on the injured list as a result of his toss at the Prout games. But Bill has a week in which to recuperate and should be perfect for the Millrose showing.

Bob Sullivan and Jack O'Brien are expected to run with the one-mile team. O'Brien is proving the most versatile relayman at the Heights. He ran with the two-mile team at the Garden but Jack is expecting to shift him to the one mile club although he has entered his name with the two-mile relay squad.

The long-distance baton passers started off with a sensational victory over Harvard, Holy Cross, New Hampshire and Tech and want to continue with another win at New York.

Of the eight men named on the two-mile group Ryder will select four to make the trip. If O'Brien goes back with the one-mile team Ryder will use Jack Carew, Tom Daley, Tommy Meagher and Brendon Moynahan.

The addition of Carew should bolster up the club even though O'Brien who ran the fastest half-mile in the Garden race, joins the one-mile foursome

CAREW DUE TO MAKE GOOD

Carew was one of the best half-mile prospects at the Heights a year ago as a freshman. He picked up a lot of experience in the yearling meets and was due to make good with the varsity relay this year. But he has been handicapped with a sore leg. The injury is practically mended and Carew will be ready to live up to expectations.

While laboring with his relay teams for the coming Millrose and B. A. A. meets Ryder is not overlooking the moulding of a well-balanced freshman outfit for the first year gang has a dual meet with Exeter booked for next Saturday at Exeter.

Jack may not have an entry in the hurdles. Hayes, the Somerville flash, has left school and Carey, a prospective timber-topper is not yet ready to compete.

Flavio Tosi, giant end of the frosh eleven, is looming as the man to take Hayes place in the sprints. He has been turning in good time.

Jim Coultig, another grid star, is getting good distance with the shot-put and Ryder will count on him to win this event against the prep school.

TIGERS WARNED BY LEAGUE

A notice from President James E. Dooley of the Canadian-American League warning the players to refrain from fighting on the ice and threatening dire punishment for exhibitions of rough stuff, has been posted in the dressing room of the Boston Tigers in the Garden.

The communication was the result of the "Battle of the Garden" a week ago Saturday night when the Tigers engaged in a free-for-all fight with the Philadelphia Arrows, in which the players of both teams laid down a murderous barrage of flailing sticks and fists.

It was sent with particular application to tussle between Tigers and New Haven Eagle on Saturday night. The teams played in New Haven last Sunday and the Tigers won after a bitter battle in which bad feeling cropped out here and there.

Manager Eddie Powers has backed up President Dooley by warning the players to direct their energy into hockey. He has drilled the team this week on passing the puck and tyestays the Bengals worked better as a team than they have since early in the season.

This is a crucial game for the Tigers, for victory would land them within a point of the third playoff position and put them back in the running as defenders of the championship which they hold

The players are convinced that the victory over New Haven definately chased the jinx which has been camping on the Tigers' trail.

Tech Team Will Box in New York

Technology boxers will compete in New York in the latter part of next month against the New York University entrimen. The N. Y. U. boxers will use the New York Coliseum ring for its home fighting ground. The Violet punchers open their season February 15 against Syracuse. Later they will oppose West Virginia, Bucknell and Massachusetts Tech. Their only engagement out of town is against the Army boxers at West Point, February 22.

SHIKAT MEETS PAUL JONES

Dick Shikat, recognized in New York and Pennsylvania as the heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, will meet Paul Jones of Houston, Texas, known as the hook-scissors champion of heavyweight wrestling in the main event of Tex Avery's next all-star wrestling matches to be held in Mechanics Hall on Wednesday evening, February 5.

Jones claims the distinction of never having his famous hook-scissors hold broken by an opponent, once he clamped it on, and in meeting Shikat in his first appearance in Boston, one of the fiercest matches ever seen in these parts is looked for.

Independently wealthy, Jones takes his wrestling seriously, and is one of the greatest drawing cards of the wrestling game in the South and West. Standing well over six feet, Jones tips the scales at 207 pounds in fighting trim, is beautifully proportioned and is known as the "Sheik" of the wrestling world. He is only 28 years of age.

Jones has wrestled and defeated John Pesek, the Nebraska Tiger, who has recently loomed challenger to both Shikat and Sonnenberg, and because of his win over Pesk, Promoter Tex Avery selected him to meet Shikat after combing the country for an outstanding star to meet the champion.

Jones also has wins over such stars as Charlie Fox, the Cleveland policeman; Bull Komar, Rudy Dusek, Mike Romano and fully 25 other heavyweight wrestling stars.

The semi-final on Promoter Tex Avery's card will bring together Jack Taylor, the Canadian heavyweight champion and Jimmy London, the popular Greek star. Taylor, who is one of the outstanding contenders for the heavyweight crown, tips the scales at 226 pounds and in his only Boston appearance, a few months ago, wrestled Stanley Zyblako to a 30-minute draw.

H. N. Society to Hold Smoker

The athletic committe of the Holy Name Society of St. Francis De Sales parish of Charlestown will hold an athletic night at Roughan Hall, City sq., Charlestown, next Wednesday night.

This, the first of a ter of entertainments that the committee of the Bunker Hill parish has arranged for the members of the society and their friends, should be one of the banner events of the season in the Charlestown district

A large number of the best known professional and amateur boxers will appear in exhibition bouts. There will also be two matches between well e known wrestlers and a long list of local entertainers will be seen in their specialties.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

MANAGER EDDIE POWERS of the Tigers is confident that his charges will come through with their first home victory in six weeks against the New Haven Eagles at the Garden on Saturday night.

The Tigers have encountered some tough sledding this year. Offensively the team is stronger than ever, but unfortunately the defense collapsed at the most inopportune moments.

Against Springfield and New Haven, the Tigers, according to Eddie Powers, gave their best exhibitions of the season. The Indians beat Herb Rheaume for at least three soft goals, otherwise, the Can-Am champions would have taken both games.

Already the supply of tickets for the Bruins-Ranger game in New York Sunday night is practically exhausted. The Bruins are the best W. H. L. entrenched in Gotham, and with the Rangers battling Chicago for second place, the New York fans figure this game will be worth while watching.

The Bruins have defeated the Rangers nine times in a row and will be primed to hang up their 10th victory over Lester Patrick's fast-stepping sextet.

Win Green, Roxbury's contribution to the world of physical training, will have all of the injured Bruins in the well-known pink for the Ranger game. He is working on five cripples: Eddie Shore, Harry Oliver, Mickie MacKay, Dutch Gainor and Dit Clapper. Incidently, Win Green is one of the hardest working and most competent trainers connected with any branch of sports.

Notice that some of the National Hockey League officials who were dropped as incompetents earlier in the season are beginning to drift back into games.

Bobby Hewitson has an ideal temperament for a successful career as a hockey referee. He turns a deaf ear to every remark and refuses to heed any adverse criticism written concerning his work. Bobby divides his efforts equally between refereeing and collecting his money.

Evidently the fans who protested against the lack of thrills produced during the Pittsburgh-Bruins game and began to give the home players a half-hearted "boo-cheer," failed to take into consideration that the Pirates are one of those aggregations which make every opponent look tough.

Although Frank Fredrickson has little to work on, his Pirates are not making the best of what little talent they possess. The bunching of the wings in center ice has a schoolboy complexion and offers a wonderful opportunity for opposing wings to shine.

Red Green, who was with the Bruins and Providence last season, is back in shape and playing great hockey for Duluth, which team is managed by his brother, Shorty. Duluth is leading the American Association and Red is one of the league's highest scorers.

The Rhode Island Reds decision to trade Johnny Gagnon for three players instead of for any cash consideration was a wise one. With Manager Sprague Cleghorn putting the OK on the players Les Canadiens will send to Providence, the Reds will get a better return for Gagnon than they would have on a straight sale basis.

Hero of 91-Round Bout Passes Away

Omaha, Neb., Jan 30 (AP)—The death of Dan Daly, 60, featherweight fighter of four decades ago, in St. Louis yesterday, recalled to the fadeaze and grandfathers of present day Omaha fight fans, his memorable 91-round draw with Tommy White in 1890.

The fight, held here Dec. 7, 1890, is in the record books as the second longest in history.

In those days it was considered more or less of a disgrace if the battle did not end in a knockout victory. Accordingly when, at the end of the 81st round, the referee decided that the two gladiators were too weak to continue, he called the fight a draw and each fighter was fined 350 because it had not gone to a knockout

Each battler received $200 as his share of the $500 purse after the $100 in fines had been deducted which to drag out the round calculator, netted each approximately $2 19 per round.

SONNENBERG RISKS MAT CROWN

Conway Picks Sonnenberg to Beat Stecher

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 30—Don't forget to pick the winner of the Sonnenberg-Stecher bout tonight," was the contents a wire Jack Conway received from Nick Finley, generalissimo of the sporting department.

"No pence for the dopester," sighed Jack as he grabbed a stack of dope sheets.

"Battling Nelson once told me it is good policy to string along with a champion until he has been defeated," said Conway. "The percentage is on his side so I'm picking Sonnenberg to win from Stecher.

THE most important wrestling match staged in Boston in several months will be held tonight in the Arena, when Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg, heavyweight champion of the world, defends his title against Joe Stecher.

The bout is to go two out of three falls to a finish, and Sonnenberg is a slight favorite to walk off the field of battle with the crown on his head.

He is a favorite here in Boston, and the followers of the wrestling game cannot see how Gus can be beaten as long as he retains his speed and flying tackle.

The champion is in superb condition for tonight's bout. He has taken things easily for the past few days, building up reserve strength for a fresh attack which will put him to the hardest test of his career

In the past two years, Sonnenberg has burned up a lot of nervous energy, but the little giant still seems to be invincible in the same speed that amazed the sporting world when he first bulleted into the headlines

STECHER CONFIDENT

Stecher is confident that he will defeat Sonny. In his two local appearances, he overwhelmed Stanley Stasiak and Joe Malcewicz. The manner in which he defeated Malcewicz was so convincing that there never was a question of superiority.

Stecher has come back so far along the come-back road that he stands out as the most serious contender for the crown in the world.

The battle between the scissors and the flying tackle is expected to be a brilliant one. Stecher crushed two of Stanley Stasiak's ribs in the grip of his legs, and undoubtedly he will give Sonnenberg some terrific punishment. Yet the customary sting along with Sonnenberg and his flying tackle, a hold that revolutionized the sport of wrestling, took Sonnenberg from the ranks of the has beens, and has kept him champion for more than a year against all comers.

DIGLANE IN SEMIFINAL

In the semifinal bout, Henri Diglane, undefeated French champion, and Joe DeVito, rugged Italian from Providence, will meet in a one-fall finish match.

Diglane, through his long string of victories and splendid sportsmanship, has made himself one of the most popular wrestlers Boston has known in years, and he will be favored to defeat DeVito.

The preliminary card is probably the best offering this year, with Ed George of the University of Michigan meeting Harry Mammus, Springfield wildman; Renato Cardini, Italian favorite, facing Wladek Zbyszko, former champion of the world; and Ben Sherry of Cobb battling Carl Lemle of South Boston, and Jack Ganson meeting Leo Myatt.

Foreign Boxers to Return Home Feb. 22

Following Monday's contests here the German and Italian amateur boxing teams, following their stay here, will go to New York where on Feb. 10, they will compete in a tourney arranged by the New York A. C. On Feb. 11, they will leave for Grand Rapids, Mich., where they will box in an American Legion tourney on Feb. 17.

The boxers will then start their homeward journey, visiting Washington, D. C., where they will be the guests of Congressman Vaughlass, following which they will sail for Europe on Feb. 22.

Mianne Palfrey Wins Way to Title Tennis Finals

BEATS EDITH SIGOURNEY, 2-6, 6-1, 7-5

MISS MIANNE PALFREY, the 18-year-old local tennis marvel, this afternoon won her way to the finals of the 1930 women's indoor national tennis singles championship.

The little rising tennis star won a hard-fought victory in the semi-finals over Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston by a score of 2—6, 6—1, 7—5.

The other finalists will be decided tomorrow when Miss Margaret Blake, the defending champion, meets Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup the top seeded player.

Miss Palfrey, one of the famous Palfrey sisters of Brookline, was not seeded in the tournament and her victory caused a sensation among tennis enthusiasts. Miss Sigourney won the first set without trouble and Miss Palfrey had an easy victory in the second. The real battle came in the third. Miss Palfrey was leading five games to three when Miss Sigourney took the next two, making it five all. Then, playing a smart and rapid-fire brand of tennis, Miss Palfrey won the next two games and the match.

The scene of the battle was in the covered courts at Longwood. Outside a snow storm raged.

Golf Stars in Texas Open Play

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 30 (INS)—Led by Wild Bill Mehlhorn, defending champion, more than 100 professionals and half that many amateurs flocked to the Brackenridge municipal links here today to tee off in the ninth annual renewal of the Texas open golf tourney.

Today's play called for an 18-hole qualifying round in which the field will be weeded out for the gruelling rounds of the next three days. The 36-hole finals will be played Sunday.

Al Espinosa of Chicago was the favorite to win. Playing in top form, Espinosa during the past few days of practice has whipped out the best golf of any of the other entries. He shot a 33 in his afternoon practice round of nine holes yesterday afternoon.

Mehlhorn has picked Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., sensation, to play with him in the first round of competition tomorrow.

Barbuti Now Back in A. A. U. Graces

New York, Jan. 30—Ray Barbuti, former Syracuse track star and Olympic 440-meter champion, today stands reinstated by the National Amateur Athletic Union. Barbuti was barred from further competition in meets sanctioned by the A. A. U nearly a year ago when he aroused the ire of the organization by stating that certain amateur athletes were paid.

Boston Latin Is Hockey Victor, 4-1

Boston Latin defeated Country Day, 4 to 1, in a hockey game on Crystal Lake, Newton. The Hub schoolboys were pressing most of the way and were always on the job to take advantage. Wallinger, the Country Day goalie who featured in other games, was a bit shaky on the long shots and two sneaked past him.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

A fixed rule in all athletic training is that one cannot learn new form and make a smooth physical effort at the same time because the very effort diverts thought away from the form sought. Because of this, you should, in adopting any new method in golf concern yourself wholly with form at the outset, disregarding the result with the ball.

Now the golfer does, usually, just the opposite. He listens to a tip on some phase of play, say with his mashie. Then what. The first mashie pitch he makes he tries to put this new idea into physical expression, and the shot is a hash. Next he concludes the tip he got was a terrible thing, and he begins to think he wishes other players would play their clubs and let him play his, or else hire a ball. The net result of this is that the tip he received may have been a fine suggestion, and probably was; his application of it merely was wrong.

Upset Looked for in Garden Battle

PROSPECTS of a fistic upset are expected to lure one of the biggest throngs of the season to the Garden tomorrow night, when Arthur Flynn, Lawrence schoolboy, faces Ace Hudkins, Nebraska Wildcat, regarded as one of the most colorful figures in the boxing game.

It will be the Ace's first invasion of the light heavyweight ranks. He has made the official announcement that he is out to annex the light heavyweight crown recently worn by Tommy Loughran.

Flynn, one of the coolest boxers in the ring, has had sufficient experience now to meet any of the contenders for the title. Flynn and his handlers, as well as Lawrence fans are of the opinion that Flynn will triumph, in spite of Hudkins' great reputation.

The bout will mark the passing of Eddie Mack as boxing promoter at the Boston Garden.

Mack will return to the Argonne A. A. next week but to make this farewell show long remembered he has arranged a card that includes 50 rounds of boxing, something unusual at indoor shows.

The completed card includes two 10 rounders, three six rounders as well as three four round events. It should prove one of the finest boxing shows of the indoor season.

The lightweight semifinal of 10 rounds between Steve Culver of Philadelphia, who makes his first appearance here against Hy Diamond of the West End, is expected to prove another hard punching contest.

Diamond has won a long string of consecutive victories, and he is out to keep his slate clean in this bout.

Jimmy Rogers of New York and Brimmer Eddie of Germany, who clashed last week at the Garden, will meet in a return bout. The referee stopped their first bout because of a slight cut sustained by the German but he insists that he is all right and wants to show Hub fans that he can win from the hard punching negro.

Joe Barbara of New York, Paddy Mullins, new lightweight, will make his debut here against Henry Janco of Lawrence, while Johnny Casper and Tommy Harper, two rivals, will meet in a return bout. Their last meeting was regarded as one of the best preliminary bouts of the season.

In the four-rounders on the card, George Russo of Revere will take on Johnny Walker of Boston, while Ug Gibson, former amateur star, will meet Tony Cancello of Kerry Village. Pete Herman of Roxbury and Stanley Winneryck of Lawrence will meet in the opening bout.

HUNTER FIRST IN INDOOR DRAW

New York, Jan. 30—Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, second ranking player of the country, was placed at the head of the national indoor tennis championship draw by the tournament committee of the U. S. L. T. A. He tops a list of 70 players.

The original entry list had 102 names, but 32 were eliminated by the committee. There are no foreign entries, Jean Borotra, the Frenchman, who won the title last year, having decided to let it go by default.

Julius Seligson, No. 9; J. Gilbert Hall, No. 15, and Harris Coggeshall, No. 14, are other prominent ranking players entered. Hall, despite his number 15 ranking, has been seeded second above Seligson at the third position.

HUB SCHOOLS IN MEETS TODAY

WHEN Mechanic Arts meets Trade School at the Armory today in a dual track meet Dutch Holland of the Artisans will watch closely the racing of Jack Connell in the senior 600.

Connell, a great school football center, lacks only experience to make him a splendid runner. He has a good stride, and plenty of speed and stamina. After he gets accustomed to staying up with the leaders for the first part of a race few of the schoolboys will beat him.

Dorchester and Commerce clash in the other half of the East Armory bill today. The big affair of this week for Hub track teams is on tomorrow afternoon when English and Latin battle. English is strong in all three divisions, but Charley Fitzgerald's bunch can make things hot for the English wariors.

Stoneham and Melrose ice teams tangle today. Melrose, with a good team, has Keough, high scorer of the Mystic Valley League. This boy has a hard job on his hands to beat George Mahoney, goalie of the Stoneham sextet. Mahoney has had but three goals scored on him all season.

Freddy Corcoran, Stoneham left wing, puts punch in the Stoneham attack. Roger Blackburn, Bob Wallace and Norman Downes keep the team's defense tight. A win today assures Stoneham of a place in the round robin series later on in the year.

Tom Hines is having a rather lean year in track at Brookline, as material is very scarce. The headmaster's ruling deprived Brookline of a possible championship track group this year. Chet Litman in the 300 is the best individual performer of the Wealthy Towners. He may score in the 300 of the Northeastern games on Saturday.

Bob Tilden, 1000-yarder of Brookline, is an almost perfect mechanical runner. He has a smooth, easy stride. Bob is very young, though he is a junior in school. With a bit more weight, Bob should be a fine runner, and in a year or two should rank with the best of the middle-distance racers.

Joe Koslowsky, Cambridge Latin basketball coach, has as light a pair of forwards as any seen in regular high school court play. Joe Blair weighs a trifle over 115 pounds, while Walter Plausky is on the short side of 100 pounds. Despite the handicap these boys are under playing against big fellows, they do a good job for Cambridge Latin.

Johnny Badaracca, former Brookline track flash, works out each day at the high school board track. He can step along just as fast as when he ran for the school team.

Here are other school contests of today:

HOCKEY
Woburn at Arlington.
Bridgton at Worcester Academy.
Newton at Rindge.
Melrose at Stoneham.
BASKETBALL
Bridgton Academy at Everett.

YOUTH'S IDOLS EVER THE BEST

By DAMON RUNYON
Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

New York, Jan. 29—When a chap is young, he chooses his sports idols, and they become fixed in his mind, and are always his. That is because they are young with him, and contemporaneous with his youth. As he grows older, and his idols disappear in the mists of time, his memory of them lingers with him, but only the memory of them as they were when they were young—not when they were old.

Thus it is that when, for example, he sees a Gene Tunney in Philadelphia and Chicago, spearing the features of a Jack Dempsey to a bloody smear. He says.

"Ah, but what Dempsey at his best would have done to this fellow?"

His memory retains only the vivid picture of the human panther of Toledo tearing into the flabby frame of the giant Jess Willard that blistering day in July on the banks of the Maumee—the Dempsey of his own youth.

It was the same, no doubt, at New Orleans when the great John L. Sullivan sank a quivering mass of years and dissipation, before the lithe young bank clerk from San Francisco. Men who had been young with Sullivan undoubtedly murmured.

"Ah, but what Sullivan at his best would have done to this fellow!"

If you were young with Dempsey, or young with Sullivan, you don't ever think of them, or speak of them, as they were in Philadelphia, and Chicago, and New Orleans. You think of them, and speak of them as they were in their glowing prime, and when the disastrous days are mentioned, you say: "Oh, well, that don't count."

And, it may startle you who were young with Dempsey, to hear that a few years from now, when some young thunderbolt is slashing his way onward and upward, there will be observers remarking:

"Ah, but what Tunney at his best would have done to this fellow!"

The record books, which do not lie (much), must prove to the satisfaction of anyone who will let a little common sense into the argument, that there are fighters, and ball players, and oarsmen, and horses and jockeys, and everything else in sport just as good as there ever was. Maybe better.

It is my personal opinion and I'll argue it by the hour, that Dempsey was the greatest heavyweight that ever lived, yet the record book shows me that Jim Jeffries must have been a better fighter, as men who were young with Jeff will insist. Tradition ascribes a lot of prowess to different men that the records do not bear out, but if you mention this to some idol-worshipper of a bygone day, he says: "The records don't mean a thing."

You couldn't tell good old Josephus Humphries, the silv'ry tongued announcer, that Terry McGovern wasn't the greatest fighter that ever lived, and there is no way you could get Joe to rate above Terrible Terry the man who knocked him out twice, Young Corbett. Somehow that doesn't count with Joe.

Dorchester in Front

HARVARD NINE REPORTS SOON

The smack of the willow on the horsehide will be heard in Harvard's indoor baseball cage before very long now. Faced with an abundance of varsity diamond material, Coach Fred Mitchell plans to have his baseballers in action early next month.

Harvard and the college world in general will have its eye on this year's nine. With Frank Nugent acting in the role of playing coach while regular coach Mitchell sits in the stands or goes off to shoot a round of golf, baseball will have an added interest this spring.

Just how this player-coach idea will work out is a question which has everyone guessing, including Nugent himself.

Harvard is divided into two camps on the subject. Those who welcome the idea consider the move fostered by Yale as a great step towards giving the game back to the players.

On the other hand, there are those who cannot get so wildly enthusiastic over the idea and look for a repetition of the "disaster of 1914." At that time a similar scheme was tried and all but resulted in severance of athletic relations between the rival institutions.

Nugent's nine this year, however, can do with a minimum of coaching from the field. Most of the team will be veterans of two and three years' standing.

Harvard will be well off for batteries this year, with Charlie Devens and Red MacHale doing the twirling. Receiving them will be Jim Dudley, who is also a veteran

Brighton High Is Leader by 2 Points

Brighton high's tracksters led Charlestown at the conclusion of the running events at the East Armory. Brighton is now ahead 66 to 64 and the winner will be determined when the field events are completed this afternoon at Brighton.

Ken Williams, veteran outfielder of the Red Sox, has been released to the Yankees.

B. U. DRILLS FOR COMING MEET

Coach Freddie Burns of the Boston University track team is drilling the Terrier varsity relay squad in anticipation of the Millrose games in New York a week from Saturday.

There may be a change or two in the B. U. mile relay quartet that runs in Gotham, not because Burns is dissatisfied with the showing of any of his baton carriers in the recent K of C. meet, but because there are six veteran quarter-milers all after the four berths on the mile relay quartet.

The B. U. coach holds time trials prior to every meet in order to give every candidate a fair chance and to insure the Terriers of the fastest possible combination. In past years B. U. has often switched its lineup even on a winning combination and it will not be surprising if such an occurrence develops again this winter as the result of impending time trials.

Although the Terrier quartet lost to Fordham at the K. of C. meet, Burns could find no fault with his runners. A bad toss to Norm Bicknel on one of the slippery turns on the Garden track was responsible for B. U. trailing their rivals and Burns feels sure that his charges will chalk up a victory in the Millrose meet.

Ron Harmon, Norm Bicknel, Stuie Tarr and Norm George ran in that order in the last race, but all of these boys must take part in the time trials to be held the last of the week to determine the lineup in the next meet.

Filipino Boxers Barred on Coast

Sacramento, Calif., Jan. 30—As a precautionary measure against race riots, all boxing promoters in California have been ordered by William H. Hanlon, chairman of the State Athletic Commission, not to use Filipinos on their boxing cards.

M. A. H. S. Holds Lead

Mechanic Arts took a flying start in its track meet at the East Armory with the rival Traders. The Buff and Blue collected 57½ points to Trade's 41½ points in the field events yesterday.

Fitton Five in Game

The original Fitton A. C. five, champions of the Greater Boston League three years ago, will play the strong Bunker Hill S. and A Club this evening at Columbus Hall, Maverick sq., East Boston.

FOREIGN RING STARS HERE

The German and Italian boxers to compete against the United States in an international amateur tournament at the Garden next Monday night are training hard in preparation for their American debut.

The German group and the Italian team were extended the hospitality of the city by Mayor James M. Curley at the City Hall.

On the German team are Leonhard Kugler, heavyweight; Albert Leidmann, middleweight; Kurt Figge, welterweight, and Herbert Bechler, lightweight.

With both teams here and training daily, interest in the tourney is mounting to the greatest proportions ever experienced for an amateur show in the history of the city.

Italian and German societies are taking the youngsters from their homelands into their hearts, and the foreign population of New England will be well represented at the ringside next Monday night.

The representatives of Uncle Sam will be in perfect condition to meet the invaders. They have all survived a season of hard campaigning.

Every member of the team has won a major tournament, and every one but Eddie Sullivan, East Walpole lightweight, is either a Golden Glove or state champion.

The roster of the United States team is Sullivan and Victor Lotti, Marlboro, lightweights; Charlie Kelly, Newton, and Vernon Merlin, Roslindale, welterweights; Ring Larsen, Quincy and Eino Nyholm of Maynard middleweights, and Al Dean, Medford, and Murdoches Eageese, Winthrop, heavyweights.

RACQUETS PLAY IN 2D ROUND

Philadelphia, Jan. 30 — One British team, another from this city and two representing New York are still in the running for the national racquets doubles championship at the Philadelphia Racquet Club.

The Boston team of M. Greenough and C. Hutchins was put out by E. M. "Ted" Edwards and J. R. Rowland of the Philadelphia Racquet Club in the first round, 15—10, 15—11, 16—15.

Chicago defaulted, Robert A. Gardner and Howard Linn notifying officials they would not be able to compete.

The first match of the first round was captured by P. M Kemp-Welsh and Cuncuan Cambridge of England. They defeated Holden and R. M. Ehert, Philadelphia, 15—12, 15—4, 15—6.

Another first round match resulted in a victory for W. Palmer Dixon and H. D. Sheldon of New York, who defeated D. A. Newhall and S B. Wheeler of Philadelphia, 15—11, 15—9, 13—15, 15—8.

Lord Aberdare and Dr. H. W Leatham, the other British team in the tournament, make their first appearance today in the second round. This pair, who won the Canadian doubles titles, meets Stanley W Pearson, Philadelphia, and A. L Corey, New York.

Rivers Sextet Is Winner Over Noble

Rivers School hockey team sprang a surprise in private school ranks by dumping Noble, 2 to 1, at Dedham. The Brookline team led the pace all the way and looked the class. Foster and Porter featured in the forward line and had the Noble boys skating dizzily trying to keep up with them.

Stribling Refuses to Meet Maloney

Macon, Ga., Jan. 30 (INS)—"Pa" Stribling, father and manager of W. L., the heavyweight contender, announced today he had declined an offer of $15,000 to his son to fight Jimmy Maloney of South Boston in a semi-final windup on the Scott-Sharkey bout at Miami Beach.

In a long distance conversation that lasted a quarter of an hour, "Pa" demanded a flat guarantee of $25,000 for W. L.'s appearance at Miami, and Frank Bruen, Madison Square Garden official in charge of promoting the second battle of the Palms, informed him that those terms could not be met.

"If we can't get a main bout at Miami Beach we don't want anything," "Pa" commented.

This Day in Our History

ON Jan. 30, 1649, Charles I., King of England, was beheaded by the "Roundheads," led by Oliver Cromwell. King Charles later came to be regarded as a martyr. He was a dashing cavalier and appealed to the popular fancy in spite, or because of, his irregular life.

ALL MARRIAGES ARE VIRTUALLY ON TRIAL

Love Is Easy to Attract, Holding It, the Real Test

By Beatrice Fairfax
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

WE hear a great deal these days about trial marriages and experimental love. But as a matter of fact are not all marriages [trial] marriages, and is not all love an invaluable prize, which must be earned and won anew from day to day?

Are we not always on trial—whether we realize the fact or not—in our friendships, romance and marriage? The moment success is taken for granted in any phase of living that moment it begins to slip away.

Beatrice Fairax

Friendship and love are easy to attract, but holding them is another matter. Polly, for example, is extremely pretty! She dresses well, dances well and is so self-confident that she is perfectly at ease wherever she finds herself. As a result, Polly attracts plenty of attention from men. But does it last? After a few weeks or months you will find Polly's beaux becoming indifferent to her. The reason is this: Polly is accustomed to admiration and so makes no particular effort to please anyone, or hold friendships. She merely follows her impulse, pleases herself. As a result, Polly holds men's interest until they begin to realize there is nothing about Polly especially to respect—no reserve or depth—no mystery and their infatuation is cured.

Sally, on the other hand, does not feel that a great deal of attention from a great many men is any particular compliment. She is quite a bit intelligent and, although not nearly as pretty as Polly, she takes care always to be dainty and well groomed and back of her face is earnestness and intelligence as well as friendly humor, which gives her a charm that is more than beauty for those who are appreciative and look beneath the surface of things.

The result is, the few friends Sally makes are more and more devoted to her as time goes by. She studies them, takes real interest in their interests, shares their enthusiasms, inspires their ambition with her own worth-while ideas. In short, Sally is more than a pretty young girl—she is a young gentlewoman of ideals and standards.

Sally doesn't smoke because she doesn't happen to care about smoking—dislikes the taste in her mouth—but she never criticises others for smoking. In fact, Sally has a soft voice and friendly blue eyes and she seldom criticises anyone harshly. In Sally, with her unpainted complexion, her gentleness, her unassuming manners, some man some day is going to find the very essence of romance to adore, and his love will last a life-time, for Sally will never take his devotion for granted but will study to keep him happy and interested and eager every day of their marriage.

About three weeks ago a young man was introduced to Sally at a dancing party. The two danced several times together. They met again a few moments at a party and the young man asked to escort her home. Sally assented, because, as she explained to me, she knows his family and knows he is a gentleman in every way and so thought well of him. When they reached Sally's home, her new friend asked to kiss Sally, but she refused, for Sally has means an expression of love. He argued with her, asked why—assured her other girls did not object. Still Sally did not permit him to kiss her. He asked whether she wanted to see him again. She told him she would like to continue the friendship. He still persisted but finally realizing Sally meant what she said, he got angry and left without saying good-night.

Sally is hurt to think she has lost a friend she could care for. She will see him next Saturday, again at a party to which both are invited. But Sally will not have that friend—she will, instead, gain his respect and liking—that is, if he is a young man worth while. He will realize her act the more eagerly and ardently because he knows she is like the loveliest rose of all that is hard to reach.

Sally was on trial the other evening and she stood the test. Her friend is also on trial. Will he overcome his stubbornness and seek out a precious friendship?

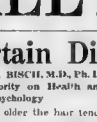
"I brought you a box of candy, Lovejoy," he said. "Mint paste." "That's my weakness still," she said, gaily.

Certain Diseases Produce Gray Hair

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

AS we grow older the hair tends to grow gray. This, however, does not usually occur until past middle life. Few reach fifty whether man or woman, who do not have at least a few gray or even white hairs.



Dr. L. E. Bisch

The graying of the hair is not a disease of itself. Certain diseases, however, may produce gray hair. Gout is one of them. Neuralgia and rheumatism are others. Nervous disorders may gray the hair. Emotional shocks of severe order may turn the hair gray rather quickly, although it is doubtful whether, as reported, Marie Antoinette's hair turned gray over night when she was made a prisoner at the outbreak of the French revolution.

One should not look upon gray-ness as a sign of senile decay nor indeed as an indicator that senility is rapidly approaching. The seems to be rather a common notion and undoubtedly has a lot to do with the eagerness which people show in hiding any evidence of grayness by means of hair dyes.

Certain individuals undoubtedly inherit a disposition to grayness, especially premature grayness. Sometimes certain members of a family will turn gray not only at a certain age, but even in the same places.

The color of the hair depends upon certain pigment granules which are to be found in the so-called "cortical" or middle layer of the skin.

These pigment granules are in an oily fluid in the cells of the skin. Air is also found in some of these cells. When the hair turns gray there is more air in the cells and less oil than before.

The original and natural color of the hair depends upon the combination of the pigment granules and the amount of oily fluid.

It is claimed by scientists that only two main colors of these pigment granules exist—reddish-yellow ones and those of a sepia-brown color. All shades of hair are based on these color combinations.

For instance, if red-yellow granules predominate and there is little air in the cells, then the hair looks a bright red. Should the reverse be true and the sepia-brown pigments be spread and thinned by the air in the cells, then the color of the hair is yellow.

The best and only way to put off graying of the hair is to lead a healthy and well-regulated life.

If disease is present in the body it should be corrected. If nervousness or overtenseness in work exists this, too, should be looked after.

Sometimes a administration of the ultra-violet sun lamp is helpful since it tones up the entire system, and the scalp in particular. Sometimes the "tonic" glands should be treated.

There are cases where the ordinary sun's rays tend to make the individual's hair a lighter shade of brown, against this use them advisable if premature grayness is to be avoided.

As regards the various dyes on the market, it is wise to be cautious in their selection and use. Their effects are temporary.

It is really surprising why so many people fear gray hair or are ashamed of it. Often it is most becoming. Never is it a disgrace.

Dyes containing lead or cyanide of potash are to be avoided as they are dangerous to head and body alike.

Henna is the most popular. Peroxide is also in common use. The latter may or may not be harmful.

Better consult a dermatologist if pride or expediency demands dyeing.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SOMETHING fine has happened in our town!

Our town lies on the Mother Lode trail . . . empty shafts and rotting boists edging sleep lanes . . . Persian roses and clove pinks hanging across the old, forgotten walks. Sunlight slips thick as honey through the pines . . . the quail call at dawn . . . the great star blaze, at midnight, like white flares above the little homes.

Elsie Robinson

That's Sonora. And now something has happened in our quiet lives. That way—

There's a tumble-down house across the street from the post office to reach, and in it two people and a little girl have made their home. Thoughtful friendly people, named Rice, who nod as you across the dusty sunlight of their work . . . a peaceful work . . . wrought iron, done with honest craftsmanship and rare beauty. Not their job for them . . . much, much more than a job . . . an adventure in beauty, though they'd never call it by any such highfalutin name. But I'm sure that's how they feel about it—

A while back, a great idea came to them. They felt they wanted to make something more than wrought iron . . . the first pewter over made in the Sierra—

There was talk about pewter, it seems. This thin, shiny, modern stuff . . . our Revolutionary fathers would have thought no more of trash. Their metal was of a piece with their lives . . . stout, honest, material that would last through the generations. The fine, old alloys . . . the lovely, old lines . . . the rites searched, studied, experimented . . . then watched thought shape itself on paper, in wood, in clay . . . in a thin, molten stream that flowed like a dream into the mold . . .

Just before Christmas they finished the first two candlesticks, and told me to come

Shadows were flooding the big barny room as I came in at the door. Outside, the first star hung above the darkening street and the scent of the pines and the wet, earth came into the room with me and filled the place like incense. There, on a cleared shelf, set apart from the confusion, the candlesticks stood . . . shining softly through the dusk. From base to cup they rose, one simple, singing line . . . like a pure note, sustained. . . .

We did not speak. There seemed no words to say. Quietly we stood . . . as if before a shrine . . . the mother held a light . . .

The flames burned straight and pure . . . like a small prayer. . . .

The radiance spread . . . and wrapped us in its peace. . . .

We stood as reverently as though at mass. . . .

It was a mass . . . a mass to Beauty. . . .

Once more Beauty had been given, to gentle people, in a little town.

Coming home, later, through the empty street, I thought how Beauty always is a great event—

That comes in answer to some secret prayer—

As though we reached our hand, through darkness, up to God—

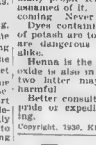
The Real Truth

ABOUT THIS "EMBROIDERY FAD"

By ELINOR GLYN

IS not fashion a powerful thing?

If I had told any of you five years ago to cultivate feminity you would have laughed at me as a ridiculous back number. But now you find that it is necessary. If the embroidery fad is to spread to America, do try to think ahead as to what you are going to do with your work when it is finished! Do not let it become a family relic! Remember Aunt Caroline's antimacassars or Aunt Jemima's counterpane!



Elinor Glyn

A good plan would be for a group of friends to agree each to make a part of a chair or back, and so evolve a beautiful suite. Then when finished hold a raffle to dispose of it! All the old needlework quilts you see in Boston and in colonial collections were made when the "embroidery fad" was the fashion before. So why not make beautiful things that will be valuable when the interest in their production has given place to a new enthusiasm.

Embroidery has a lasting effect on the mind, too, but I would not recommend it to be used as a gift as the knowledge that it is [illegible] may give a false security to the [illegible] This particular group I spoke of at the country house are going to give their efforts to the service of the old 18th century armchair for a wedding present to Ariella.

Lovejoy -:- Serial by Beatrice Burton

"We've brought you a great big shaker of cocktails all iced and ready to drink! Aren't we nice?"

Chattering and laughing she followed Lovejoy out into the bedroom to take off her fur-collared cape.

"I saw you, Sinful!" she whispered excitedly as soon as Lovejoy had closed the door. "I saw you and Steve Oglebay holding hands and don't you think I didn't! . . . Well, now, I think that was all right."

She leaned close to the mirror and outlined her full lips with a paste rouge.

"All married people get a little thrill on the side every now and then—and it does them good," she said in a matter-of-fact voice. "It keeps them young."

Lovejoy stared hard at her. She had been married for six years and she ought to know what she was talking about, she said to herself.

But Tom—would Tom do the sort of thing that she, herself, had done that night? Would he make love to the girls who worked downtown where he worked if he had the chance? Would he get his thrills on the side? The thrills that kept you young, according to Aline.

Tom and Norrie didn't walk into the house until half-past seven that night.

"We blew a tire, and I had to change it," Tom explained when he came in and they all roared with laughter.

"That's pretty good," Allen Alderson told him with great cheerfulness and a wink. "Let's have a look at your mitts, Tom. They ought to be all mud and grease, it seems to me."

Grinning his young friendly grin, Tom held out a pair of perfectly clean hands.

"I keep a pair of old gloves in the car," he said. But everybody pretended not to believe him, although he showed them mud on his trousers and a splash of mud on his coatsleeve.

"You'll have to think up a better story than that, Tom!" Aline said to him. "We suspect you and Norrie of parking the car along some dark side-street! That's what we suspect you of——"

"How terrible of you to say such a thing!" Norrie Shane interrupted her indignantly.

Norrie didn't understand "kidding" of this sort. Her face was a dull shamed red and her eyes were bright as if she might burst into tears at any moment.

"I can't stand that Alderson woman!" she said to Lovejoy when the two of them were in Lovejoy's room. "And I hate her to call me 'Norrie' I wish she wouldn't."

Norrie did not have a very good time that night.

To begin with, she had come in a long-sleeved afternoon dress and she said that she felt out of place with Lovejoy and Aline who were bare of arm and bare of neck and breast.

Then she didn't drink and she never had played poker in her life.

"If you couldn't do anything intricate as older Billy was doing. And, too, she realized that at Bobbie's age the charm of a toy lies in using one's imagination on it. So she knew that, even though their model would be very crude, it would be an airplane to Bobbie, and would simply amaze Bobbie. He might later exclaim proudly: "I MADE it."

Four lonely crackers were dumped out of a long cracker box and they found a piece of cardboard which had come from the laundry inside one of daddy's shirts. Two milk bottle tops were unearthed from the waste-basket carefully washed out and put up to dry.

Briefly, the long box was the fuselage of a big passenger plane. A door was cut in the side, as well as a row of windows along both sides. A flat, narrow strip of cardboard was cut and pasted across the top of the box for wings. A small, narrow piece of cardboard connected the two milk bottle tops which were wheels, of course. Two short pieces of cardboard pasted on front formed the propeller.

This is but a sketchy outline of the afternoon's fun.

But the point I'm trying to make is that, given a crude idea, you can surely see that even your tiniest boy or girl can fashion a toy like that of big brother's attempts, with just as much satisfaction.

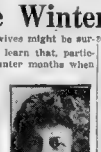
More Winter Vegetables

MANY housewives might be surprised to learn that, particularly in the winter months when fresh vegetables and fruits are not readily available, they are virtually serving "colds" to their family in the form of heavy meats, starved by their natural accompaniments, plenty of vegetables; heavy puddings and pies, unrelieved by the leavening and light-giving of fruit. And this is not a desirable combination!



Martha Lee

Meat, or against any of the starchy and carbohydrate foods so necessary during the cold weather.

Meat has its own place in the diet, potatoes have their own place, flours, cereals, farinas, all have their own special and specific part to play in the diet, but no group of these should usurp the whole stage. They should make plenty of room for fresh, crisp greens, delicious vegetables so readily available in canned form, delicious fruit conserves which may be made all winter from canned fruit.

One way for the housewife to get her family to eat vegetables is to serve them in so delicious a manner that they will devour the contents of the dish because it is so good. A few of these unusual vegetable dishes are suggested below:

VEGETABLE SHEPHERD PIE

Put the following vegetables in ers in a buttered casserole, one-half cup diced cooked turnips, one cup diced cooked carrots, two-thirds cup diced cooked celery, one-half cup mushrooms, 1 cup lima beans, 1 cup tomatoes, highly seasoned brown sauce, one-eighth teaspoon Kitchen Bouquet and spread well-seasoned mashed potatoes over the top, leaving them rough to brown prettily. Brown in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Serves 8 to 10.

CORN and CARROT PUDDING

Mix one 8-ounce can of corn, one cup of diced carrots, two tablespoons chopped green pepper and one cup white sauce. Add two beaten eggs and pour into a buttered casserole. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., set or a knife comes out clean, about 45 minutes. Serves 6.

And here's a very spicy vegetable dish for those who like curries:

VEGETABLE CURRY

Saute one medium sliced onion and 1 clove garlic, minced, in pan in two tablespoons butter until brown. Add one and one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon curry powder and one cup boiling water and cook a minute. Then add 1 cup cooked red kidney beans, one cup cooked diced turnips, one cup cooked diced carrots, one cup cooked diced potatoes, one cup string beans and simmer for 10 minutes. Serve with cold sliced meats or with hot rice as a main dish. The vegetables will serve 5 to 10.

Faithfully yours,

'You're Welcome,' Too Stiff

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—When you finish a dance and the young man says "Thank you," is it proper to say, "You are welcome," or what should one say?

2—When sitting with a girl friend at a dance and I am asked to dance, is it necessary to excuse myself to the other young lady?

FRANCES.

Brookline.

1—"You are welcome" is a bit too stiff for such an occasion, and too it does not indicate that you too have enjoyed the dance.

It is better to say, "It was a delightful dance," or "It was delightful, Bob," or "I enjoyed dancing with you so much, Mr. Patten." This, graciously said, your partner will be deeply pleased.

2—Yes.

3—There is usually only time and indication to say only the simplest and most natural of acceptances. "Thank you I should love to dance," or "I'd love to," or "Thank you," as you rise to start the dance.

Helen, Brookline—A sub-deb in the term usually given to a girl who is in her last year or two at school and before she is formally introduced to society.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.

I sent my son Paul, age four years, to the market for a pound of meat and he returned with only half a pound.

I said: "Paul, you are always getting everything all wrong. I told you to bring a pound of meat."

He replied, "Well, I got it half right, didn't I mother?"

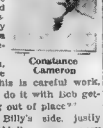
When Sonny Builds an Airplane

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

BILLY was busy and engrossed in his room, studying with a serious frown the diagram which accompanied his lately arrived material for constructing an airplane. There was a great bending of thin wooden strips, stretching of cloth and a lot of gluing.



Constance Cameron

Three-year-old Bobbie scrambled up on a chair, handled all the materials and asked questions until Billy stopped in a wrathy despair.

"Well, gosh, mother," he complained, "this is careful work, and how can I do it with Bob getting everything out of place?"

There was Billy's side, justly taken. He couldn't progress very well with an inquisitive baby brother on top of him. But there was also little Bobbie's side to consider. Weren't airplanes the most fascinating things in the world?

Mother realized the problem in each little boy-heart, and said, "Come on, Bobbie, we'll see if we can't make an airplane, too."

Bobbie's eyes shone and he grasped mother's hand as they hurried toward the kitchen.

Now this mother realized that Bobbie couldn't do anything as intricate as older Billy was doing. And, too, she realized that at Bobbie's age the charm of a toy lies in using one's imagination on it. So she knew that, even though their model would be very crude, it would be an airplane to Bobbie, and would simply amaze Bobbie. He might later exclaim proudly: "I MADE it."

Four lonely crackers were dumped out of a long cracker box and they found a piece of cardboard which had come from the laundry inside one of daddy's shirts. Two milk bottle tops were unearthed from the waste-basket carefully washed out and put up to dry.

Briefly, the long box was the fuselage of a big passenger plane. A door was cut in the side, as well as a row of windows along both sides. A flat, narrow strip of cardboard was cut and pasted across the top of the box for wings. A small, narrow piece of cardboard connected the two milk bottle tops which were wheels, of course. Two short pieces of cardboard pasted on front formed the propeller.

This is but a sketchy outline of the afternoon's fun.

But the point I'm trying to make is that, given a crude idea, you can surely see that even your tiniest boy or girl can fashion a toy like that of big brother's attempts, with just as much satisfaction.

Three-Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

WITHIN the last few years a steamship companies and tourist agencies have begun to take cognizance of the beauty and attraction of the Caribbean and have conducted numerous tours through this part of the world. Nevertheless, the beauties of the Antilles, as these Caribbean islands are collectively known, have never won the true appreciation they deserve.

Kingston is the leading port of Jamaica—practically the only port to which steamers in regular passenger service run. It is a clean, bustling little city. Buildings are universally low.

It is apt to take one some little while to become used to the preponderence of negroes in all lines of work. There are not only the servants, they are the clerks and business men. One enters the best shops to find negroes behind the counters. And a still greater surprise comes when they ask one's wants and one discovers with a perceptible shock that they converse in the well-modulated tones of the Englishman.

A large part of Kingston's police force is recruited from among the negroes, and they present a real sight in their bright uniforms and swagger sticks. It must be said for them that, in the military, they have proved highly efficient and satisfactory. Perhaps the rest of the negroes seem somewhat in awe of the red stripes and brilliant pith helmet which is perched above the ebony face, thus making for the task of maintaining the peace somewhat more easy.

Like most foreign cities, Kingston has a large public market. Unlike many of these same cities, Kingston's market is worth visiting.

Most of the sellers in the numerous stalls are negro women who have come in from their farms and plantations with a supply of home-grown products. Nearly every fruit and vegetable known to the island is displayed. There are mangoes and breadfruit, pineapples and pepper pods and countless other things. Then there is "jackass rope," as native tobacco is called; cocoanuts such as came made from the backbone of a shark, straw hats and what not. And all these products are offered with a substantial helping of chatter and joking. Few travelers can resist the bantering comments of these comfortable looking negro women, who squat on the pavement chuckling, calling to one another and hailing visitors in every imaginable manner.

Look Back as Well as Ahead

By LUCY LOWELL

RESOLUTIONS come and go just as each year comes and goes.

Those of us who are wise turn an inquiring eye backward every now and then and size things up. Easy enough to pick out the blunderers; they stand up like towers on a distant city skyline, dwarfing the twinkling lights. That's why so few we're just average persons who don't expect too much and do the best we can with the materials at hand.

Easy enough to say we'll avoid those mistakes in time to come; that there will be no more follies, short-sightedness, evasions.

And some of us map out a definite course for ourselves; a straight and narrow path which would lead straight to glory if ever we kept to it.

It occurs to me that the trouble is that we are too elaborate; they are too much and at the same time take in too much.

Why not a single resolution, so simple that it cannot be lost sight of and yet so reasonable that it must accomplish at least a major part of the wonderful possibilities a portion of what we truly wish of it?

Non-essentials such as amusements which neither relax nor amuse; idle gossip; worry; wasted time; effort which accomplishes nothing useful.

These are the small things which so clutter daily living that big things are pushed out of being. All of us make too much of these non-essentials — let's rule them out.

Plans are being made to build on the Quoyohoin farm in the Orkney Islands a memorial to Washington Irving, father of the American author Washington Irving. The elder Irving's ancestral thatched cottage now occupied by James Nicholson, whose grandmother was Irving.

Frenchmen who were German citizens at the outbreak and remained when the war started, are to be reimbursed by France for war damages but there are 7000 claims and only $500,000 available to meet all of them, an average of $70 apiece after a wait of 11 years.

TARIFF LOOMS LARGE BEFORE INDUSTRY

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

The tariff looms large before American industry, and the stock market, sooner or later, is bound to adjust values in line with tariff changes. The tariff is a tax, frequently designed to protect industry and, consequently, the worker in industrial plants. Affecting the buying power of the world, it reaches out into a broader field. It is probably the least understood of all our taxes, and is in a peculiar class when designed for protection, and not merely for revenue.

Discussions of the tariff by world economists have filled many volumes, occupied great space in the little-read Congressional Record and probably still more space in the free press of the nation. With a new measure in the making at Washington, the tariff is today before the public to a greater extent than ever before. At the session in Washington today prominent Bostonians appeared. They included Franklin W. Hobbs, president of Arlington Mills and also of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, and Walter Humphreys, the secretary of the association.

Pres. Hobbs is an outstanding authority on the wool industry. His early ambition was to be a patent lawyer. After he was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he was asked to remain as an instructor, and two years later it "just happened," as he explains it, that the Arlington Mills offered him a position which he decided to accept.

His initial assignment was a trip to Europe, where he investigated the costs of textile labor and production, covering England, France and Germany. His report was found to be the best authentic data available, and was used by the United States Senate in an early discussion on tariff revision. Thus today history is, in a way, repeating itself.

The Arlington Mills has a representative at Melbourne, Australia, and a few months ago Pres. Hobbs received a cable from this representative which reached Boston the day before it was dated in Melbourne, a fact easily explained if you consider the difference in "standard" time. The low operating costs of Arlington Mills and the fact that Australian wool is the lowest in price for a quarter of a century are factors that inspire hope that Arlington will enjoy a prosperous 1930.

In our Annual Financial Review number of Jan. 2, 1930, the rising tide of operations in the steel industry was clearly set forth, with optimistic predictions for the future and confirmatory opinions regarding the trend by a number of writers, including President John J. Martin of the Exchange Trust Co.

Iron Age says today that the rapid recovery of the steel industry has been a surprise to consumers and producers alike, although some producers, still skeptical of the duration of the current rate of activity, have hesitated to increase their operations as fast as business seems to warrant. Operations of the U. S. Steel Corporation have risen to 75 per cent of rated capacity, and the average for the industry as a whole is fully that high. A year ago the rate for the industry ranged between 85 and 90 per cent.

Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, journal of the American Chemical Society, says bootlegging is enriching the Corn Belt and promises to rival Congress in affording speedy farm relief. The statement is based on the increased production of corn sugar. From what we hear, bootlegging is by no means dependent on sugar, corn or otherwise, for its big profits. One of our leading industrialists remarked not long ago that alcohol could be made from hundreds of inexpensive sources. This is chiefly interesting, of course, to stockholders of American Commercial Alcohol, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, etc., and to the thousands of automobile owners who use alcohol in their anti-freeze solutions.

STEELS LEAD STOCK MARKET RECOVERY

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Stock prices made further recovery in today's market under the stimulus of favorable trade and earnings reports.

While pools continued to supply much of the activity, the broadening demand for stocks indicated an increase in public participation, particularly in some of the seasoned dividend paying issues. Trading showed a further expansion in volume, with the ticker frequently running 10 minutes or more behind the market.

STEEL AT NEW HIGH

U. S. Steel crossed 183 to a new high on the current recovery and then ran into some profit-taking. Crucible, Gulf States and Newton steels advanced 2 points or more. American Telephone, American Can, General Motors and Johns-Manville also moved up 2 points or more.

Failure of the Bank of England to cut its discount rate today was construed as an indication that no change would be made in the New York Federal Reserve rate this afternoon, although the drop in the Bank of France rate was rewarded as paving the way for an early reduction in the London rate, which has been held up by the fear of further gold exports from England to France.

Call money again dropped from 4½ to 4 per cent, despite the preparation of banks to meet nearly half a billion dollars in interest and dividend payments around the first of the month.

OILS, COPPERS LAG

Oils and coppers were the only important groups that failed to participate extensively in the upswing, buying of the former being held in check by the uncertainties over the price situation, while the latter group was affected by reports of a further curtailment of operations which are now said to be only about 50 per cent of last year's peak activity.

Auburn Auto and Celotex preferred each soared 11 points, but the former lost nearly all of its gain on a midday flurry of profit-taking. Otis Elevator was marked up 7 points, International Match preferred 5% and May Department Stores, Spiegel-May-Stern, Sears Roebuck, Celotex common, Vulcan Detinning A and Snider Packing preferred sold 4 to 5 points higher.

Although current traffic and earnings reports have been making extremely unfavorable comparisons with a year ago, the railroad shares nevertheless attracted a good following. Atchison and New York & Harlem each advanced 3 points and New York Central, Union Pacific, New Haven and "Nickel Plate" climbed 2 points or more.

New York Central "rights" expire tomorrow, and today was the last day on which they could be traded in the regular way as tomorrow's transactions must be for cash.

Renewed weakness developed in International Telephone, which sold down more than 3 points. Simmons and United Aircraft also were heavy, the last named touching a new low.

A further break of $1.50 a bale, or more, in cotton futures to new low levels for the season featured the commodity markets.

The stock market turned heavy in the afternoon, losing most of the ground gained in a general advance during the morning hours.

Bear pressure was extended to leading shares throughout the list. United States Steel, after touching 183⅝, its highest for the year, sold off to 180⅝ against yesterday's final quotation of 181⅛.

Supporting orders caused partial recoveries in the late dealings. The closing tone was irregular. Sales approximated 3,600,000 shares.

Developments Which Will Aid Cheerfulness

January Comparisons Top December's; General Motors' Profits

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—Unofficial: Certain high-ups in General Motors say that demand has improved to such an extent this month that—combined with economies effected—net profits for the current quarter promise to match those of the first quarter of last year.

B. C. Forbes

That statement will astonish many. Human nature having a tendency to go to extremes, there has been as much undue pessimism since the stock market panic as there was undue optimism before then.

The appearance daily of reports and statistics of all kinds covering December tends to have a depressing influence. December was much the worst month of 1929. In almost every direction comparisons with the previous December are bad.

Many writers and other individuals attach exaggerated importance to last month's figures. Admittedly, they were poor; but the vital question is: What has been happening since then?

Happily, there are multiplying indications that things have been going distinctly better this month. Revived buying of automobiles is only one sign, although an extremely significant one. The rebound in the steel industry has been marked. We have the government as authority for the statement that there has been unmistakable improvement in employment.

The steadier action of the stock market is by no means the least cheering symptom.

Those depressing December reports will shortly be out of the way. They will be followed by annual reports. And most annual reports will make far better comparison with the previous year than December reports make with the previous December. That is revealed by such 1929 statements as have already been issued, and quarterly reports have made it possible to gauge reasonably accurately what many other corporations will show when their annual reports are published.

Next month will begin to have January figures. They will not record decreases equalling those uncovered by December comparisons. Of course, it must be kept in mind that things were very active during the first part of last year and that, therefore, few actual gains are likely to be achieved this month.

On the whole, however, the January comparisons will do something to tone-up sentiment by proving that the business set-back precipitated by the Wall Street upheaval has been already arrested.

For this country to be headed in the upward direction within two months of the culmination of the severest stock market debacle ever suffered is a supremely encouraging fact.

Some people are impatient because the stock market has not "snapped back." Those of us whose experience has covered a quarter of a century and more do not share this impatience, this surprise, this disappointment. We feel, rather, that the market has been behaving sensibly, all things considered.

Suppose the market had "snapped back" in a jiffy to levels approaching those reached before the break. It would have meant the creation all over again of unsound, unsafe conditions. It would have meant, too, that the purging process would have had to be gone through all over again.

The sane view to take is that stock speculation had come to absorb an abnormal share of public time and attention, as well as an abnormal share of the world's money and credit.

It was distinctly unhealthy for the country that every Tom, Dick and Harry, in city and hamlet—to say nothing of Harriets—should be dabbling in speculation, buying stocks about which they knew nothing, their sole motive not investment, but to get something for nothing. Daily duties were being neglected in practically every walk of life. The stock ticker had become for several millions the most thrilling thing in life.

Normalcy has been restored. The likelihood is that the volume of dealings on the New York Stock Exchange and on the many other stock exchanges which have been established throughout the country will increase. The time unquestionably will come when, instead of the current 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 share days, we will witness a daily turnover of twice and even three times that volume. Indeed, looking farther ahead, it is a foregone conclusion that even the 16,400,000 record-breaking day will be surpassed quite often, if not regularly.

But for the present, it is healthy, not unhealthy, that speculation should not become spectacular. It would not hurt, of course, to have the market become somewhat more active. Nor would it hurt were prices for good stocks to advance.

CURB MARKET UTILITIES ARE BUOYANT

By CLAUD A. JAGGER

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Prices advanced in a more active curb market today. Several of the utility favorites were buoyant, Electric Bond & Share mounting 3 points on substantial accumulation. United Light & Power "B" rose 10 points, but the "A" shares were only steady.

The old Deere stock surpassed its 1929 high on a 10-point advance which carried it to 645 against its previous peak of 642. The new common shares, to be created by the proposed five for one splitup, traded around 130, when issued, while the new preferred held in the neighborhood of 26. Liggett & Myers rights were quoted at just under 13.

A six-point advance in Aluminum Company of America, a gain of more than a point in American Cyanamid B, and fractional recovery by Republic Steel Corporation common, when issued, were other features of the industrial section.

Investment company issues were rather dull, although Mayflower Associates sold up 4 points. Lehman improved slightly. Oils turned upward, with Gulf showing a 2-point advance.

STEEL MERGER PRICE BARED

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Application by the United States Steel Corp. to list an additional 261,331 shares of common stock for purchasing the Columbia Steel Corp. of California, reveals that the per share value was fixed at $158 each.

Steel closed on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday at $181.75. At the fixed rate of $158 a share, the Steel Corporation is paying $41,300,298 for the Columbia properties, which it valued at $41,375,000.

Heavy melting scrap steel in the Chicago district is now quoted at $13 to $13.50 a ton, an advance of 25 cents a ton over former prices.

More than 90 per cent of the Pacific Gas & Electric Company's offer of rights to subscribe to $24,746,000 in common stock have been exercised.

The Mitsui Bank of Tokio is shipping 4,000,000 gold yen (approximately $2,000,000) to this country on board the S. S. Tenyomaru, sailing today. Additional consignments are expected during the next couple of weeks.

Virginia Electric

Indianapolis, Jan. 30—Noblitt-Sparks Industries, Inc., earned $9 a share on its common stock and increased net income 129 per cent last year, it was announced today by Q. G. Noblitt, president. Mr. Noblitt stated that the annual report will show total sales of $5,362,157 for the year 1929, which is 84 per cent greater than the $2,901,371 total of 1928.

Net income after taxes, depreciation and charges amounted to $675,480 or $9 a share on the 75,000 shares of common stock outstanding. This compares with $294,603 or $4.91 a share on the 60,000 shares of stock outstanding in 1928.

Studebaker Stock Dividend Opposed

New York, Jan. 30.—Studebaker's stock dividend payments have met opposition and it is regarded as likely the directors at their meeting tomorrow will omit the stock dividend policy of 1929. A year ago four quarterly dividends of 1 per cent each were declared in advance.

There will be no change in the cash dividend rate of $1.25 quarterly which has prevailed since the end of 1925.

NEW ENGLAND RAILS HAVE FINE YEAR

New England railroads had a banner year in 1929, in most instances attaining new high records of net income and in some cases the largest balances per common share ever reported. This was due to heavy volume of freight traffic, but more particularly to continued achievement of operating economies, and also to inclusion in some cases of substantial amounts of back mail pay. Passenger earnings, on the whole, continued their recession, although the decreases were less marked than in some previous years.

New Haven, continuing the marked progress apparent since 1924, jumped its common share earnings to $11.72 on the 1,571,179 shares outstanding, from $8 per share in 1928 and $5.49 per share in 1927. Included in last year's earnings was $2,401,188 of back mail pay, equal to $1.52 per share of common stock.

Boston & Maine would have made a remarkable showing but for the fact that net earnings were held down by abnormal expenditures out of earnings in connection with its big improvement program. The road actually reported net income of $5,993,841 against $6,437,471 in 1928. This was equivalent after preferred dividends and sinking fund payments, to $6.48 per share on 395,051 shares of common stock against $8.45 per share in 1928.

It should be pointed out, however, that Boston & Maine credited $1,458,813 of back mail pay to profit and loss instead of taking it unto current earnings as did New Haven and Maine Central, a practice customary with most roads. Including this, the Boston & Maine earnings would be increased by $3.67 per shares to $10.15 per share, which is comparable with the results of the other roads. Furthermore it is calculated that the abnormal items in connection with the improvement program were equal to at least $10 per share.

Maine Central greatly exceeded all previous years since the war, reporting earning of 1929 equal to $13.29 per share on the 120,071 shares of common stock against $5.31 in 1928 and $3.34 in 1927. Included in last year's earnings was $519,000, back mail pay credited in July. This was equal to $4.32 per share of common.

Bangor & Aroostook attained the largest earnings in its history, with a balance after preferred dividends, equivalent to $10.83 per share figured on 106,560 shares of common, against $6.94 per share in 1928 and $8.41 in 1927. Figured on 141,792 shares of common, including the 35,232 new shares subscription privilege on which did not expire until Dec. 7, the 1929 earnings would be equivalent to $8.14 per share.

VALUE ON FOX $65,000,000

New York, Jan. 30 (INS)—Figures revealing that the net worth of the Fox Film Corporation and "wholly-owned subsidiaries" is $65,000,000 were made public today as William Fox continued his financial battle to retain control of his interests.

The balance sheets showing the value of the properties were attached to an affidavit of Fox, in which he charged John Stuart, a co-trustee in the original trustee agreement under which the Fox interests were to be financed, had advised him "to leave the country" for six months.

Fox declared in the affidavit to have complied with the alleged requests of the co-trustees would have brought him more humiliation than he could bear.

The affidavit was filed with the clerk of the Federal District Court, where an equity receivership for Fox companies has been asked.

$2,000,000 Profit on $1200 Investment

Newark, N. J., Jan. 30—Frederick Dietrich, vice president and a director of Kolster Radio Corp., testified before Special Master in Chancery John A. Brenhard that he had made $2,021,219 net profit on an original investment of $1200 in 1912.

Dietrich said that in 1912 he bought for $1200 the controlling interest of Brandes, Inc. Through stock sales, he said, his gross profit since then had amounted to $6,248,265. The difference between the gross profit and the net profit, he explained, had been accounted for by taxes, by investment in a subsidiary, etc.

Insuranshares Corp.

From organization in March, 1929, to Dec. 31, 1929, net income of Insuranshares Corp. of Delaware was $340,216 after expenses and federal taxes, equal to 45 cents a share on the 750,000 no par Class A common shares.

BOND MARKET UNDERTONE IS IMPROVED

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Bond quotations were slightly less irregular today than in earlier sessions of the week. An improved undertone was reflected in a narrowing of price fluctuations which in the early trading were about evenly balanced on both sides.

Most of the attention was again directed to the convertibles. International Telephone 4½s opened with a gain of nearly a point, but lost the advance as the stock weakened.

American I. G. Chemical 5½s fell to par for an overnight decline to 1½. Liquidation in this issue, which has been depressed by the complaint of the Chemical Foundation, was fairly heavy. American Telephone 4½s advanced more than a point and Santa Fe 4½s made higher ground.

The few wide swings were confined chiefly to the semi-speculative industrials. Fisk Rubber 8s added a point to yesterday's rise, while Hoe & Co. 6½s moved up 2. White Sewing Machine 6s, without warrants, lost yesterday's 2½-point improvement. Cuba Dominican Sugar 7½s and American Writing Paper 6s were higher.

Trading in high-grade investment bonds proceeded at a slow pace, and there was still a little easiness in the rails which have been under pressure for some time. Southern Pacific refunding 4s, New York Central 5s, Northern Pacific general 3s, Pennsylvania Gold 5s and Missouri Pacific general 4s eased. Utilities and high priced industrials were steady and dull.

Liberty bonds and treasury certificates moved within a range of about 1-16 on small turnovers.

The foreign list improved, once more under the leadership of the French 7½s, which touched a new high at 120½. Denmark 6s, Belgium 7s, Italy 7s and Rome City 6½s were firm.

This week's comparatively small volume of new bond offerings received only a slight addition. It was a $1,700,000 issue of Scranton-Spring Brook Water Service Company (Pennsylvania) first mortgage 40-year 5s, priced at 94.

The City of St. Louis awarded a $9,000,000 issue of improvement bonds due 1935 to 1950, to a syndicate which bid $9,043,110 for the loan.

Russell Discusses New Haven Plans

Providence Jan. 30—Arthur P. Russell, executive vice-president of the New Haven Railroad, informed the Providence Journal that New Haven has no plans for disposition of its Boston & Maine interest, held through Boston Railroad Holding Co., but wants the bill, making it possible to sell the stock without permission of Massachusetts Legislature, passed so as to make possible any step road might plan to make in future. Asked if Pennroad Corp. had offered to purchase New Haven's interest in the road, Russell declared he had no knowledg of such an offer. He also said New Haven has received no offers from any sources for Boston & Maine prior preference stock which it holds.

Hupp Motor Car

Hupp Motor Car Corp. reports for 11 months ended November 30 net of $3,407,967 after depreciation and federal taxes, equivalent to $2.31 a share (par $10) on 1,471,260 shares of common.

COURT SUIT IS WON BY CITIES SERVICE

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Federal Judge William Bondy today dismissed a suit for an injunction brought to restrain directors of the Cities Service Corporation from withdrawing their offer of pecial stock purchasing rights issued October 10 last to holders of common stock of the corporation.

Under the rules of the curb exchange, a copy of which was filed with Judge Bondy, all hold who traded their rights on the curb, selling them to others at from $1.30 to $2.25 per share must reimburse purchasers.

The curb exchange rules pro de that sales on a contingency basis, such as those of the rights in question, are nullified by any [illegible] which makes execution impossible.

SEES BETTER YEARS AHEAD

Binghamton, N. Y., Jan. 30—President Johnson, of Endicott Johnson, in a message to workers says the company auditor and treasurer expect the forthcoming statement for 1929 will show the company in the strongest financial position in its history.

"I feel that the company passed through the hardest year in 1929 for many years to come," Mr. Johnson said. "It would have been very easy to have earned paper profits and declared good profit-sharing, had we taken the easy methods taken by many others—reduction of wage schedules and reduction of values furnished customers.

"Your management has taken what we deem the better way. They are now, as a result, in better shape to cope with the future successfully. They still have the good will of their toiling partners and the good will of their customers. They have satisfied stockholders and met all demands. We want this to be a year of confidence in the business."

Mr. Johnson's statement was issued in connection with his announcement that no profit-sharing bonus is to be paid workers this year, as has been the custom for eight years.

This bonus heretofore has been paid workers after 7 per cent dividends on preferred and 5 per cent on common had been paid shareholders. Amount of this bonus in previous years has been:

1928	$272,517
1927	1,146,000
1926	420,263
1925	1,153,824
1924	1,235,095
1923	1,197,290

PHILCO AGENTS LAUNCH 1930 CAMPAIGN

The 1930 season of Philco Radio in New England was launched auspiciously at a dinner held at the Statler Hotel attended by more than 650 retail dealers, factory representatives and officials of the Milhender Electric Supply Co. of Boston.

Mechanical details and improvement in the three types of chassis incorporated in the various new Philco models were explained by factory technical chiefs.

Joseph Milhender, president of the Milhender Co., distributors of Philco sets in New England, gave the keynote talk. Milhender predicts a most successful season for the radio industry in 1930, due to economic changes which have taken place within the past few months.

EXPLAINS PLANS

Al Stone, sales manager of the Milhender organization, told the dealers of plans of co-operation between the factory, the distributor and the Paramount Theater organization for merchandising the Philco units throughout the country. According to Stone, all Publix and Paramount Theaters in this section will co-operate with Philco.

Factory officials and experts attended the meeting as guests of the Milhender organization and told of some of the features of the 1930 line of Philco sets.

Among those from the factory who attended were Sayre Ramsdell, sales promotion manager; Ralph Schenader, service engineer; Harry B. Brown, manager of the New England division; Larry Gubb, division manager, and W. C. Kennealy, manager of the New England division.

GUESTS ENTERTAINED

At the head table were Gubb, Ramsdell, William Kennealy, Harry Brown, Ralph Schenader, Charles Nickerson, F. Arancio, George Arancio, Joseph L. Milhender, Al Stone, Sheldon H. Fairbanks of Sheldon Fairbanks Expositions, Inc., who had charge of arrangements for the dinner.

Among the speakers were Brown, advertising manager; Ramsdell, representatives of the Commercial Investment Trust Co., and officials of the Paramount Theaters group.

Caley, Not Coolidge, Named New Train

Providence, Jan. 30—It was C. F. Caley, and not John Coolidge, who suggested the name "Yankee Clipper," which has been adopted for the new through train, fastest of the system, which will be placed in operation early in the spring by the New Haven railroad between Boston and New York.

Caley and young Coolidge are employed in the same office of the railroad in New Haven and were among the employes who participated in a recent contest conducted by the company to determine a suitable name for the new train.

Fine Carpenter for Not Paying Help

Leon B. Smith, 37, of Summer st., Malden, was surrendered in East Boston District Court by Probation Officer Dennis J. Kelleher because of his failure to comply with an order of restitution of $144, imposed by the court Nov. 25.

Smith, who is a carpenter, was found guilty by the court of failing to pay the wages of seven employes. The court placed him on probation with the understanding that he pay his men.

Probation Officer Kelleher told the court that Smith had not complied in any way with the order and Smith was then fined $175. He appealed and furnished bonds for his appearance in superior court.

Letters From Readers

Sees War as Factor in Scheme of Evolution

Editor Boston American:

Two matters bother me. I don't accept them. They are prohibition and pacifism. They are too negative for me. I am not going to rail against prohibition. That is being done daily by President Butler of Columbia.

Wars are always terrible, but you cannot help admitting that a nation which never knew the shock of battle might become puny, self centered and timorous. Struggles have developed nations. The shakings up and intermingling of races have made the Americans what they are today. These wars, these disturbances, are evolutionary, not revolutionary. Pacifism is good in itself but it does not coincide with the nature of human life. It's a fight all the time from morning to night. A prize fighter will always represent human life on this earth.

Psittacosis Makes It Tough on Local Parrots

Editor Boston American:

I am very glad to be assured that there is no danger in this state from parrot fever or psittacosis. My parrot has been down in the dumps for several days, for I had to put him in the cellar. He kept up a lot of squeaking noises that upset us all. But he has finished at last. I ran out of sun flower seed and that was the beginning of his indignation. He got tired of crackers.

But this is what caused me to think the old bird knew something had happened. At meal times, we talked about this disease of parrots that affected human beings, and as he hung in his cage near the window I believe the old biped understood our conversation. For when we decided that his cage shall be placed in the cellar, he kicked up such a row that we believed that he took in our talk.

Prohibition Has Failed to Cure; Time for Change

Editor Boston American:

Speaking about prohibition not having a fair trial after 10 years reminds me of a doctor trying to cure a patient of some organic disease. He's been giving the patient medicine right along, besides trying all sorts of schemes to speed up improvement, yet all in vain. In fact, things grow worse. The patient complains. The doctor tells him to be patient, he'll come out all right.

The poor fellow is now suffering for 10 long years, and no cure in sight. All he hears is: "Give my treatment a fair trial, just be patient and you'll be cured."

If that patient is not an idiot, he will change to another doctor and try another cure or come to the conclusion that he is incurable.

No, this "fair-trial" stuff doesn't go anymore. The people, after 10 years, know better. A change will surely come before the American patient is "cured" to death by prohibition.

League Court Only an Infant Still

Editor Boston American:

The League Court did not come into existence until four years after the World War. It has not been in operation 15 years, as claimed by a speaker in Pilgrim Hall, this city, but came to birth in 1922 just about eight years ago.

JAMES T. SLOCUM.

Thinks Bostonians Would Be Interested in Gaelic

Editor Boston American:

As the Irish Free State has decided to spend $1,000,000 in making the University College in Galway a real Gaelic institution with summer courses, a few Bostonians may take that course if arrangements can be made satisfactorily towards that end. Courses may be then established in this ancient tongue in Greater Boston.

Thinks Uncle Sam Can Stand Clear of Entanglements

Editor Boston American:

Noting in the Boston Evening American a picture of Uncle Sam being drawn into a spider's web by the foreign powers through the Kellogg Pact, and the League of Nations. I must say you do not give us much of the Spartan spirit.

I have a vision of Uncle Sam tearing through the web and putting an end to the spider.

In the first place a world peace does not mean just Uncle Sam. He is part of the plan and if he does not take his place in the plan, he will defeat the demand of the people who have given their all for that purpose.

Uncle Sam, internally and externally, is surrounded by foreign territory and commercial interests, and, in reality, is in the web. It will not be easy to escape without being caught at the border somewhere.

So Uncle Sam has got to have a lot of the Spartan spirit. We are from everywhere today, and we are demanding that "world peace" so that we can have the box from home at Christmas without being met at the borders with guns.

The people demand peace and good will among the powers.

In this world peace movement, man's humanity and traditions are bound up in one book. It is a larger box, we are demanding you see; one that will last the whole year round, with Christmas every day, and the real Christmas spirit to go with it. In all, fair exchange for service rendered, etc.

Information Seeker Gets Response

Editor Boston American:

Please tell the inquirer in your paper who asked the question what is the meaning of Chautauqua and where did the name Sing Sing come from, that Chautauqua means: "An easy place to die." This probably refers to the legend of a beautiful maiden who vanished beneath the waves.

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

'Fourth City of the U.S.A.'

Boston's Neighbors—Somerville Included—Should Hear Professor Beale's Report Before Becoming Agitated Over "Annexation"

THE new Mayor of Somerville, who issues a call to Selectmen of the towns of the Metropolitan District to assemble in his City Hall on Saturday afternoon, must have been seeing things.

"In view of the fact that Metropolitan Boston has a population of 1,200,000," he writes, "against a population of Boston itself of only 800,000—there should be some concerted action to protect our mutual interests."

Against what?

Plainly, against annexation.

But who SPEAKS of annexation?

No one.

The Mayor of Boston HAS called the attention of Metropolitan Boston, a community of 2,000,000 people, to the fact that the Metropolitan district is at a disadvantage in the struggle for commerce and industry because on the books it appears to be a city of but 800,000, and so ranks eighth among the cities.

If that is so—and Mr. Curley appears to have won the support of leading citizens—the problem should be as much the concern of residents of Dover and Dedham and Saugus and Somerville as of those who dwell in the city proper.

What Mr. Curley has suggested is a thorough STUDY of the subject, nothing more. He would not take the name from a single one of these 40 cities and town, or deprive them of mayors and boards of selectmen. It IS his hope that Boston may stand out as a city of 2,000,000 people—Fourth in the U. S. A.!—and he BELIEVES this may be accomplished by the adoption of the City of London's borough plan.

As chairman of the committee of citizens to whom Mr. Curley has referred the question, Professor Beale, of the Law School of Harvard University, is now on his way to London. Professor Beale is a citizen of Cambridge. Two or three months from now he will let the District know the result of his study.

The cause of Boston is, or should be, the cause of every one of the cities and town round-about. If Boston suffers, THEY suffer; if Boston prospers, THEY prosper.

Mayor Murphy should hold his horses, wait for the facts. Not even the borough plan—which contemplates nothing like annexation—can be made effective here until it has received the approval of a majority of the people.

Pinanski Thrice Honored

Three Governors Have Recognized the Worth That Will Carry New Judge Still Higher

A THIRD GOVERNOR of Massachusetts has recognized the ability of Abraham E. Pinanski who yesterday succeeded to the Superior Court bench vacancy caused by the death of Judge David A. Lourie.

The late Governor McCall named him to the old State Board of Immigration. Calvin Coolidge, when Governor, made him a member of an advisory committee of the State Department of Education.

The new call to public service is the most important thus far, yet for Judge Pinanski there will undoubtedly be more important to follow. A man of singularly high ideals, gifted with an extraordinary understanding of human nature, he should go higher still.

Above all, to his new post he brings the same characteristic that made his predecessor beloved—a zest for much hard work and the ability to accomplish it well. The courts of the Commonwealth need more men of his calibre.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—With the passing of the swing-door saloon on the Bowery, the creep and sneak shows vanished. There used to be several in each block, and to appearances were mainly upstairs sleeping quarters over drinking dives.

The cheap joint compared to the present flop joint. When a customer drank himself into a half stupor he was piloted to the oven-head bunk. Then the "creeper" slipped in and went through his clothing and the unfortunate awakened with little but a headache.

The panel joint was a trifle kinder, at least in outfitting. It was a fair sized bedroom with an innocent looking clothes closet. But the back of the closet turned on hinges, so the clothes, hung on hooks, could be swung around and lifted.

Many Bowery adventurers have come out of a fog of sleep to find every article they possessed gone. Proprietors added to the rascality by suggesting that victims send for money to buy a few cast-off garments—garments kept on hand and sold at fancy figures.

Twenty years ago the Bowery saw had from a half to a dozen hospital cases nightly among those who had knock-out drops slipped into their beer by chance ladies and were rolled for their wads in lodging alleys. Knock-out drops were chloral hydrate and produced sleep in 15 minutes.

Still another innocent-looking drink diversion of that unregenerate day was the Mickey Finn. It is given to fractious customers today in tough speakeasies. The Mickey Finn, named for a Bowery bartender, is a tasteless but nauseating potion producing violent illness.

Today the Bowery flop houses have attained shabby respectability. They are carefully sanitized, and a sleeper is protected from nocturnal marauders who flourished in the old days. Some refuse to accept patrons who are befuddled by alcohol.

White boys in Chinatown have revived a game known as "devil chasing," which is a terror to Chinese. They fill their mouths with kerosene and blow it over a lighted match at some nodding Chinese. It gives the appearance of a spurting flame from the mouth and a superstitious Chinese will often leap up and run from it until he drops from exhaustion.

In Chinatown, the natives who have white girls are called Mules. A Mule will never switch in his affections and an utterly cast off woman regards his protection as safest of all havens.

The most successful bootleggers are Italians born in Chinatown. They are what the police call "tough bambinos," and are fitted to take the desperate chances they have to take in rum running! Six Chinatown boys are now millionaires from illicit liquor selling.

A noticeable change along the Bowery is in the manner of dress. In other days the Bowery was distinguished for baggy caps, gay sweaters, plaid skirts and rakish hats with a single bobbing feather. Such habiliments are seen today in portrayals of the Bowery on the stage. The Bowery dresses no differently from Broadway.

In the few remaining opium dens in Chinatown catacombs, the smell of wintergreen is always a tipoff to the police who make raids at intervals. Oil of wintergreen is smeared on newspapers and burned to kill off the smell of hop.

"I am," writes Professor T. T., "a psychologist, but feel you will take no offense at my criticism of your lapses in English. In a recent seven-line paragraph there were two glaring grammatical errors."

All right. But all I want from you from now on is psychology.

The Arms Parley

Dull Affair Without the Arms

By T. E. Powers

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

WE would like to hear the last of this prohibition business. It fills the encyclopedia of existence from AB to ZED.

Why not give the people light wines and beer?

They seem to have everything else.

You cannot see America first with your head in the sand. Both sides seem to have plenty of arguments in their favor and we see no reason why we should lead the life of a clay pipe in a shooting gallery without ever finding out what all the shooting's about.

The developments in the interstate gambol indicate that the House wets are to demand national referendum on repeal of the famous ghost amendment.

Senator Sheppard, dry, says examples must be made of the high-brow buyers.

The bootchleggers are doing that right now.

Commissioner Doran blames the killing of two Florida revenuers on inflammatory attacks on dry personnel. The inflammatory attacks were criticisms of the Massachusetts massacres, in which no examples were made of high, low or neutral brows.

It seems the Republicans are willing to listen to a national broadcast of popular referendum. With the privileges of tuning out when it gets too popular.

This referendum could be crashed by 12 small states holding out for a better offer.

It would require two-thirds of Congress to put the damper on the famous hypothetical amendment. And two-thirst vote is not representative.

We're all loaded up on the what, why and whoozus of prohibition and its symptoms. If the wets were smart and the drys were intelligent they would call it a draw.

An endorsement of the octoplasm contained in the eighteenth legislative patch would not scotch the snake nor snake the scotch.

Which is one reason the drys should rest on their insomnia producing laurels. And if the wets stir up too much fermenting legislation they are liable to lose that which they have now.

The drys might give the wets light wines and beer if they promise to give up liquor. You can't have everything.

H. G. Wells Writes on

"The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

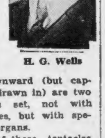
THE sea-gooseberry, Pleurobrachia, is a delicate transparent globe of jelly-like consistency that floats in the open sea. Running down the sides of its body there are eight combiike structures each tooth of the combs being a gigantic cilium; the combs are in incessant motion, giving the animal a beautiful iridescent appearance, and thus it swims through the water



H. G. Wells

Trailing downward (but capable of being drawn in) are two long tentacles set, not with stinging-capsules, but with special adhesive organs.

By means of these tentacles the creature catches its prey — small fishes, crustaceans and the like — and pulls them into its mouth, which is on the lower surface of the globe.

Most Ctenophores live, like the sea-gooseberry, at the surface of the sea; most are transparent, tinged with pink or yellow, and some are brilliantly phosphorescent.

The wonderful "Venus' Girdle" of the Mediterranean is a rippling, band-shaped animal, delicate violet in color, with a brilliant greenish fluorescence, and may attain a length of five feet. One or two exceptional members of the group do not float but creep over the sea-bottom.

4. SPONGES

IT has probably never occurred to many of us that we get into our baths in company with a skeleton.

There is nothing very suggestive of a living thing about the domestic sponge; and yet when it is examined with care it reveals some degree of organization.

The caverns that riddle it are of various kinds; there are conspicuous round holes, often large enough to admit the finger, and leading into neatly-trimmed, more or less straight cylindrical shafts that sink deep into its substance, and there are smaller, less regular holes, leading into a labyrinth of passages some of which open into the main shafts.

Moreover, the subject of the sponge is itself a network of branching fibres, a network so fine that its meshes are only just visible to the naked eye. These fibres are the picked and whitened bones of a living thing.

At one time the spo was covered with flesh, and it lived at the bottom of a warm shallow sea—round the shores of the Mediterranean, the West Indies, Australia.

It was a yellowish, brownish, or dark purplish object, smelling faintly of garlic, elastic and slightly slimy to the touch; living bath sponges have been compared in color and consistency, to fresh liver.

Most of its holes were closed with a thin skin of tissue. Some of the larger ones—the oscula—were open, although most of these could be closed at will by means of films of tissue round them, and scattered freely over its surface there were microscopically fine pores.

The creature did not move from place to place, it remained rooted firmly to a rock, and, except for occasional slow changes in the diameter of its oscula and pores, it made no visible movements.

They grow, and therefore there must be life in them of some sort; but many biologists considered them to be plants, and a few even believed them to be the dead by-products of living things, secreted by the worms that are invariably found crawling about in their cavities much as the gelatinous investment of a sea-squirt is secreted, or the tubes and cups of a coral.

But just over a hundred years ago Robert Grant made an observation of fundamental importance. He noticed that there was always a slow, steady current of water through a sponge—passing in through the microscopic pores, out through the oscula.

That current is the essential vital activity of the sponge; its means of livelihood and almost its only means of self-expression.

Sponge-cake, spongy iron, spongy platinum—the name has come to mean anything riddled with holes, for a sponge consists of the main of a tangle of aqueducts guiding its precious stream.

Its cavities are of three kinds: There are the "flagellated chambers," where the current is both caused and exploited, there are inward passages guiding the current from the surface pores to the chambers, and there are outward passages guiding it away to the oscula.

REDUCTING the rise and fall of the stock market is a kindergarten game beside foretelling the fluctuations in woman's waistline—the rise and fall of the meridian in feminine dress—these days.

From Empress Josephine's time, when the "waistline" snuggled coyly up almost under the arms, to flapper days, when it dropped almost to the knees, the vagaries of the feminine waistline have kept man guessing and bewildered.

Neither the mercury nor the skyscraper elevators have anything on woman's beltline when it comes to "going up"—or "going down." And, like them, it doesn't remain in any one place very long.

Just as a man has accustomed himself to reaching for a girl's waist around her hips, lo, up goes the meridian—and he has to learn to reach for it, as he does for a strap in the subway.

Once, in "tubular times," it disappeared altogether; and when a man went to encircle a fair damsel's waist, he didn't know WHERE to tackle her.

And that, alas, is when and how and why the uncouth practice of "NECKING" came into vogue!

I have never SEEN anybody "neck." If there is a cheaper, more vulgar and rowdy word in the English "language," I have never heard it. But, whatever that mysterious pastime called "necking" may be there is not a doubt that you can blame it all on the vagaries of woman's waistline! And not on the rumble seat or the younger generation.

Once, indeed, 'way back in the Gibson-girl days, the feminine waistline was an undulating, tortuous affair, that went up in the back and down in the front, like a roller coaster. Now, in the new-old princesse fashions, it undulates the other way—up in the front and down in the back.

It is enough to make a man SEASICK!

But the patient, long-suffering male creatures don't complain. They go right on groping for it, blindly, as the novice gropes for the gears of the car.

The younger and more impetuous generation may get the NECK in their exasperation. But the older and more deliberate lovers still make for the waistline, knowing vaguely that it must be SOMEWHERE!

Oh, well, playing hide-and seek with the waistline is an amusing game, and probably just one more way of keeping a man guessing!

And, the newest waistline is so grotesquely obvious, that NO man could possibly mistake a girl's neck for her waist! It may be the doom of "necking." For which let us thank heaven—and the fashion makers!

Opium Traffic Doomed

World Crusaders May Take Hope in Fate of America's "Black Tony"

THEY found a big San Francisco drug pedlar guilty one day last week. "Black Tony" Parmagini was tried on five counts, found guilty by a jury in forty minutes and he and his chief lieutenant were fined $24,000 apiece and given seventeen years in a federal prison.

When "Black Tony" was arrested nobody dreamed anything would happen to him. He was too big. He wasn't a little pedlar. He was a wholesaler, and everybody thought he had a "drag." He'd get out of that scrape all right, and somebody would suffer for daring to arrest him. Even "Black Tony" was not worried. Dapper, powerful "Black Tony" in one of the dirtiest businesses on earth, couldn't POSSIBLY go to prison. But he's going there, and he'll stay there and he'll do no more pedling.

Some people who really care about the ghastly evils of the world opium traffic are pessimistic about its suppression. They've followed the meetings of the opium committes of the League of Nations and they've seen what happens in them. They've read about how the committee adjourned for tea whenever the delegates from China makes an embarrassing speech. They've seen the minutes of the sessions clipped and shaped for publication. They've seen how the opium bloc manages to envelop and suffocate any REAL effort to suppress the miserable business.

And, seeing these things, they sometimes lose heart and lose hope that the big drug-pedling nations—the big national "Black Tonies" of this world—will ever be forced out of the business. They can't see much hope in sending a "Black Tony" of the Pacific Coast to jail as long as the "Black Tony" nations keep making, selling, exporting and smuggling drugs for profit.

But, they need not lose heart wholly. The opium committees is meeting in Geneva this week, the same efforts are being made to thwart the suppression of the opium traffic—but there's a difference now, and a hopeful difference. The opium bloc can't work in the dark any more. The "addict nations" are louder than ever in their insistence that something be done. They DEMAND a change and they have the sincere help of the delegates from such countries as Italy and the United States—and sooner or later they will GET that change!

Evil things cannot be frankly done any more. "Black Tony" nations can no longer boast of their opium profits. They cannot be bold, as San Francisco's little "Black Tony" was bold. The little "Black Tony" goes to prison and within a few years, at the most, the "Black Tony" nations will be FORCED to raise wheat instead of poppies, to make bread instead of poison.

And with all the strength of its great heart, this nation is helping the coming of that day.

How Evolution Works

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

IT is a familiar saying that Man was evolved from a primordial cell in the primitive. This one-celled being was vastly simpler than the Amoeba.

Not only Man, but all forms of vegetables and animals are supposed to have evolved from this original, one-celled being.

Let us sketch this presumed evolution in detail:

First, the single cell or bit of living jelly split up into two cells. These two similar cells absorbed outside matter and began to grow. While these various cells were similar, they had individuality—that is, differences; just as human children differ from their parents and also from each other.

These differences, however minute, were none the less actual—such as differences in size or in energy.

Now while these various cells continued to grow, they were markedly affected by their environment That is, the conditions under which they grew would affect their character.

These conditions might embrace differences in light and darkness heat and cold, abundance and scarcity of food, and the like. Clearly the most energetic of the cells would secure the most food. The less vigorous, being unable to cope successfully with their stronger competitors, would grow weaker and perhaps, in some instances, eventually die.

In any case the weaker cells might lose the strength and vigor necessary to produce healthy new cells. Through this process of elimination in "natural selection," to use the biblogical term, evolution would proceed. The survivors would resemble in size and vigor the parents from which they came.

IT may be that an outside source —a current of water, a breath of air—will transport one of those cells to a different environment, say a colder one.

The children of this cell will have skins or covering very slight by distring in thickness. Those with the thicker covering will have a tendency to survive. Their children will have thicker skins, since children tend to "take after" their parents.

Thus will be gradually evolved in the new environment, a hardier cell, capable of survival in the colder climate.

We must think of this process of evolution much as we think of a tree growing from an acorn. Very early the tree of life, growing from the primordial cell, split up into two "branches"—which we shall call the vegetable and animal branches.

In turn, each of these branches subdivided into a vast number of cognate and similar, but slightly differing forms.

In the case of the plants, the flowers are the beautiful and ingenious devices of nature for attracting bees and other insects to assist in uniting cells so that new plants may be produced.

THE animal branch, given the power of locomotion, were also compelled to roam in search of food to sustain life.

Some of the animals were thrown in water, some on lands; and thus were evolved two kinds of animals. There were fishes which could breathe indefinitely in water, and land animals which could breathe only air indefinitely.

Eventually, some of the animals found that the environment best suited to their development was neither in the water nor on land, but in the air.

By a gradual process of functional adaptation these forms eventually exchanged their front legs for wings, which enabled them to fly.

Through the ocean, on the whole, bodies have decreased in size and brains have increased in size. This course of evolution points to a great intellectual development of the race.
